GOVERNMENT MARINE PLAN IS TO "KEEP SHIPS GOING"

Adequate Service Will Be Maintained Either Under Private Supervision or Under Straight-Out Policy of Federal Ownership and Operation.

LINES WILL BE OFFERED FOR SALE

Consolidation of 40 Existing Routes Decided On at White House Conference of President and Shipping Board Members.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Notice was served on all concerned after a two-hour conference at the White House today that the American merchant marine is to be maintained as a going concern, either under private supervision or under a straight out policy of Government ownership and Government operation.

The statement was made at the White House that President Harding and members of the Shipping Board who met with him to consider the shipping situation were unanimous in their opinion that "the chief end to be sought is the establishment and maintenance of the American Merchant Marine."

"The statement from the conference," said Chairman Lasker later, "Means simply this: American and foreign shipping interests may be assured that so far as this generation can see ahead, there will be adequate American tonnage to carry any cargo offered to any port of the world."

With the conviction that private operation has not yet been relegated to the list of impossible things, the conference determined upon one more attempt to turn over established routes to private ownership. As an initial step, the 40 existing routes will be consolidated to insure more economical and efficient operation, and then will be offered for sale as going concerns, practically at auction, but with the stipulation that only "justifiable" bids will be considered. A condition of all sales will be that the vessels concerned be kept on their present routes.

One Effect of Consolidation.

The consolidation is expected to remove one of the principal handicaps under which the board has labored in its dealings with Government operators. An example was cited today in the case of certain routes out of New York. An operator running ships to Amsterdam, it was pointed out, might have an outward cargo and the opportunity to pick up return freight at Rotterdam but would be unable to avail himself because of the existence of a separate route from New York to Rotterdam. The consolidation will combine routes to adjacent foreign ports under a single head with the view of handling the same amount of business with less ships.

It is estimated that the number of routes might be reduced to 18 by the consolidation and the number of operators reduced in proportion.

Chairman Lasker said today advertisement of the sale would be ready in three weeks.

"It must be understood," he said, "the board does not contemplate selling of the 'cream routes' and leaving the Government stuck with unproductive lines. If sufficient routes are not purchased to insure success of private operation, the Government will proceed to hold them all, eliminate the agency system entirely and embark upon a program of aggressive operation."

Not a Temporary Enterprise.

In this event, he declared, the board would be prepared to go before Congress in December and ask for a substantial appropriation for new construction, the first to be undertaken by the board since the war. Any program of Government operation, the chairman explained, would include maintenance of "adequate surplus tonnage" to convince competitors that the American merchant fleet was not intended to serve a temporary purpose.

Regardless of the outcome of the proposed sale of existing routes, the day of the cost plus fee operator is gone, it was announced officially. Chairman Lasker characterized the system as "vicious," declaring it offered no inspiration either to the agents or to Government employes to build for the future. In this connection, it was learned today, the FORMER PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE will visit the United States and Canada in September. During a short tour he will speak in New York, Washington, Chicago, Toronto, Montreal. He also intends to visit the national exhibition of Canada at Toronto.

The authority for these statements is the News of the World, owned by Lord Riddell, a close friend of the former Premier. The prominence given the reports indicates it was inserted by Lord Riddell and authorized by Mr. Lloyd George. However, it was impossible to obtain confirmation of the report from the former Premier himself tonight.

GANGSTER, SHOT TWICE, REFUSES TO NAME ASSAILANT

Thomas Sullivan, Found Wounded on Street, Not Expected to Live—Has Been Arrested 35 Times.

Thomas (Mush) Sullivan, 36 years old, a teamster, identified by detectives as a member of the Cuckoo gang, was found near Eighth street and Chouteau avenue early today suffering from two bullet wounds. He was taken to the city hospital and is not expected to live.

Sullivan was seen staggering down Chouteau avenue from Eighth street at 1:45 by Policeman Hale, who followed him and saw him go into an alley between Seventh and Eighth streets, where Sullivan fell.

At the hospital a spent .38-caliber revolver bullet fell from his clothing, and it was discovered that he had been shot through the left side, the bullet coming out of his back. Later a second bullet wound was found near the left shoulder. Sullivan refused to tell how or where he had been shot.

Police records show that he has been arrested 35 times since 1913 and that he was sentenced to the State Reformatory in 1916 for a five-year term. Sullivan lives at 510 Chouteau avenue.

SURRENDER OF ALL IRISH IRREGULARS BELIEVED NEAR

Document Found on Person of Austin Stack After Capture Indicates This Action Is Contemplated.

MAIN CONFLICT IS THOUGHT TO BE OVER

Reported Address of De Valera, Contemplating Continuance of Fight, Said to Be Final Gesture.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, April 14.—The capture today of Austin Stack, chief colleague of Eamon De Valera, while important in itself, is overshadowed by the discovery on his person of a document indicating that the complete surrender of the irregulars is at hand. The document, made public tonight by the Free State army headquarters, read:

"Realizing the gravity of the situation of the army of the Republic owing to the great odds now facing them and the losses lately sustained; and being of the opinion that further military efforts are futile and would cause only injury to our country without obtaining any advantage; and being convinced that the defensive war waged by the army for the last nine or 10 months has made it impossible for the Irish people ever to accept less than their full national rights, and fearing that it would cause too much delay to await the summoning and holding of a full meeting of the army council or executive, we, the undersigned members of the army council and of the executive and other army officers, hereby call upon and authorize the President of the Republic to order an immediate cessation of hostilities.

"Volunteers are requested to hand in their arms to —(blank)—pending the election of a government by Free Choice of the People."

Document Unsigned.

The document was not signed. It contrasts strongly with the address attributed to Eamon De Valera in commenting on Liam Lynch's death, as that document seemed to contemplate continuance of the fight. But little importance is attached to this discrepancy, as De Valera's eloquent appeal is regarded merely as a final gesture.

Stack was found in a field near Clonmel, County Tipperary, unarmed and alone, and the fact that he carried no weapon will be in his favor if he is brought to trial. He is an old member of the Irish Republican brotherhood; was foremost in the preparation of the Easter rising of 1916 and was associated with Sir Roger Casement in the latter's efforts on behalf of the Republic. He was a vehement opponent of the Anglo-Irish treaty in the Dail, served as home secretary in De Valera's administration and, since the capture and execution of Erskine Childers, has been the Republican chief's principal aide. The only prominent leader, with the exception of De Valera himself, now at large is P. J. Rutledge.

End of Conflict Expected.

Today's issue of the daily Republican Bulletin is devoted to vigorous denials of the recent statements of President Cosgrave and Home Minister O'Higgins that the Free State has won its fight over the Irregulars; nevertheless, the opinion prevails here that, except for possible spasmodic outbreaks, the conflict is over.

Documents Revealing Plots for Reign of Terror Reported Found.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 14.—Documents revealing plots involving the destruction of life and property in London are reported to have come into possession of Scotland Yard as the result of last night's raid on the residences or resorts of Irish men or women suspected of being Republican supporters.

Among the plans said to have been revealed were plots to attack London's lighting and power sources—the underground power stations—efforts to release Irish prisoners from London prisons and projected attempts on the lives of high police officials.

It is stated the plots had huge ramifications in Great Britain and particularly in London, and had reached such a stage that a delay oof a week by the police might have resulted in the scheme being put into operation.

Among the plans was one for attacking police officers in their houses. A prominent former Cabinet Minister is declared to have been marked for attack.

FEDERAL INQUIRY INTO SUGAR DEALINGS EXTENDED

Department of Justice Agents Seeking Information in New York From Sugar Brokers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Government's investigation of the high price of sugar, which had been centered upon the transactions of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange during February, was widened today to include all transactions in sugar in the period between Jan. and April 1, 1923. For the past two weeks, it was learned today on good authority, agents of the Department of Justice have been examining the February transactions of several of the largest brokers and dealers in sugars, paying particular attention to the names and addresses of buyers of large sugar contracts.

The inquiry has been carried on quietly and was known only to the firms concerned and their customers whose permission was asked for in most cases, before their names were disclosed to the Government agents. The greatest secrecy has been observed by the Government and no clew to the nature or scope of the investigation had been obtained until today.

Information Is Sought.

Today the inquiry was broadened to include all transactions in sugar in the first quarter of 1923 and the entire list of brokers of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange received letters from David A. L'Esperance, special assistant to Attorney-General Daugherty, requesting retailed information of all transactions during that period as promptly as possible.

The letters also expressed the desire of the Government's investigators to have the names and addresses of the customers of the firms addressed. There was no hint of compulsion in the letters.

While the sugar brokers were discussing the business ethics involved in a disclosure of their customers' names, without their permission, an agent of the Department of Justice visited the floor of the exchange and invited several brokers to present themselves at the office of United States District Attorney Hayward next Monday morning. One of the brokers, M. R. Mayer, said that he would accept the invitation and would be glad to assist the Government in any way that he could. The brokers were not asked to present any of their records.

Data Being Prepared.

Several of the brokers went to work on their books compiling the data requested by the Department of Justice, while others believed that it would take some time for them to gather the information and put it in shape.

One of the largest brokers on the Sugar Exchange, whose transactions have been under investigation for the last two weeks, said until today the principal object of the Government's investigation appeared to be the names and addresses of their customers who had large transactions in sugar futures during February.

PNEUMONIA ATTACK FATAL TO TARKINGTON'S DAUGHTER, 17

Associations of Her Childhood Said to Have Provided Inspiration for Many of Author's Stories.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 14.—A crushing sorrow has fallen upon Booth Tarkington, Indiana author, whose writings and plays have brought pleasure to thousands, in the death here Friday night of his daughter, Laurel, 17 years old, his only child.

The associations of her childhood and youth are said to have provided the inspiration for many of the author's stories relating to child life, "Penrod" and others, that have been so widely read. She was born in Rome, Italy, Feb. 9, 1906, where Tarkington was living at that time. A few years later Tarkington and the girl's mother, who was Miss Louisa Fletcher, daughter of an Indianapolis banker, were divorced.

It was provided that the daughter, Laurel, should be with her father three months out of the year, and consequently most of her life had been spent abroad or in the East, where she received her education. Her visits were always looked forward to by her father and she came to him at his home in Indianapolis just before Christmas last year from the House in the Pines School at Norton, Conn., and had been here since.

Two days ago she was stricken with pneumonia. Her father was at her bedside continuously.

The girl's mother, now Mrs. Willard Connolly of Cambridge, Mass., arrived today. The funeral will be held Monday from the home of the author and will be private.

BISHOP TUTTLE AGAIN RALLIES AS PHYSICIANS AWAIT END

Recovers from Severe Heart Attack and Coma and is Resting More Comfortably.

Bishop Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, whose condition was such yesterday that his physicians doubted he would survive the day, recovered during the afternoon from a heart attack and coma and rested comfortably thereafter. While there is no hope for his eventual recovery, the physicians expressed belief last night that the end would not come immediately.

The Bishop, who is 86 years old, head of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri and presiding Bishop of the church, has been ill at his home, 74 Vandeventer place, from an attack of grip, which began Feb. 28. His condition since then has been critical and steadily growing weaker, but his unusual vitality sustained him. Last night he was unable to partake of food or recognize relatives.

MISSOURIAN SANE, SAYS JURY AFTER HE PLAYS FIDDLE

Defendant Proves He Is Competent, With "Turkey in the Straw."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., April 14.—"Turkey in the Straw," "Leather Breeches" and "The Arkansaw Traveler" were played before a jury in Probate Court here on a violin handled by Carl M. London, 24 years old, defendant in an insanity inquiry brought by his uncle, Capt. John M. London.

Young London, fiddle in hand, was sworn as a witness after all the other witnesses had testified, and almost the first question asked by Otho Matthews, defendant's attorney, was:

"Do you play the fiddle?"

On his reply in the affirmative, the young man was told to "cut loose." He played so well that in a few minutes the old-timers on the jury were patting in unison with the rollicking strains the witness was sawing on. An enthusiastic juryman cried:

"Lawzee, but that boy can fiddle."

The jury, after very brief consideration, returned the verdict:

"We, the jury, find the defendant to be of sound mind and capable of managing his affairs."

The complainant, Capt. John M. London, said his nephew owns a half interest in 200 acres of land left by his father, worth about $8000, and that he would come into about $1400 from the trust deed. He testified that Carl was not mentally capable, in his judgment, of handling so much property, and cited instances which he claimed the boy let people deceive him in trades.

HIGH SCHOOL YOUTH, 17 YEARS OLD, KILLS HIMSELF

Leaves Note Saying He Is "Through With This Cruel, Cruel World."

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., April 14.—Walter C. Bayes, 17 years old, high school sophomore, was found dead in his room here this afternoon, slumped in his chair. A revolver was lying on the floor where it had apparently dropped from his hand. An empty bottle labeled "poison" was on the table.

Bayes left a note addressed "to whom it may concern," saying that he was "through with this cruel, cruel world," and asking that a letter to his mother, Mrs. Leota Bayes, a trained nurse, be delivered to her unopened.

The mother was employed out of town much of the time, and her son did not make his home with her. She was notified of his death and is expected to arrive tomorrow.

TRIAL OF FORMER HEAD OF ALL-RUSSIAN CHURCH APRIL 23

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 14.—The trial of Archbishop Tikhon, former head of the all-Russian church, on charges similar to those on which Archbishop Zeepliak, Monsignor Butchkavitch and other Catholic prelates recently were convicted, has been definitely fixed to begin on April 23, Commissar of Justice Kurski informed the Associated Press today.

EPISCOPAL BOARD VOTES FOR MORE LIBERAL THOUGHT

Resolution, Declaring Church 'Stands for Freedom in the Truth,' Adopted by Educational Executives.

NO DENIAL OF FAITH WILL BE PERMITTED

Two Clergymen, With Automobile Chains Over Arms, Create Stir in Conference Before Final Vote.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., April 14.—The educational executives of the Episcopal Church, at their fourth annual conference, in session here, today adopted what was described by one of the delegates as a "reassertion of the basic doctrine of the church in terms of reason and sanity," which ascribes "the widespread feling that restricts the mind and prevents real freedom" to "confusion of thought."

Canon C. S. Lewis of Newark, N. J., presented the committee report, which contained the adopted resolutions.

"The church's documents and official teachings do not hamper the spirit of honest search for truth," the resolutions unanimously declared, "nor the desire to get a larger vision of it," and the "narrower position which ignores the fruit of modern knowledge and the results of scientific research is not the position of this church."

"It should be remembered," the resolutions continued, "that this freedom does not permit the denial of the articles of Christian faith as contained in the Apostle's creed. It should be further remembered that it is the duty and privilege of every Christian to understand and interpret these articles in the light of modern knowledge."

Freedom in the Truth.

Adopted with special reference to the statement in the annual address of the Rev. Dr. William E. Gardner, executive secretary of the department of religious education of the Episcopal Church, that the youth of the church are demanding an "unshackling of thought," the resolutions are addressed to the youth of the communion. They set forth further:

"The appeal for men and women who can and will teach our church youth the meaning of this kind of freedom, both by the spoken and written word, is one to which immediate heed should be given. The freedom for which this church stands is freedom in the truth. The truth, as this church has received the same from her Master, can always be vindicated to the sober sense and to the conscience of the sincere searchers for truth.

"This action means," said Dr. Gardner, "that a man may remain in the church and think and try to understand the mysteries of religion so long as he does not deny. Thousands of men and women want to think in fellowship, but they are afraid that fellowship of the church will bind them. This body wants to show them the church welcomes them so long as they do not deny."

Divided on Modernism.

The subject of modernism aroused such differences of view that on motion of the Rev. John W. Suter Jr., instructor in Cambridge Episcopal Theological Seminary, a motion recommending action on the committee's report on Dr. Gardner's address was at first tabled. Dr. Sutter took the view that nothing constructive would be accomplished.

A dramatic incident occurred after the tabling of the motion, when Dean Victor Hoag of the cathedral at Salina, Kan., and Dr. B. L. Smith of Dallas, Tex., an educational leader of that diocese, marched down the aisle where the delegates were talking excitedly, with automobile chains over their arms, representing the shackles which the body, by its action in tabling the motion, had just for the time being, refuesd to remove.

Dr. Suter withdrew his opposition and the motion recommending action on the committee's report was adopted.

Would Reassure Youth.

The educational conference of the Episcopal Church acts in an advisory capacity to the secretary of the department of religious education of the Episcopal National Council, and does not define the attitude of the church in doctrinal matters, which is the province of the general convention alone. At the same time today's resolutions are expressive of the deliberate views of that group of men, representing every diocese in the church, who are charged with responsibility for its educational welfare.

WILSON LETTER A BLOW TO HARDING'S PLAN FOR ENTRANCE INTO COURT

TEXT OF WILSON'S LETTER OUTLINING HIS POSITION ON WORLD COURT PLAN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.

FOLLOWING is the text of former President Wilson's letter to Congressman Rouse, outlining his position on the International Court, as printed in a copyrighted story by the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

My dear Mr. Rouse:

In reply to your letter of March 29, let me say that I approve, not of the "conditional" but of the unconditional adhesion of the United States to the world court set up under the auspices of the League of Nations, though I think it would be more consistent with the fame of the United States for candor and courage to become a member of the League of Nations and share with other members the full responsibility which its covenant involves.

Respectfully yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

MOUNTAIN JUSTICE FOR "BLACK-HANDERS"

Three Italians Convicted of Murder in Five Days at Clarksburg, W. Va.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.,—April 14.—A new brand of "lightning justice" was written across American legal records by the "mountain court" here today as a result of the third conviction in five days in West Virginia's sensational "black hand" murder trials.

With a number of deputy sheriffs and police on guard, the three convicted murderers are held in the county jail awaiting execution for their share in the "black hand" campaign of violence, terror and sudden death that left a bloody trail across West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Seven other alleged members of the terrorist band are in adjoining cells facing a turn at "mountain justice."

The trio tried and convicted on first degree murder charges — all within five days—are "Nick" Salamante, Phillip "Big Nose" Connizzarro and Richard "Dapper Dick" Ferri, Italians.

Ferri Accredited Leader.

Ferri, the last man convicted, was the accredited leader of the band, but the State charged all three rose through "blood degrees" to be super-murderers in the ranks of the Camorra by their toll of human lives. It was said "Dapper Dick," so-called for his faultless dress, had slain 17 men to win the highest honors given by the Camorra in this country.

Three different juries brought in verdicts of guilty against the trio for the slaying of Frank Naples, a Clarksburg business man, one of seven victims of the band in the county. A series of revolting revelations were made during the trials.

Jury Out Seven Minutes.

Salamante was tried first, the testimony starting last Monday. He was convicted Tuesday by a jury which considered his fate in only seven minutes. The next afternoon Connizarro was found guilty by another jury which deliberated 14 minutes. On Thursday Ferri's trial started and last night he was convicted by a jury which was out onry 21 minutes.

Five of the seven men still facing trial are charged with being accessories before murder, in having helped to plot Naples' death. The first of these—Patsy Corbi—goes to trial Monday. The two remaining prisoners are charged with first degree murder for the slaying of James Little, a confectioner, in his store a year ago.

The convictions were obtained chiefly on testimony given by Rocco Fiorello, a former "secretary" of the local "black hand" society. Fiorello told in court of the society's meetings when murders were plotted. On direct testimony he swore Salamante and Connizarro had fired the shots which had killed Naples, and that Ferri had been "master of ceremonies."

Democrats May Accept Former President's Argument for Unconditional Entry or None, and Refuse Expected Support for Proposal—Necessary Majority in Doubt.

LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP SENTIMENT GROWING

Republican Group in Senate Preparing to Advise President to Recommend That U. S. Accept Covenant With Reservations.

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Woodrow Wilson's letter to Congresman Rouse of Kentucky, pronouncing against the conditional adhesion of the United States to the International Court is the most menacing thing President Harding has yet encountered in his effort to bring America into the tribunal.

He has discounted the opposition of the irreconcilables; with the support of the Demicrats of which he felt certain, he knew he could get the measure through the Senate easily and disregard the protests of Johnson, Borah, Moses, Brandegee, McCormick and the comparative handful who would go with them. If, however, a considerable number of the Democrats accept the Wilson reasoning and vote that way, it is by no means certain that the requisite two-thirds of the Senate will be obtainable to put the proposition across.

Startling Development.

The most startling development of the new situation is that a number of the Republican Senators are preparing to advise the President to take the bull by the horns and solve the whole difficulty by recommending to the Senate that we proceed to accept not merely membership in the court but membership in the League of Nations, with such reservations, of course, as the Republican majority indorsed when the fight was made before. The theory of this is that unless some such action is taken, the issue will be before the country indefinitely, and that the large number of Republicans who believe in some sort of association with the powers as a means of settling world problems peacably must be kept in the ranks, lest a Democratic victory in 1924 brings the United States into the league without the restrictions these Republican Senators deem so necessary. They point out that the party has been forced into a false position; that irreconcilables are only one wing, and not the largest wing of the party.

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania has already indicated this viewpoint academically; other senators are moving to take the practical steps.

Republican Logic.

They say that Mr. Wilson's attitude will influence a large number of the Democrats, possibly most of them, and that in the discussions the issue will be ever present. Unless the party is willing to admit insincerity in the position it took in 1920 it cannot very well fail to support the same position now. If the Lodge reservations safeguarded us against the undesirable commitments then, they are equally effective today and the party should put them into effect less vorse befall. It must be remembered in estimating the value of this logic that Republicans are speaking.

Lodge himself will be on the verge of apoplexy at the plan to enact his own reservations, but when he proposed them, as a means of killing the league, knowing that Wilson would never accept the treaty in that form, the majority of those voting with him were sincerely desirous of actually getting into a league, if they could be satisfied that it did not mean a super-government.

The movement is only in its inception, and the men who have conceived it are not ready to come out in the open, but there is more to it than a mere vagrant alarm begotten of the Wilson declaration.

What Wilson Objects to.

The conditions to which Mr. Wilson objects really center in the first reservation embraced in Secretary Hughes' letter to the President which the latter made part of his message asking the Senate to authorize his signing the protocol of

FRANCO-BELGIAN PARLEY DEVOTED TO BLOCKADE AND COAL

Belting Running of Trains and Arranging for 10,000 Tons of Fuel a Day Are Discussed.

REPARATIONS UP AT LUNCHEON

Decision Is for Barthou to Draw Up Terms, to Be Handed to Germany When She Gives In.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, April 14.—The Franco-Belgian conference ended today, remaining purely technical up to the last minute. This was because recent peace offensive had been voted down by both President Millerand and Premier Poincare, as it was felt France's position was being weakened by this kind of talk.

There seems to be no truth in stories that President Millerand wants conciliation and desires to get ride of M. Poincare. These stories are not borne out by the results of the conference, the whole idea of which has been to warn Germany France and Belgium are determined to stand firmly together.

Today's conference lasted two hours. The questions discussed were tightening the blockade, better running of trains and arranging coal and coke deliveries to reach 10,000 tons a day by the end of the month.

All wider reparation discussions seem to have been left to last night's official dinner and today's luncheon at the Belgian Embassy, both of which Louis Loucheur attended. An article in the semiofficial Temps says the proposal to send Germany an ultimatum was discussed. It was decided not to take this step at present, but to stand by the Brussels assertion the allies will only deal directly with Germany after she speaks.

The point at issue at the dinner and luncheon conversations was whether the French and Belgians, via the reparation commission, should state the minimum requirements to Germany or whether they should take England into consideration first.

Barthou to Draw Up Terms.

It was decided to let Louis Barthou as chairman of the reparation commission draw up the minimum Franco-Belgian terms, which will be handed to Germany when the Reich gives in.

The terms will be based on the French plan: A partial moratorium of two years, during which payments were reduced to 500,000,000 marks in cash and 700,000,000 in kind annually; Germany to agree to restriction of expenses, a 25 per cent tax on industrial undertakings and the whole scheme guaranteed by the German industrialists.

Some comment has been raised by the last lines of today's communique about the conference. It reiterates the Brussels resolution that Ruhr and territories occupied on the right bank of the Rhine are to be evacuated only as Germany pays. But nothing is said of evacuation of the Rhineland or its future status.

Meanwhile there are reports in diplomatic circles that Belgium is irritated at the French reparation plan published in Paris Thursday. According to this France, and after France, Italy, Serbia and Belgium, get priority on German payments. This is the third time an attempt has been made to take away Belgium priority.

Hint of Loucheur Scheme.

Statements continue to appear in Paris that this scheme, which would compel Germany to pay $1,000,000,000 a year, is the scheme Loucheur presented in England. But this is not true. I have seen in confidence a summary of what M. Loucheur proposed here and it was far more moderate than the one published in Paris. It included a moratorium to enable Germany to put her house in order. It was this which pleased the British and it is absent in the plan published which I learn was drawn up by M. Poincare's financial experts. It is totally inacceptable to Britain.

When M. Loucheur recently visited former Premier Lloyd George's house at Churt his host showed him an annex recently built.

"I call this my Poincare annex," Lloyd George remarked. "I built it with the money I got for my recent articles."

Seized Goods to Be Used First to Pay Cost of Occupation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 14.—The French and Belgian Governments decided today, at the conference of their Ministers here, to reimburse themselves for the Ruhr occupation expenses out of merchandise and money seized from the Germans. The two allies again emphasized their determination to evacuate the Rhur only as Germany pays. Any balance left after the military and engineering expenses are paid will be turned into the reparations fund for the benefit of all the allies.

The merchandise seized will first be applied on orders already placed with Germany under the reparations schedule for German payment in kind, the French and Belgians filling their own orders by compulsion if necessary.

Harding Plan for a World Court Is Menaced by Wilson's Letter

the court. This read as follows:

"That such adhesion shall not be taken to involve any legal relation on the part of the United States to the League of Nations or the assumption of any obligations by the United States under the covenant of the League of Nations constituting Part 1 of the Treaty of Versailles."

It has been assumed that the Democratic Senators would vote to join the court; in fact, most of them have said that on cursory examination it seemed like a good thing, and not a few of them based their favor on the hypothesis that it really meant an approach to the league principle, and might well be the first step. They did not, however, commit themselves definitely, and are quite free to follow Mr. Wilson's view.

McKellar's Statement.

The position many of them will take was exemplified by a declaration by Senator McKellar of Tennessee this afternoon.

"I approve of former President Wilson's statement that we should go into the Court of International Justice created by the league and go in without reservations," said McKellar. "Such reservations as have been proposed are nothing more than attempts at political juggling. Evidently the purpose of these reservations is purely political. If adopted, their proponents would then be able to say to league advocates, 'We stand with you,' and to the irreconcilables, 'We are not against you.' In this way they would expect to catch them coming and going. The reservations constitute a very genuine article of political hypocrisy."

The irreconcilable is in accord with that part of Mr. Wilson's letter declaring that if we go into the court we should go the whole way, though they do not, of course, indorse his second proposal that the way to do it is to join the League of Nations outright.

Long Debate Foreseen.

The chances still seem to favor the President's success in getting his plan through the Senate, but it is now evident that this will not be accomplished in a short time. In fact, it will probably lead to long and bitter debate, and perhaps the danger pointed out by Senator Watson, and also by Lodge, of party disruption is really there, though when they voiced the dire prediction it was taken as an effort to scare the President away from making the court a talking point in his forthcoming tour, rather than a potent fear of actual disaster.

The middle-of-the-road attitude was voiced today by Senator Stirling, Republican, of South Dakota, who was a reservationist in the original League of Nations fight.

Senator Stirling said: "I am in favor of our participation in the world court and of our acceptance of the judgment of that court as already established, provided the League of Nations shall authorize our acceptance of the jurisdiction of the court without thereby committing the United States to membership in the league and secure to the United States the same right to vote in the selection of the judges of the court as is accorded by the League of Nations to the other members of the league.

Favors League Membership.

"This, if I understand it, is in harmony with the ideas of the President and of the Secretary of State. I think it is highly important that the United States do that much in promoting this great instrumentality for world peace. Our acceptance of the jurisdiction of the court under the conditions above named will leave us with all rights duly safeguarded as against any interference on the part of the League of Nations.

"I have always been in favor of our membership in the League of Nations with the 14 reservations which were adopted by a decisive majority in the Senate in Committee of the Whole. Those reservations would have protected us in every right even to the right of withdrawal in a very short time even if we thought membership in the league in any way endangered our sovereign rights, and I have always been satisfied that the other principal nations who are members of the league, and who were all allies in the war, would gladly have received our membership.

"I think further that it is a mistake to suppose that the American people are against membership in the League of Nations, although that impression is sought to be conveyed. The people of the country were opposed to the league as embodied in the Versailles treaty—the Wilson League—but I do not think the election of 1920 showed they were opposed to the league if their rights were safeguarded, as I think they surely were by the reservations adopted in the Senate."

COX SAYS COURT PROPOSAL MEANS ISOLATION IS OVER

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14.—Membership of the United States in the International Court of Justice "is the beginning of the end of American isolation," declared James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1920, in an address tonight at a Jefferson day banquet here.

Cox expressed confidence that the Senate would approve membership in the court and said that "the work of conversion is over." "There should be no disposition at this Jeffersonian observance to exult over the confusion in the ranks of the old guard in the Republican party" said Cox.

"The mere circumstances of hundreds of thousands of Republicans coming to the Democratic view on international questions is sufficient unto our joy at this hour.

"Submergence of the Lodges."

"Let us hope that the submergence of the Lodges and others of this type by an overwhelming public opinion will mean the certainty of taking this great moral issue out of politics. We were agreed on it until it became political.

"In the presence of pressing world wide necessities, let us lose sight of any political advantage that might be attained, and support any enterprise, having for its purpose the repair of civilization, regardless of the auspices under which it is presented. The irreconcilables are now fighting among themselves.

"Our membership in the International Court of Justice is the beginning of the end of American isolation. It will mean, however, only our participation in judicial matters. If an international arrangement is absolutely necessary for the adjustment of national disputes, isn't it fair to assume that administrative agencies, which will reduce the number of disputes, are also necessary?

"Senate Will Approve."

"The Senate will approve of our membership in the International Court. There is no necessity of a campaign being conducted in behalf of this proposition: The work of conversion is over.

"The public opinion of America converted the President and the Secretary of State. It will be nothing less than an amusing spectacle to see those recently converted, attempting an appeal to the public opinion which accomplished the apostasy.

"There is a story of a country man, who went to the mourners' bench, and after his conversion, began preachment, both to the minister and the elders of the church, insisting that they see the light, in his view of things. This illustrates the suggested procedure of the administration."

Cox addressed a joint session of the Minnesota Legislature this afternoon. The crux of the whole economic situation of Europe, if not of the world, lies in the settlement of the reparations problem, he said, adding that in the hands of America rests the master key which eventually must be applied to unlock the doors of settlement.

Heflin Favors Entrance of U. S. Into World Court.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Senator Heflin, Democrat, of Alabama, gave his approval today to the permanent Court of International Justice, in a statement in which he said:

"I believe that the influence of the United States should be used in promoting peace in the world and in bringing about better and more cordial relations between the nations of the earth, and I do not see how anyone can oppose our whole-hearted entrance into an international tribunal of justice."

SIXTY HORSES VALUED AT $1,000,000 PERISH IN FIRE

Inchcape, Purchased for $115,000, Among Animals Lost on Farm in New Jersey.

By the Associated Press.

BURLINGTON, N. J., April 14.—Sixty stallions and brood mares, valued at approximately $1,000,000, were burned to death tonight in a fire that destroyed two stables on the Rancocas stock farm, owned by Harry F. Sinclair.

Among the animals destroyed was the thoroughbred American stallion Inchcape, whose purchase price was $115,000.

The fire was discovered by one of the farm guards after it had gained considerable headway. The flames demolished the central stables of the estate before apparatus could reach the scene, and spread so rapidly that the only horse that could be saved from the stables was the stallion Purchase.

The horses destroyed included those used for breeding purposes only, and none of the string that is now used for racing by the Rancocas stables was injured. The race horses were in stables in another part of the farm about a mile from the buildings destroyed.

NEW LAW INVOKED FIRST TIME

Youth Charged With Knowingly Riding in Stolen Auto.

A warrant under a State law passed two years ago but not heretofore applied here, will be asked for tomorrow against Joseph Stanton, 19 years old, machinist, living at 7108A South Broadway, arrested yesterday on a charge of riding in an automobile while knowing it had been stolen.

The charge resulted from the arrest last Thursday of Joseph Campa, 18, of 6821 Minnesota avenue, when he attempted to drive off in the machine of Peter C. Hoffman, 3638A Nebraska avenue, which had been parked in front of the Lewis Medicine Co., Fourth and Spruce streets. Campa was captured by employes of the company, who told police that a second man had jumped from the machine and escaped. Campa furnished Stanton's name.

GOVERNMENT MARINE PLAN IS TO "KEEP SHIPS GOING"

board has a list in its files of Government operators who have maintained connections throughout their service with their foreign shipping lines.

Operators under the so-called "M—O—V" contract, by which the agent's fee is assured regardless of financial outcome, have been reduced from 80 to 39 and their privileges materially restricted. Lasker said the remaining operators would be dropped if the Government takes over operation.

"It was continued," he said, "in the hope that the more efficient and ambitious operators could be developed into prospective owners, but this hope has been dissipated. The system was never commercially sound."

Against Government Operation.

The chairman emphasized the repugnance he felt toward Government operation.

Survey of the entire fleet will be pushed in order that unsuitable tonnage may be speedily eliminated and, in the meantime, ships not engaged in active service on Government routes will be sold without restrictions at world market prices to American buyers if any are discovered.

White House Statement.

The White House statement on its decision as to the future course on Government shipping follows:

"After an extended conference with the full membership of the Shipping Board and a thorough discussion of the problems to be solved, the board unanimously agreed, with the President's concurrence, that the chief end to be sought is the establishment and maintenance of an American merchant marine. With the failure of the subsidy act, the board is confronted with its vast possession of ships, and the heavy losses under the existing plan of allocated operations under managing agents.

"In compliance with the shipping act, the board will proceed at once to the consolidation of foreign trade lines, and then offer the sale of these lines and ships under the authorization of the law on conditions of suitable guaranty of maintenance of service. If such sales cannot be made without unjustifiable sacrifice of the ships, then the Government will proceed to direct Government operation aggressively pursued.

"In short, there is unanimous agreement that the existing law contemplates and authorizes an adequate and maintained merchant marine and such a course will be followed as will fully guarantee it and contemplate its larger development."

PLAN FOR PLANES TO RACE TO CITY TO AIR MEET

Free-for-All Event, Open to Craft Starting From Any Point in U. S., for $1000 in Prizes.

A free-for-all airplane race to St. Louis from any part of the country is proposed as the opening event of the international aeronautic meet to be held here Oct. 1, 2 and 3. A tentative program provides $1000 in cash prizes for an even of this kind.

The contest will be called the "On-to-St. Louis" race, and the participants will be handicapped as to type and weight of machine, fuel consumed and distance covered, so that as many entrants as possible will arrive at St. Louis field, Bridgeton, St. Louis County, at the same time. Entries for this event also are expected from Canada.

This event and others on a tentative program that has been forwarded to Washington for approval will be discussed at the monthly meeting of the Flying Club of St. Louis at Hotel Chase tomorrow night. There will be a buffet luncheon, cabaret and moving pictures for the members at this meeting.

Other Events on Program.

There also will be a dirigible race in which the army and possibly the navy will have entries. Other attractions and feature events will be exhibitions of the helicopter and glider, radio-controlled plane, reversible propeller, glider launched from dirigible, aerial combats, bombing dummy fort by army planes, jumping balloons and many other novelties.

For the first time, it is expected to give the Pulitzer trophy meet an international character, and negotiations are under way through Howard E. Coffin, president of the National Aeronautic Association, with some of the noted European flyers, to induce them to enter the competition. Two things are needed to induce the foreign flyers to participate, first financial assistance from the St. Louis committee, which is included in the general plan of financing the meet, and second, co-operation of the foreign governments. It is thought both of these conditions can be successfully met. If the English, French and Italian aviators enter, they will give the American flyers plenty of competition. Last year, at Detroit, there were no foreign entries in the Pulitzer race.

Plans for the Field.

At a meeting of the grounds committee of the St. Louis Air Board, of which Col. A. T. Perkins is chairman, it was announced that preliminary surveys and estimates had been completed, showing changes and improvements necessary to convert St. Louis field into a model site for the race meeting. Government regulations will be followed throughout. At least six steel hangars, each approximately 66x120 feet, will be erected. A complete machine shop, 30 feet square, will be installed for repairs. Six pylons, to guide the flyers, will be built, two at each of the three corners marking the 31-mile course over which the Pulitzer Trophy race will be flown. These pylons will be built of wood and will be 60 feet high.

Six miles of fencing will be required to surround the field and provide necessary cross-fencing to keep spectators off the course. Boxes to seat several thousand spectators will be built and a permanent water system installed. All this, with the necessary grading and other building requirements will require several months, and Col. Perkins recommended that work be started immediately.

A meeting for the election of directors of the St. Louis Air Board will be held Tuesday at 3:30 p. m. on the eighth floor of the Chamber of Commerce Building. Methods of procedure to be followed in organizing the St. Louis Aeronautic Corporation and other matters relating to the coming aviation meeting will be discussed.

Sullivan, Mrs. Gertrude Geary, Huitt and Charles Reid as members of the board, which embraces the district of East St. Louis. Dr. Cannady had no opposition and received 5266 votes. The results for the other successful candidates were: Miller, 3473; Sullivan, 3344; Mrs. Huitt, 3338, and Reid, 3225.

Other unsuccessful candidates were: William F. Rothe, John A. Harszy and John T. Maule.

HOOVER IN APPEAL TO SHIPPERS TO AID IN TRANSPORTATION

Full Co-operation of Commercial Bodies Urged to Insure Expeditious Movement by the Railroads.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Commercial organizations were asked by Secretary Hoover today to co-operate with railroad managements in a national effort to get the large volume of railroad traffic expected during 1923 handled expeditiously and without congestion.

Pointing out that railroads have made heavy investments in increasing facilities and equipment, in a letter to various trade bodies, Hoover declared that it was vital that shippers assist by taking in winter coal supplies during the summer, by loading cars to capacity and by reducing car reconsignment and refraining from demanding excess car supply in operations.

"Due to the war and the long continued impossibilities on the part of railroads to finance the necessary betterments," said Hoover's letter, "Both our production capacity and consuming demands have now advanced beyond our transportation facilities. The railway managers under the recent improved conditions are making great efforts in finance and expansion of facilities to meet our necessities, but full recovery of lost ground must be slow and if we are to maintain our present rate of productivity and employment, it is vital that there be co-operation with the railway managements from both producing and consuming industries to secure the most efficient operation of the railroads.

Suggestions for Co-Operation.

"The railways have asked for this co-operation, and the trades can make a tremendous contribution to the orderly march of our prosperity if they will undertake it seriously and in an organized fashion. The principal directions in which co-operation can be extended by the trades are:

"One—The advance storage of their winter coal during the light consuming season—that is, from now until Sept. 1, including the early movement of lake traffic.

"Two—The loading of all cars to full capacity, their prompt loading and discharge.

"Three—Reduction of reconsignment shipments and restriction of to-order bills of lading.

"Four—Demands for no more cars from the railroads than can be promptly used.

"If we could secure the maximum efficiency in these directions we will have added more effective commodity movements than would be brought about by the addition of approximately 300,000 cars and 3000 locomotives and the addition of at least 10 per cent to our track mileage and terminal facilities.

Price Levels Vitally Affected.

"The importance of this lies in more than simply the maintenance of continuity of production and full supply of consumption, because any strangulation in movement of commodities through car shortages affects the profits of every individual manufacturer by interruption in his production and, furthermore, such strangulation affects price levels in the most definite fashion. The full and smooth movement of all the productivity of the country would be the greatest contribution that could be made at the presen time in checking inflation or increase in price levels.

"Therefore, I earnestly hope that you will undertake to definitely organize your association to bring about this co-operation through your district or trade, and to establish co-operative contact with the railway executives concerned. If we could secure unity of action on these questions between the shippers and the railways we would have made a greater contribution to continued prosperity and full employment than any direction I know of. I would be glad to know your views as to organization that can be effective to this end, in order that the department may act as a clearing house to helpful dissemination of ideas in the matter."

Senator Howell Proposes U. S. Experiment With Rail Control.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Senator R. B. Howell, Republican, Nebraska, today suggested an answer to the railroad problem which will be projected in the next session of Congress. Senator Howell, while not an immediate Government ownership advocate, proposes that the Government take over either one line, or two or more connecting lines, for the purpose of seeing what can be done with railroad operation under Government ownership. Howell was elected from Nebraska as an exponent of municipal ownership of utilities, having successfully operated gas, ice and waterworks plants in Omaha.

"Government ownership of railroads," he said, "with me is a means rather than an end. In our municipal experiments in Omaha we have demonstrated that utilities operated by the city do not run other concerns out of business. In our ice plants, for example, our purpose was to get cheaper ice for the public. We have done this, but the privately owned ice plants are still operating. The same reasoning would apply to railroads.

"There are four elements in the railroad situation. They are the capitalists, the management, labor and the public. The capitalists, once they find that Goverment ownership is impending, are likely to become its strongest advocates, so they may sell their properties at their own valuation. The management, the 'white-collared element,' is opposed to Government ownership and labor is divided. Some of the shrewder representatives of organized labor see in Government ownership an end to the possibility of strikes.

"The public is dissatisfied with the present transportation system, but it is uncertain whether Government ownership would help or not. It would take a long time to reorganize the business under a Government basis so the management could be brought into line. The public is impatient and might demand reversion to private ownership before the experiment is fully tried out."

Senator Howell thinks that by Government operation of one or more lines, the end of obtaining better operation management and cheaper transportation could be obtained while the privately-owned lines would keep the Government properties up to standard.

A campaign to rid East St. Louis of all forms of lawlessness was ordered yesterday afternoon by the East St. Louis City Council at a special meeting in the office of Mayor M. M. Stephens.

Whoever is appointed permanent olice Chief will follow my instruc- ons in this matter to the letter and ast St. Louis will be made a clean lace in which to live."

Complaint in Letter.

The Mayor exhibited a letter saying that teachers attending a convention in East St. Louis last week ad been insulted on the principal treets of the city by idlers who ere not molested by the police. The etter stated that on Missouri ave- ue there were three so-called ho- ls in each of which there were ore than 30 women of questionable haracter.

Mayor Stephens said there were a arge number of places where gam- ling was in progress continually. hese places, he said, should be raid- and persons found in them ar- sted. He stated that slot machines ould be destroyed as a part of the ampaign to stop gambling.

The Mayor also declared the practice of the police in dictating to Jus- ices of the Peace what punishment assess against persons arrested ust stop.

Acting Chief of Police William F. Moore was summoned to the meeting and instructed by the Council to serve notice on all women in disorderly houses to leave town, to raid all gambling houses; to enforce the ordinance requiring saloons to close at midnight, and to enforce the prohibition laws.

Acting Chief Moore accordingly assigned four detectives, two of whom are negroes, to begin at once notifying the women inmates of disorderly houses that have openly flourished and men associates of such women, together with professional gamblers, to leave East St. Louis. The detectives worked until midnight serving these notices, also notifying saloons to close at midnight and cease selling liquor in violation of the prohibition laws.

Arrests to Follow.

The Acting Chief said he would require a report from the detectives as soon as all places where lawlessness was known to flourish had been notified of the clean-up edict, and would begin a check-up on the places the first part of this week and begin arresting police characters and inmates of disorderly houses who fail to obey the order.

Mayor Stephens, who has been chosen Commissioner of Police by the new council, consisting entirely of Democrats, later told a Post-Dispatch reporter of his plans for the clean-up campaign, outlined his proposals for conducting the Police Department for the next four years. He spoke of the manner in which the department had been conducted for the last few years, when he has been in the minority in the City Council, being supported only by Commissioner Michael J. Whalen.

Stephens Tells of Lawlessness.

"East St. Louis has been overrun with women of the streets, men associates of such women have been here in large numbers, and gambling has gone on openly," Mayor Stephens said. "Complaints have come to my office daily of occurrences that shame the city but I have been helpless. Any complaints I have made to the police in the last few years have been unheeded and as a consequence the city has been infested with men and women of the underworld.

"Our action this afternoon is the beginning of a campaign I intend to wage for the next four years in an effort to rid East St. Louis of undesirables. Complaints that come to me in the future will be turned over to the police with instructions to investigate and if they prove true the necessary steps will be taken. Whoever is appointed permanent Police Chief will follow my instructions in this matter to the letter and East St. Louis will be made a clean place in which to live."

Complaint in Letter.

The Mayor exhibited a letter saying that teachers attending a convention in East St. Louis last week had been insulted on the principal streets of the city by idlers who were not molested by the police. The letter stated that on Missouri avenue there were three so-called hotels in each of which there were more than 30 women of questionable character.

Mayor Stephens said there were a large number of places where gambling was in progress continually. These places, he said, should be raided and persons found in them arrested. He stated that slot machines would be destroyed as a part of the campaign to stop gambling.

The Mayor also declared the practice of the police in dictating to Justices of the Peace what punishment to assess against persons arrested must stop.

NURSE SEEKING AID FOR GERMAN WAR ORPHANS

Miss Elsa Brandstrom, Sweden's Nominee for Nobel Prize, Says Suffering Passes Belief.

Miss Elsa Brandstrom, whom Sweden has nominated for the Nobel Prize because of her work as a Red Cross nurse in the Siberian prison camps during the war, came to St. Louis last night to remain two days seeking contributions toward a $100,000 fund which she is raising in America for work among German widows and orphans of men who died in Siberia. She is accompanied by Countess Ellen Douglass, who spent a year in Red Cross nursing in Siberia.

"The suffering in Germany and the need for American aid passes belief," she said. "Oh, I know, there are plenty of your tourists who tell you upon their return of seeing even gay life in German cities. But of the country! No, they are silent there. They have not seen. In one school, 90 per cent of the little children tubercular! Everywhere, undernourishment.

"I have chosen to try to help the widows and orphans of some of the 600,000 Germans and Austrians who died in Siberian prison camps during the six years I was there as a nurse. Scores upon scores of these gave me their dying message home, pleaded with me to try and do something for the helpless ones left behind. So, I am asking for money to buy a large farm, so large that it will support 1000 of these women and children.

"I have already established two institutions—one a sanitarium near Dresden where men who came out of those prison camps, maimed or suffering from disease, are being nursed back to health and taught the means of a livelihood. There are between 400 and 500 men there.

"The other is in Brandenburg, where the maimed are being taught to farm and produce for themselves. These, I established with my own money and that of my Swedish friends. Now I am asking America for the third, which as the others, will become self-supporting."

Miss Brandstrom, who was in Petrograd where her father was minister from Sweden at the opening of the war, spoke last night in Sheldon Memorial Hall. She and Countess Douglass will attend the Swedish church at 3116 St. Vincent avenue today at 1 p. m. and Miss Brandstrom will speak at 3 p. m. in Eagles' Hall, Lafayette and Jefferson.

A reception will be given for them tonight at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Building, 1159 South King's highway.

They are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus at 33 Westmoreland place.

CARNEGIE MONEY PAID TO TAFT NOT A PENSION

Treasurer of Corporation Asserts $10,000 Was Annuity Provided in Financier's Will.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The New York American prints today (Sunday), a facsimile of a letter written by R. A. Franks, vice-chairman and treasurer of the Carnegie Corporation, to Congressman Thomas D. Schall (Minn.), making clear that the $10,000 a year paid by the corporation to William H. Taft, former President and present Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, the interest on $200,000, in mortgage bonds of the U. S. Steel Corporation, is not a pension, but an annuity left to Mr. Taft by Carnegie by specific bequest in his will. The letter was written to Schall in response to an inquiry made in his search for information in connection with a bill to pension ex-Presidents and their widows. The text of the letter follows:

"I write in reply to your letter of the 12th instant.

"No ex-Presidents of the United States or their widows are receiving pensions from the Carnegie Corporation, nor is there any intention on the part of the Carnegie Corporation to grant such pensions.

"It is true that under the terms of a deed of gift from Mr. Carnegie during his lifetime, the trustees of the Carnegie Corporation were authorized to pay pensions of $25,000 a year to all ex-Presidents and their wives as long as they remained unprovided for by the nation. When Mr. Carnegie's plan set forth in this deed of gift was announced in the public press, it appeared to meet with disapproval and accordingly the trustees of the Carnegie Corporation, with the approval of Mr. Carnegie, determined not to exercise this authority conferred upon them.

"There is no provision in Mr. Carnegie's will by which ex-Presidents, or their widows, as such, receive annuities or pensions. Ex-President Taft, Mrs. Frances F. C. Preston (the widow of ex-President Cleveland) and Mrs. Edith K. Roosevelt (the widow of ex-President Roosvelt), as legatees specifically mentioned in Mr. Carnegie's will, are receiving annuities under the will. Mr. Taft's annuity is $10,000 and Mrs. Preston's and Mrs. Roosevelt's annuities are $5000 each.

"Inasmuch as the Carnegie Corporation is paying no pensions to ex-Presidents or their widows, there can be no question of the discontinuance of penisons in the event of Congress making adequate provision for former chief executives. Mr. Taft, Mrs. Preston and Mrs. Roosevelt, notwithstanding any congressional action granting them pensions, would continue to receive their annuities under Mr. Carnegie's will. They receive these annuities not by reason of their status as ex-Presidents or widows of ex-Presidents, but as ordinary legatees. They were all old friends of Mr. Carnegie's.

"If I can furnish you with any further information in regard to this matter I shall be glad to do so."

INFORMAL SOCIAL FUNCTION HELD BY MR. AND MRS. HARDING

President and Wife Receive About 100 Friends; Movie Exhibited.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 14. — The first social function of any importance since Mrs. Harding's illness last fall was held tonight at the White House. The President and Mrs. Harding informally entertained about 100 friends.

The guests included the members of the cabinet and Supreme Court, several members of the Senate and House and a few representatives of the diplomatic corps. The affair was most informal, the President and Mrs. Harding greeting and chatting with their guests as they arrived. The whole party then gathered in the east room to witness an advance showing of a motion picture dealing with the Americanization problem.

7-CENT REDUCTION IN CITY TAX RATE FOR 1923 FORESEEN

Officials Estimate Levy on Real and Personal Property of $2.43 on $100 Assessed Valuation.

Statements of municipal and Board of Education officials yesterday indicated that the total tax rate for 1923 in St. Louis on real and personal property would be approximately $2.43 on the $100 assessed valuation, or about 7 cents lower than last year, when the rate was $2.50.

This expected reduction will make no material change in the total income from taxes, because of the increased valuation of property in the city, partly due to the impetus to building last year. But in the case of a householder, whose home was assessed last year at, say, $4000, and whose assessment for this year was not changed, this rate reduction will mean a cut of $2.80 in his tax bill on this property.

Changes in Rate Schedule.

The changes in the rate schedule are expected to be as follows:

Reduction of the rate for State purposes from 13 cents to 11 cents, as voted by the last Legislature.

Reduction of the rate for public school maintenance from 85 cents to 82 cents, an action which, it is understood on reliable authority, will be taken by the Board of Education at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Waiving for this year of the levy of 3 cents for the school sinking fund, another action which, it is understood, the Board of Education will take.

Increase of the rate for municipal interest and sinking fund probably by 1 cent, although possibly by 1½ cents, but no more. This is the only increase expected this year.

The $2.50 rate of last year comprised the following: State purposes, 13 cents; school maintenance, 85 cents; interest and sinking fund, including the school levy, 25 cents; all municipal purposes, exclusive of waterworks, $1.19; public library, 4 cents; art museum, 2 cents; zoo, 2 cents.

City officials had expected a small increase in the rate for municipal purposes might be necessary, but now are of the opinion this will not be the case this year. Politicians believe that the State rate eventually will have to be increased, though not this year. A gradual increase of the sinking fund rate through a period of years is expected, because of the $88,372,500 bond issue. Only $8,000,000 of these will be issued this year, and none likely will be retired for five years.

School Levy Cut Favored.

On March 28, 1922, the people voted a maximum rate of 85 cents for the schools, to provide for building needs, and, school officials said, maintain educational standards. The rate fixed by law is 60 cents, unless the people vote a higher rate. A proposal soon after this election for the board to cut the rate to 80 cents was unsuccessful.

This year it was felt that some reduction would be advisable, and, it is understood, a poll of the Board of Education members showed a majority in favor of the reduction of 3 cents in the general rate and waiving the sinking fund levy this year because of the healthy condition of the latter account. The reduction of the general rate, roughly, would mean a cut of school revenue from $8,500,000 to $8,200,000.

The estimates of tax income are based on the expected assessed valuation this year of approximately $1,000,000,000, a record sum. A rate of $2.43 on this valuation will yield $24,300,000. With an assessed valuation for the last year of about $970,000,000, the rate of $2.50 yielded about $24,250,000. Taxes will be payable after Oct. 1.

EX-KANSAS CITY (KAN.) MAYOR ARRESTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Burton, His Brother and Friend Taken Into Custody in Oklahoma—Rum in Automobile.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., April 14.—Harry Burton, former Mayor of Kansas City, Kan., his brother, and Maj. J. C. Scutt of Wagoner, Ok., were arrested last night in Wagoner on a charge of violating the prohibition laws, it became known today.

The arrests were made by H. P. Warfield, Federal prohibition enforcement officer, and Deputy Sheriff H. L. Watts, who charged that two gallons of liquor were found in the motor car in which the men were riding.

Burton and his party are said to be in Oklahoma engaged in promoting a coal mine near Wagoner.

The prisoners were brought to Muskogee early today and a preliminary hearing was held before United States Commissioner R. M. Mountcastle.

Both of the Burtons were released from custody at the end of the hearing. Scutt was placed under $5000 bond for appearance at the next term of Federal District Court.

Burton retired from office several days ago, having been defeated for re-election.

DENBY AND M'CARL CLASH OVER NAVY'S EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

Overruled by Comptroller-General in Case Involving Overpayment, Secretary Prepares to Go Higher Up

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—J. R. McCarl of Nebraska, who two years ago unostentatiously took up the duties of the newly created office of Comptroller-General of the United States, today laid down the law to Secretary Denby in support of his claim that even Cabinet officers must bow before the authority of his office in fiscal affairs.

At the same time, Secretary Denby prepared to take to the Attorney-General for an opinion the question of how far the authority of the Comptroller-General legally extends into the administrative workings of the Navy Department. Many navy officers and enlisted men have complained, Navy Department officers said, that McCarl had, in effect, overruled formal naval orders.

McCarl's action, constituting a warning to all Government departments that he intends to force strict compliance with the law in the expenditure of public money, became known through a letter he addressed to the Navy Secretary, in which he asserted that, so long as he ruled on matters within his jurisdiction, his authority under the law, could be questioned by no official of the executive branch of the Government. Provisions of the budget act, in which the office of Comptroller General was created, say specifically that he, as head of the general accounting office, may exercise his powers "without direction from any other officer."

Denby Objects to Ruling.

The controversy over McCarl's authority came to a head through a protest by Secretary Denby against the Comptroller's ruling in a minor case involving the overpayment of an enlisted man. McCarl instructed the Navy Department disbursing officer to get the money back. Denby opposed the action as "interference" within his department, and McCarl sent a letter along which informed the Navy Secretary in part as follows:

"There was no authority in such administrative powers as are given the head of the Navy Department to issue an order annuling a request of this office to protect the fiscal affairs of the United States and which might jeopardize such recovery (of Government money) as the action appears to have been in this case."

Denby's objection to activities of the Comptroller-General was not his first nor the first that had reached the general accounting office from other departments of the Government, but backed by the best counsel in his department, he appeared today to be ready to force a showdown. Informed of the reported intention of the navy chief, McCarl declared he had no thought of abandoning his position.

To Protect Nation's Interests.

"I conceive it to be the duty of every administrative officer," the Comptroller-General, wrote Mr. Denby, "to facilitate action to protect the interests of the United States when matters arise involving erroneous or even doubtful payments.

"This office must perform the duties imposed upon it by law and will undertake promptly to recover back overpayments made by disbursing officers of the Navy Department, or any other branch of the Government in such manner as will best conserve the interests of the United States. It must take such action in the accounts involved as the facts presented may require."

McCarl also informed Denby, however, that if it would be of assistance, the Comptroller's office hereafter would send instructions to the Secretary of the Navy rather than to the persons directly involved. The Secretary, it was explained, would then issue the instructions as formal orders. It was pointed out, however, that the officer issuing orders either in the War or Navy Departments could by law be held strictly responsible for them and to that extent the suggestion, if carried out, might serve to narrow the controversy to the two Government officers.

Responsible to Congress Alone.

Whether an "open war" will continue between the two seemed unlikely, although McCarl's determination to stand his ground did not promise an early compromise. The law provides that the Comptroller's 15-year appointment is subject to termination only by congressional action and McCarl's supporters referred tonight to reports by congressional committees which handled the budget measure which say, in substance, that Congress desired that it alone should control the pulse beat of Federal expenditures, and, therefore, the Comptroller-General was made responsible to Congress alone.

Secretary Fall, prior to his retirement as Interior Department head, encountered the positive stand of the Comptroller-General on several occasions, it was recalled, and half a dozen instances where his decisions had caused a furore among army officers were mentioned. None of these cases, however, developed into controversies of the character of that between Denby and McCarl, and the disposition tonight appeared to be to let the issue be fought out between those two.

WOMEN INDORSE WORLD COURT, BUT REJECT LEAGUE

Convention at Des Moines, in Closing Session, Goes on Record for Enforcement by States of Minimum Wage Scales.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., April 14.—Determination of a specific program of activities and the distribution of these activities throughout the year for each of the state and local bodies of the National League of Women Voters was discussed at the post-convention session of the Executive Council of the league this afternoon, following adjournment of the fourth annual convention at noon today.

Dates are to be set for special application to the work of the department of education for a membership campaign and other details of the plan of work adopted by the convention proper. No meeting place for the 1924 convention will be selected until an examination of all of the cities which have extended invitations for the assembly has been made by the league's board of directors.

Urge Minimum Wage Scales.

The convention went formally on record as favoring the world court indorsed by President Harding and Secretary Hughes, refused its sanction to the League of Nations, expressed appreciation of the new recognition of women in the diplomatic service and urged the states now operating minimum wage scales to continue enforcement of these laws pending action by women of the nation to effect a return to Federal control of this matter.

The convention declined to give the necessary two-thirds vote with which to force the resolutions committee to report out for floor consideration a resolution dealing with the Government policy toward the American Indian.

A last word for the League of Nations was voiced to the convention today by Philip Baker, secretary to Lord Robert Cecil, who elaborated the brief references made by Lord Robert Friday night to the accomplishment of the league in the elimination of international traffic in woman and children.

ROBBER WOUNDED IN HOLDUP, DIES

Thought to Have Been Struck by Companion's Bullet in Fight; Accomplice Confesses.

Joseph Dritsch, 35 years old, of 725 Shenandoah avenue, who, with an armed companion, attempted to hold up the confectionery of William Link, 2400 South Tenth street, Friday night and was shot in a revolver duel between his companion and a guest of the store proprietor, died last night at the City Hospital.

It is presumed that one of his companion's bullets struck him. It grazed his heart.

Shortly after being found, two blocks from the scene of the holdup, Dritsch confessed participation, and named Harry Snodgrass, 27, of 2109 South Eighth street, a musician, as his companion. Snodgrass was arrested, and confessed also. He blamed 17 drinks of "moonshine" whisky for the attempted holdup. He had never been in any sort of trouble before, he said.

When Dritsch and Snodgrass entered the confectionery, Link and Samuel F. Lee, 24, of 2413A South Thirteenth street, were in a rear room. Link went forward in response to the tinkling of a bell on the door. Mrs. Link, upstairs, feared a holdup because of the lateness of the hour. Peering through a glass in a door in the rear of the store, she observed one man pointing a revolver at her husband. She obtained a revolver, and, summoning Lee, handed it to him. He entered the store and opened fire, firing four shots. Snodgrass fired four shots in reply and one of them is presumed to have struck Dritsch.

ATTRIBUTES ACT IN SHOOTING NEGRO TO NERVOUSNESS

Woman Witness in Creed Murder Case Says She Has Been Threatened and Called "Snitch."

Issuance of warrants yesterday, charging assault with intent to kill and carrying a concealed weapon, against Edna Brooks, material witness for the State in the case of Thomas and Robert Creed, brothers, charged with killing Patrolman George Geisler Oct. 31, 1920, relieved officials of anxiety as to her availability as a witness in the retrial of the Creed case.

The first trial of the Creed brothers before Circuit Judge Hall resulted in a verdict of life imprisonment for each. That verdict was set aside by the State Supreme Court last Monday and the case remanded for trial. The Supreme Court based its reversal on error in the trial court, mentioning particularly that a statement made by Edna Brooks to police should not have been presented to the jury as it was made under duress.

Her Testimony at Trial.

Her testimony at the first trial was in line with the statement made to police. She told that she was in a saloon at 2100 Clark avenue, drinking whisky with the Creed brothers. The patrolman entered and an altercation began. She said Robert Creed covered the policeman with a revolver while Robert took the officer's weapon from him. The brothers then forced Geisler into a room at the rear of the saloon, she said. She said that she ran into the rear room a few seconds later to find Policeman Geisler with his hands above his head and his shirt open. The Creeds were in front of him with drawn revolvers, she said. She testified that she asked them not to shoot the officer but that they fired as she spoke. Geisler staggered through the saloon and fell upon the sidewalk in front.

When the Supreme Court opinion was announced officials did not know Edna Brooks' address and were uncertain whether she could be located. Without her testimony conviction of the Creeds would be very difficult, officials say.

Officials say she was an unwilling witness at the first trial. After an extended search she was found on a farm at Naples, Ill., making preparations to go to Florida.

Charged With Shooting Negro.

The warrants were issued following her arrest Friday at Beaumont and Lucas avenues by policemen investigating the shooting two hours previously of John Holloway, a negro, of 3156 Easton avenue in front of 1018 North Twenty-first street. Holloway was shot in the left leg just above the ankle. He said he had never seen the woman who fired the shot before and that she walked away rapidly as he fell to the sidewalk.

Police obtained a good description of the woman from Holloway and other witnesses and traced her to Beaumont and Lucas. When arrested she carried an automatic pistol in her coat pocket. There were three loaded cartridges in the chamber.

She was identified as Edna Brooks at the Dayton Street Police Station. She said that she had fired at random and that her action was due to nervousness because of threats made by her former friends since the Creed case has again been brought before the public.

Called "Snitch," She Says.

She told police that she has been called a "snitch" and that efforts have been made to induce her to leave the city before the Creed case is again called. She said she had been threatened with bodily harm if she does testify. She told policemen, however, that she has no intention of leaving and will repeat her previous statements regarding the case.

It is expected that bond for her release under the warrants issued yesterday will be made so high as to insure that she will not leave the city before she is wanted as a witness in the murder case. In recent years cases of carrying concealed weapons bond of $2500 has been required.

ROBBERS LOOKING FOR $10,000 GET ONLY $300

Payroll of Construction Company Had Been Left in Bank.

Burglars who are believed to have expected to find a $10,000 payroll, obtained $300 in cash and an automatic pistol Friday night in the offices of the McKelvey Construction Co. at 911-15 Title Guaranty Trust Building, Seventh and Chestnut streets.

William H. Smith, president, said yesterday that it formerly was the company's practice to make up its weekly payroll in cash on Friday and to deposit the money in the company's two safes on Friday night for distribution Saturday.

However, he said, upon discovery that insurance policies held did not cover money in the safes, the company changed its practice and now makes up its payroll on Friday at a downtown bank, placing the money in the bank's vault.

The burglars manipulated the combination of one of the safes and knocked off the combination of the other. They left behind six pints of liquor. Entrance was gained by "jimmying" a transom.

Ardmore, Pa., April 11, 1923

To the Citizens of St. Louis:

The Autocar Company, in opening its new Direct Factory Branch building in St. Louis for occupation by Autocar Sales and Service Company of Missouri, desires to make this public acknowledgment to many St. Louis firms and individuals to whom a deep appreciation is felt for the patronage which they have given to our St. Louis Branch during the past five years.

Before we had been in St. Louis three years, this growing volume of patronage convinced us of the desirability of becoming a permanent part of the St. Louis industrial life and caused us to buy the land at the corner of Locust Street and Leffingwell Avenue, on which we have erected and thoroughly equipped our new sales and service station.

This new building would have been built 18 months ago had it not been for the serious business depression which was then prevailing throughout the country.

We further wish to state that from such observation as we have been able to make, we are confident that the steady growth and increasing prosperity in St. Louis afford an unusual opportunity for the successful continuation of the motor truck business.

We wish to assure the business interests in and around St. Louis that it is our purpose and determination to do everything in our power to decrease their costs of transportation and thus to continue our constructive contribution to the growth and prosperity of the city.

We cordially invite our present customers and all users and owners of any other motor trucks, as well as everyone else who requires or is interested in economical transportation, to visit our new building at 2740 Locust Street.

BROWNS DEFEAT CARDINALS 3-0; RICKEY'S SLUGGERS HELPLESS

Pikers Divide Double Bill Against Ames

Levy's Wildness and Errors Give Visitors Openers, 4—3, While Locals Capture Second, 4—2.

WASHINGTON HURLERS ALLOW BUT 4 HITS

Southpaw Bremser, in Addition to Pitching Great Ball, Hits Home Run That Decides Contest.

The Piker and Ames baseball teams, opening their Missouri Valley Conference schedules at Francis Field yesterday afternoon, divided a closely-fought double-header, Ames winning the first game, 4 to 3, and Washington the final, 4 to 2. Both contests were seven innings.

Both games brought to light interesting situations. Ames won the first game in spite of the fact that Levy allowed the visitors but two hits, both in the first inning. However, he walked seven batters, which, coupled with errors at crucial moments, cost the Pikers the contest.

The Pikers' victory in the second half of the twin bill was largely due to the efforts of Bill Bremser, Washington's southpaw pitching ace. Bremser allowed the Cyclones only two safeties in seven innings, and to top off his day's work he hit a home run to end the game.

The visitors got a flying start in the first inning by scoring three runs. Levy started trouble for himself by walking George, the first batter to face him. Mennough's sacrifice, singles by Jacobson and Runkle, followed by errors on the part of Quinn and Magualo, produced the markers.

Branch's Double Ties Score.

Washington came back in the second inning and scored two runs on hits by Mudd, Gragg and Quinn, and Wolff's error, and in the sixth inning evened the score when Gragg walked, reached second on a passed ball and scored on Branch's double to center.

Ames won the game in the seventh inning without making a hit. Levy again started the trouble by walking Wolff and Whittaker. Wolff attempted to steal third and when Gragg made a bad throw to catch him, the runner scored what proved the winning run.

The Pikers started the second contest by scoring a run in each of the first two innings. An error by Runkle, a stolen base, walk and clean hits by Magualo and Roberts accounted for the runs.

In the fourth inning Ames scored. Mennough was safe when Gragg dropped the third strike and th umpire, standing hebind the plate, accidentally kicked the ball away from him. Bierbaum singled the runner to second from where he scored when Bremser walked the next two batters.

Bremser Raps Out Homer.

The visitors tied the score in the sixth. Jacobson also reached first when the catcher missed the third strike. He advanced on Quinn's error on Runkle's hard-hit grounder and scored on a fielder's choice on Greer's slow roller.

With the score tied, Clauson walked Quinn to start the last of the fatal seventh. Bremser, the next batter, caught Clauson's first offering on the end of his bat and knocked it on a line over the rightfield fence for a home run, ending the game. It easily cleared the fence in spite of a strong wind blowing against it.

Pruett and Pfeffer Probable Hurlers in Second Spring Game

LITTLE left-hander and big right-hander will be pitching opponents this afternoon in the second and last game of the abbreviated spring series between the Browns and Cardinals. Hubert Pruett, sensational young southpaw, who achieved much fame last year by making Babe Ruth look like a strikeout king, will try to make it two straight for the Browns. Big Jeff Pfeffer, veteran right-hand cross-fire artist, who probably will open the National League campaign for the Rickeymen, will be on the mound for them this after noon.

If fair weather continues the game probably will attract a crowd that will tax the capacity of Sportsman's Park. Last year the Sunday game between the two St. Louis clubs broke all local baseball records by attracting more than 29,500 persons. There is as much interest in the teams this year, despite the absence of the great George Sisler. Play will start at 3 o'clock, with the Cardinals acting as the home team, while the Browns will wear their traveling uniforms. Moran of the National League and Holmes of the American, will be the umpires.

Montana Legion Opens an Attack On Jack Dempsey

Former Soldiers Say Champion Is "Better Riveter Than Warrior in Time of Stress."

By the Associated Press.

HELENA, Mont., April 14.—Objection to Jack Dempsey ever fighting in Montana was telegraphed from Helena today by C. O. Lamport, State Adjudant of the American Legion, acting on authority of the executive committee to Jack Kearns, manager for Dempsey, Mike Collins, manager for Tom Gibbons, and Loy Molumby, State Commander of the legion, who were scheduled to be in Salt Lake City today to negotiate for the proposed fight between Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby, Mont., July 4.

The telegram follows:

"This is to inform you that the American Legion Department of Montana, is not now and never has been a party to the negotiations which Commander Loy J. Molumby is carrying on which, if successful would bring Jack Dempsey to Montana for the purpose of staging a prize fight. We admire Tom Gibbons and this is no reflection on him, but our attitude toward Dempsey is unchanged. We believe him a good man with his fists but in time of national stress, a better riveter than warrior. The executive committee of the Department of Montana had withheld comment, striving to protect its commander, but his disregard of the committee has forced this declaration. If Dempsey never comes to Montana that is soon enough. We are unqualifiedly opposed to the promotion of any prize fight in Montana with Jeck Dempsey as one of the participants."

Chances for Bout Bright.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 14.—The possibility of a 15-round match at Shelby, Mont., next July 4, between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion and Tom Gibbons are declared to be exceedingly bright as a result of a conference held here today by Jack Kearns and Mike Collins representing the Montana American Legion. Kearns after a meeting at noon, left Salt Lake City for California, and announced that he would return to Salt Lake City next week and again would take up proposals for the bout.

Yeatman Defeats Central, 5-4; Soldan Beats Cleveland in Ninth

North End Team Surprises by Whipping Mike Walker's Nine—Stremmel Stars on the Pitching Mound—Cleveland's Best Pitcher Injured, Unable to Work.

Two exciting games of high-school baseball was the reward tendered the 800 fans who attended the double bill staged at High School Field yesterday. Yeatman High proved a surprisingly well-balanced nine and humbled the charges of Mike Walker of Central by a 5-to-4 count.

In the second contest Cleveland, crippled by the loss of Reinhardt, star twirler, who split his finger in practice before the game, and H. Beck, the third sacker who is crippled with an infected foot, gave the 1921 champion Soldan aggregation a neck and neck battle, forcing the fight to the last inning before the West End team put across the winning count for a 6 to 5 victory.

Real Pitching Duel.

The Central-Yeatman game was a duel of pitching. Runs counted by both teams were largely the result of misplays in the field. Stremmel, the North End ace, by striking out eight and walking five, captured honors from "Red" Colligan, the Central boxman, who passed six and fanned four. Both pitchers allowed seven hits, three of the Yeatman total being doubles and two of the Red and Black sum counting for two sacks.

Central scored in the opening frame, getting one run on two walks and two steals coupled with infield outs. Yeatman tied matters in the second when Stremmel singled after two men had received free transportation. Central went into the lead in the third when Thomas doubled after Steiner had dropped Williamson's long fly to left. The Red and Black increased its advantage in the sixth. A walk to Thomas, Kutterer's single to left, Dunkman's tap over first and Hannegan's fumble of Stremmel's toss gave the Walkerites two.

Yeatman tied the score by counting three times in the seventh. A double by Scroghan, an infield hit and a

Vangilder and Shocker Allow Foes 5 Safeties; Robertson Hits Homer

Sherdel Fools Fohlmen With Slow Ball for a Time, but Eventually They Clout Him From the Hurling Hill.

By J. Roy Stockton,

Cold weather, the absence of George Sisler, the presence of two new men in the battle front, and the necessity of facing left-handed pitching—slow left-handed pitching at that—might have been expected to completely demoralize the Brownies yesterday afternoon. Certainly a greater combination of untoward incidents and circumstances scarcely could have been prepared by a devilish stage manager.

And yet those Brownies, those Sislerless Fohlmen, with all the advance indications absolutely against them, went out there on the green field they call Sportsman's Park and played most brilliantly to defeat the Cardinals in the first game of the abbreviated spring series.

Not an error did Cedric Durst, the new first baseman, commit. Not once did a groan arise from the stands because George Sisler was not out there guarding the first sack. And when the cold evening came and the 17,000 spectators departed there was much satisfaction. Perhaps the future of the Browns was not as black as some singers of the blues had painted it. Perhap there still remained sufficient material of major league caliber to keep the Browns in the fight for an American League pennant.

An Errorless Ball Game.

Certainly the team looked good yesterday. Not only did the green Cedric Durst play errorless ball but every Brownie did the same. The game was between the Cardinals and Browns, as all know full well, but it was more than that. Cedric Durst and Eugene Robertson, the two new men in the Brownie battle front, were on exhibition. Every eye was on them. And they were critical eyes. What eyes could be anything but critical when they have seen the graceful Sisler cavort hither and yon around first base?

And yet the most critical had to admit when the game was over that in Cedric Durst and Gene Robertson the Brownie had found two potential gems. And those two recruits were cheered again and again. The great tragedy, the loss of Sisler, seemed to throw a mantle of companionship over the stands. There no longer were rabid Cardinal fans and rabid Brownie fans. All were out there hoping that the loss of Sisler, temporary or permanent, did not mean that St. Louis had lost a promising pennant contender. And the consensus after the game was that the Browns still were a great ball club; that St. Louis still had a fine chance to stay in the fight for the championship.

Durst Changing His Batting Style.

Durst did not do so well at bat. But he proved one thing. He showed that he was ready to obey orders, ready to sacrifice anything to overcome faults which stand in the way of his progress. Even with 17,000 spectators in the stands he stood up there and batted as he had been told to bat, even if he did strike out three times as a result.

Durst's one great batting fault is that he has been hitting the ball "behind him." That means that he fails to time his swing properly. Before he meets the ball it has passed a point directly in front of him. To hit a ball hard it is necessary to hit it "out in front." And that is what he is trying to do. He will overcome his weakness and when he does he will be better than a .300 hitter.

Brownies Surprise by Bombarding Bill Sherdel for Eleven Safeties

The outcome of the game was directly opposite to what was expected. The Cardinals, who had been warming the fences all through the spring, were picked to maul the Brownie pitchers, while the Browns, who failed to hit their weight in the south, would be helpless, it was said, against the left-handed shoots of Bill Sherdel.

But Vangilder and Shocker held the Cardinals to five safeties, while the Browns collected 11 sound raps off Bill Sherdel in seven innings and won the game, 3 to 0.

Vangilder started and gave an excellent exhibition. In the five frames he worked only two singles were made by the Rickeymen. He gave one base on balls. Shocker pitched the last four frames and was touched for a double in the eighth and two singles in the ninth.

The Mistakes of Sherdel.

Sherdel can blame himself for his defeat. He used his slow ball too frequently and in the pinch fielded his position carelessly. He had the Brownies swinging so helplessly, so ludicrously, that he had to snicker himself. The stands were roaring with laughter at the efforts of the Fohlmen to connect. And then Sherdel overworked his great asset until it became a liability.

Little William's downfall came in the fifth inning. With one out, Robertson popped a single to right, too far in for Jack Smith and too far out for Hornsby. The hit and run was called for and Clemons outguessed the Browns. He called for a pitchout and Robertson was caught trying to reach second. Gerber tried to save Robbie by throwing his bat at the ball, but the pitch was too wide to even be fouled. Gerber then contributed his third straight single, a hot bounder which Stock knocked down but could not recover in time for a play. It was a slow ball that Gerber pickled.

Tobin sent a single whistling past Hornsby and Gerber, by a great slide, reached third. Though this brought up the great Kenny Williams there was no great stir among the Cardinals. Kenny is not bad medicine for southpaws ordinarily and against Sherdel he had looked impotent on his previous time at bat. But it is one thing to make a batter hit a puny tap and it is another thing to turn that same tap into a putout.

A Run on a Scratch Hit.

Williams could not hit Sherdel solidly. The best he could do was a polite bounder which any self respecting shortstop or an agile pitcher could have handled with ease. The shortstop, young Howard Freigau, was ready to do the handling and with ease. But Sherdel realized too late that an agile pitcher also should have handled the tap. And so figuring better late than not at all Bill lunged for the bounding ball. But he was an inch or so too late. He reached the ball with his gloved hand and deflected it out of the reach of the in-rushing Freigau. The ball continued on its dribbling way toward short, Gerber raced home, Tobin raced to second and Williams hobbled to first base, safe with a scratch hit on his record.

That run alone was enough to win the game. But Sherdel made it cer-

Race Meets on the Metropolitan Circuit Will Attract Most of Horses Eligible for the Derby

Majority of Good Three-Year-Olds Will Leave Winter Quarters for Big Features at Jamaica, Belmont, Havre de Grace and Maryland.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 14.—The opening of racing on the Metropolitan Circuit the first part of May will bring out of winter quarters a majority of the best 3-year-olds that are due to engage in the big features for that age in the East and the Derby and other stakes in the West.

The Whitney horses will journey from Red Bank, N. J., and the Rancocas Stable will also ship from their training grounds in the same State to Jamaica.

Enchantment, winner of the Jockey Club stakes, and Harry Payne Whitney's main reliance in the derby enjoying at the present time, the coveted position of antipost favorite, will probably sport silk for the first time this year at Jamaica.

Zev, the best of the Rancocas stable's youngsters last year, Bud Lerner, Alladin and Rigel, all eligible to the classic will participate in the meeting to start the Metropolitan circuit going.

Gifford A. Cochran's Goshawk, which was a member of the Harry Payne Whitney band of juveniles last year and changed hands for $50,000, will more than likely be a starter at Jamaica.

Cherry Pie and others of the Green Tree stable's derby candidates will get an early start in spring racing and with this aggregation of turf stars competing in stakes and purses, a good line can be gained on their qualifications for the greatest three-year-old feature of 1923.

Quota From Belmont Park.

Belmont Park will contribute its quota of thoroughbreds that have put in the winter at that track and there will be hotly contested stakes and purses during the meeting.

Havre de Grace, which opens the middle of this month, will get a goodly number of the three-year-olds, especially those that have trained in Maryland and Virginia.

The offerings at the Maryland track will afford an opportunity for such noted two-year-old performers as Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sally's Alley, Sunference and Sun Fey. J. S. Cosden's Martingale and Dunlin to get in action.

The Audley Farm's three-year-olds of which Dan E. O'Sullivan is the best, will be on hand to engage in the racing.

The Nevada Stock Farm's General Thatcher will be given an opportunity to demonstrate whether he will relish a route of ground in some of the races at Havre de Grace, where Trainer Preston M. Burch intends to put the finishing touches to the colt's preparation for the derby engagement.

Maryland will be well represented in three-year-old races by candidates for the Kentucky derby and a race under the belt of any of the eligibles to the big race will be equal to three of the most strenuous workouts that a trainer can give his charge.

Many Systems of Betting.

The 145 eligibles to the derby have caused speculation on the probable outcome of the event to reach fever heat. New Yorker's are indulging in more different wagering systems than ever before caught their fancy. One of the popular combinations offered by the "layers" is allowing the choosing of any 10 of the entrants and then laying even money that the bettor will not have the winner.

The proposition that you could not even pick a horse that would be a starter, pay or play, has been hammered down from 5 to 1 in the last 10 days to 3 to 1 at the present time.

Betting on Event Widely Scattered, With Enchantment Quoted at 10 to 1

The open aspect of the event has caused a widely scattered play and the favorite, Enchantment, is still quoted at 10 to 1 straight, 5 to 1 place and 3 to 1 to show.

The report that August Belmont's Messenger would not be a starter is not taken seriously in New York as he has been backed heavily.

Gifford A. Cochrane's Goshawk dropped from 25-8 and 4, to 15-6-4. Dunlin's price has recently dropped from 25 to 1 to 20 to 1, and the saying goes that his owner, J. S. Cosden, has placed a large commission on him. General Thatcher is still quoted at 30-15-8 despite the fact of his good showing the first time out under colors at Bowie.

Lester Doctor is reported to have sent $1000 across the board on Cherry Pie, but he is still 20-8-4.

The Rancocas stable's Zev has been pounded down from 29 to 1 to 12 to 1. Little Celt has received a steady play and has dropped from 50-25-12 to 20-10-5.

Purse Will Be Worth $70,000.

The number confidently expected to start in the race on May 19 is placed at 25, and with $50,000 added by the Jockey Club, the gold trophy of $7500, and the entrance and starting fees will make the purse worth in the neighborhood of $70,000.

"I have not decided yet whether I will take a number of my horses advanced in their training to Maryland or race them at Lexington," said John S. Ward. "Donges may start in the Preakness. I believe I can get him fit for that race. I have several 2-year-olds ready, but they have been working pretty hard and I don't know but that I will let them fill up some before racing them."

That Donges has trained satisfactorily is the opinion of all who have been observing the son of Celt in his preparation for the season's campaign. With a few more "works" he is ready to go to the races. Ward is an experienced and expert conditioner, one who does not believe in "leaving a horse's race on the track." He has never given Donges any real fast trials. Three quarters around 1:16 and miles around 1:45 are the fastest "works" recorded on him by local clockers. While Donges is not a large colt, he is compactly built on the style of Ben Brush. He is deep through the quarters, however, and can unquestionably carry weight over a route of ground. This he proved as a 2-year-old, when he won approximately $45,000 for Ward in stakes and purses.

About In Memoriam.

Trainer George Land says he will move the Weidemann stable from Douglas Park over to Churchill Downs some time next week. "I want to give In Memoriam his final preparation for the derby over the track on which the big race will be decided. You know there is a great deal of difference in the going at these two tracks. In Memoriam has done everything I have asked of him and I believe he is the best horse I ever trained. He can carry weight and run far, and that you know, is the only kind which has a chance to win a derby," declared Land.

"Prince K. is ready to run a mile right now in 1:40," remarked a smart horseman just after the son of Mont d'Or had breezed three-eights in :35 in preparation for a fast workout.

"That colt can fly and unless Trainer Marshall makes the mistake of overtraining him, he's going to be a hard horse for the crack 3-year-olds to beat this spring."

"Prince K. is going fine and will be ready to place a few races under his belt at Lexington. He should be able to win the first crack out of the box unless he should meet too stiff company. With a little racing under colors Prince K. should be there or thereabouts at the derby's finish," expressed another observer who knows a "hawk from a band-saw."

Lewis to Defend Mat Title Against Pesek at Kansas City, May 2

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 14.

ED "STRANGLER" LEWIS, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, has been matched to meet John Pesek of Ravena, Neb., at Convention Hall here May 2, Gabe Kauffman, local promoter, announced tonight.

Lewis is scheduled to meet Wallace Iugid at Nashville, Tenn., next Monday night.

BROWNS DEFEAT CARDS IN FIRST SERIES GAME

tain by throwing more slow balls. He had made a monkey out of McManus twice with his slow ball. Once McManus had sent the ball rolling to the pitching box and the next time he had struck out, trying to murder a poor innocent slow ball.

This time McManus was fighting mad. He was not wary. He was mad. He pleaded for that slow ball. He set himself, swung and missed and set himself again. And Sherdel gave him another. Marty timed his swing perfectly and lined a single to left, scoring Tobin. The slow ball had been pitched too often.

In the seventh inning Gene Robertson made many friends and one run for the Browns by slamming a four-bagger into the right field bleachers. In the same frame Gerber picked on a slow ball, timed his swing and placed a single in left. If Sherdel had pitched a few more innings the Browns would have knocked him out of the park, so carelessly had he pitched his slow ball.

Heine Mueller Hits a Double.

Hornsby got one of the five Cardinal hits, a hot grounder which caromed off Shocker's glove. Heine Mueller, who batted for Sherdel in the eighth got the only extra base swat. Heine slammed a line drive down the left field line for two bases.

Excellent fielding and a close decision in which Umpire Moran favored the Browns, stopped a threatening Cardinal rally in the ninth inning. Hornsby opened the frame with his scratch hit off Shocker's glove and raced to third on Bottomley's line drive to left. Williams fielded the ball in a hurry and made a fine throw to Robertson. Hornsby appeared to have the throw beaten, but Umpire Moran was on top of the play and called Rogers out. Bottomley reached second on the drive and had Hornsby been called safe the whole complexion of the game might have been changed, as nobody was out at the time.

Holmes, a new American League umpire, worked behind the plate and there were many complaints over his calling of balls and strikes.

It was a remarkably good crowd, considering the weather. Sun seats in the bleachers were popular, both right and left field stands being well filled. No official statement as to the attendance was given out, but it was said at the Browns' office that more than 17,000 persons paid.

The temporary box seats behind first and third have been left standing, while those behind the plate have been removed. New timber braces have been placed in the bleachers and all rotten wood torn out, at the request of the Building Commissioner. The outfield was a bit heavy after the long rain, but the infield showed that Groundskeeper Bill Stockslek had had a busy winter. Otherwise it was the same Sportsman's Park which proved to be so pitifully small last fall during that lamentable Yankee series.

Leonard and Dempsey Are Only Champions With Secure Crowns

Eugene Criqui One of Most Likely Winners of Titles and Jimmy Wilde a Possibility—The Big Fellows Furnishing Interesting Series Wherein Champion Is in but Slight Danger.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1923.)

The summer of 1923 is going to see the greatest boom in boxing in all the history of the sport. Championship matches are already scheduled in nearly all classes, and when the open air season is over we are likely to see a few new world's champions.

One of the most likely winners of titles is Eugene Criqui of France, the great bantam and featherweight who is now invading America in expectation of meeting Johnny Kilbane in a match for the feather crown.

Nearly all followers of boxing in America have heard of Criqui, but he is generally thought of as a French boxer who has beaten a bunch of English boxers and who will be a novice against Kilbane and our experienced glove slingers.

Criqui is anything but a novice. He began fighting in France and England in 1910. He is now nearly 30 years old, havig been born August 15, 1893. This is considered almost too old to fight in the featherweight class. But Kilbane is 34, born in April, 1889.

Criqui did a lot of fighting before the war and was known as a very fast, clever boxer who occasionally slipped over an unexpected knockout.

Criqui's "Synthetic" Jaw.

He fought all through the war in the French army, was wounded several times, and decorated for feats of valor at the front. Patched up by the army surgeons, Criqui has an artificially built-up jaw, part of the jawbone having been shot away in battle. Gene went right back to the ring as soon as he could when the war was over.

He knocked out a long list of opponents and lost a couple of decisions—one to Pal Moore and one to Tommy Noble. Visiting Australia, he astonished the natives by beating their best feathers and lightweights, and cleaned up among the Filipino fighters who were doing very well until he appeared. He defeated Dencio Cabanela—in Australia considered a coming world's lightweight champion—and beat Sylvio Jamito, one of the most remarkable little fellows developed in the Philippines and at least as capable a fighter as Pancho Villa.

Last year Criqui knocked out Charlie Ledoux, the sturdy French featherweight, in a round; knocked out Ben Callicott, in three; stopped Joe Fox, English champion, in 12; knocked out Arthur Wyms of England in 12 and Billy Matthews, in 17.

Criqui has a peculiar style of his own, speed, craft and a clean knockout punch. As he has been fighting often and is in his best form this year he should have a very fair chance to beat Kilbane, who has held the title with very few matches in recent years.

Big Purse Lures Wilde.

Another first-class little fellow from overseas who may add something to his reputation and will pad his bank account considerably in America this year is Jimmy Wilde of England, world's flyweight champion, who is matched with Villa and may fight Genaro, too.

Wilde is a wonderful boxer and has been a great champion in his class, he is a ring veteran. He was world's champion long before the war. The flyweight class originated in England—or the name did—and Wilde was the greatest little fellow ever seen in England, where the little men seem to have all the class.

He knocked out several American boxers who went over to beat him, and did it easily.

Leonard Planning Campaign.

Benny Leonard will start another active season after a long rest—and it may be his last as a lightweight. The toughest rival Benny will have on his trail is Tendler, but he will probably take an easier opponent at first and leave the Philadelphian for a big money bout late in the season.

The most interesting situation, of course, is among the heavyweights. Firpo is being boosted and eased along to be matched with Dempsey before many months, and will not be stacked against anyone who might tip him over and spoil a big gate.

There are great advertising possibilities in the Argentine giant. He is a husky big fellow—but a novice as a boxer. He has little beside size and strength and a tough jaw. When Jack Dempsep was working his way up to the championship he fought as often as he could, and Jack Kearns picked the toughest men he could find.

Floyd Johnson, who is to box Willard at the Yankee Ball Park May 12, probably before the biggest fight chowd on record, is much more dangerous than Firpo, but isn't attracting as much attention.

He'll crowd Firpo out of the limelight if he topples big Jess for a 10 count. That won't worry the promoters. It'll just make another good match—Firpo and Johnson—and the winner for Dempsey for the biggest gate of all.

Or if Willard should make a sensational showing he might take Firpo and then Dempsey. Any way it happens, there are at least three matches in sight—or four, if Wills-Dempsey is added—that will look a lot better on paper than the Dempsey-Carpentier fight which cracked all sporting gate records a couple of years ago. The promoters can't lose!

As for the chance that Dempsey won't be champion when next Christmas rolls around—that's hardly worth comment.

Today Dempsey is an experienced champion, and one of the most perfect fighting machines ever seen in his class. Firpo is a novice and is almost too old to learn. Johnson has the stuff, but needs another year of experience. Willard and Wills are both past their prime and dangerous only because of their advantage in bulk.

Which isn't always an advantage against Dempsey. The big one hit hard.

Tigers Smothered by Nebraska, 10-1

Sixteen Hits, Including Two Home Runs, Garnered Off Missouri Pitcher.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 14.—The heavy hitting Nebraska University baseball team slugged its way to a 10 to 1 victory over Missouri here this afternoon, gaining 16 hits, including two home runs, a pair of three base hits and a double.

Nebraska, scoring six runs in the first, one in the second and two in the fifth, had an overwhelming lead before the Missouri hitters found Peterson, the visiting hurler, for their first single, a smash through third by Bunker in the fourth. The Tigers' only run came in the eighth after three weak innings by Peterson in which the Tigers had little difficulty in putting men on base but were unable to send them across the plate.

Ficklin, who started for Missouri yesterday, and was batted out of the box after an inning and a third of the Nebraska barrage, pitched the entire game for the Tigers today, and was freely hammered by the visitors.

EDDIE HELD WILL BE INELIGIBLE FOR PUBLIC LINKS TITLE TOURNEY

Eddie Held, National public links champion, will not defend his title in the tournament to be held this season. He has become a member of the Algonquin Golf Club and is therefore ineligible to compete again for the public links title.

Held apparently is a better player this year than ever before. He is hitting the ball harder and getting greater distance out of his drives. As a member of the Algonquin Club he is expected to compete in a majority of the big tournaments of the year.

St. Louis will have several prominent entrants in State, sectional and national events in State Champion R. E. Bockenkamp, District Champion C. L. Wolff, former State Champion Jimy Manion, Eddie Held and others.

Kaiser Offered Return Go With Frankie Osner at Armory; Sharpe To Referee, Is Club's Condition

Business Men's Athletic Association Stands Back of Its Official and Will Continue to Use Him as Long as Commission Issues Him a License.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Harry Cook, matchmaker for the Business Men's Athletic Association, which promotes ring contests at the First Regiment Armory, yesterday stated that he hoped to arrange a return match between Johnny ("Peewee") Kaiser and Frankie Osner for the club's next feature. Osner already has signed.

Kaiser told the Post-Dispatch last night that he had not heard from the club, but that he thought the offer would be favorably considered by his managers, when it was put up to them. Peewee has a bout scheduled for next Wednesday night at the Armory, where he will box Harry "Battling" Leonard, a tough New York bantam who gave Johnny a hard bout in the East, some months ago. They fought 12 rounds to a draw.

The local bantams fought into the sixth round here, last week, with Kaiser having a slight shade when Referee Sharpe, after repeated warnings, disqualified Peewee for refusing to obey orders.

Three city boxing commissioners were present and agreed to allow Kaiser to receive his end of the purse despite the disqualification. Last Friday, at a meeting of four members of the commission, Chairman Harry Uhlemeyer, without dissent from other members of the commission, censured Sharpe for what he termed premature action in disqualifying Kaiser in the Osner bout. Uhlemeyer stated that Sharpe erred in not consulting members of the commission present before disqualifying Kaiser and added that if Sharpe ever repeated such a ruling he (Uhlemeyer) would order the club holding the bouts to refund the spectators' their money.

Club Backs Up Sharpe.

Harry Cook of the B. M. A. A., when asked if Sharpe would be retained as referee for the club in view of the commission's attitude, said:

"Sharpe stands for what we think is the best in boxing. As long as the commission recognizes Sharpe's license, we expect to use him in our shows.

"When Sharpe accepted the post of referee for our club he told us that the rules would be enforced to the letter and we accepted his ideas. Sharpe has done nothing to change our views. We are ready to try the match over again under the same conditions and feel sure that Kaiser need not fear to encounter a prejudiced referee.

"The commission has said it would order money refunded in case Sharpe again disqualified a boxer for offenses similar to that which terminated the Osner-Kaiser bout. We are not sure their own rules give the commission that authority and would certainly contest, in event of such a confiscation of receipts.

"Boxers are duly warned before our bouts. Sharpe warns them during the course of contests, when they offend. It is when they wilfully disobey orders, after repeated warnings, that boxers must expect disqualification.

Commission Violated Own Orders.

It was pointed out today by those acquainted with boxing conditions here, that the commission had apparently erred in reprimanding Sharpe and had violated its own rules by paying Kaiser his share of the purse.

This view was based on section No. 5 (a), of the form of agreement which the commission orders clubs to use in signing boxers for contests. Three copies of such agreements are made and signed, one for the club, one for the commission and one for the boxer.

Section No. 5 (a) of the commission's authorized agreement reads as follows, according to a copy in possession of the Post-Dispatch:

> 5. (a)—The referee may also for cause declare either party for said exhibition disqualified, in which event said party shall not receive any part of the compensation agreed upon.

The commission requested local clubs to discontinue former forms of contract and use the one including the above clause. According to this form referees are not only empowered to disqualify for cause, but the commission is obligated by its own agreement form to support his disqualification by withholding the disqualified man's pay.

The boxing commission is made up of the following members: Alderman Harry Uhlemeyer, who formerly promoted boxing events for the South Broadway Athletic Club, Robert Newman, of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., James Moran, manager of a piano company, E. E. Butler, lawyer, Henry Klareman, Chairman of the Committee of Public Safety, Major Horace Rumsey and Mayor Kiel. The commission is acting without salary, under an ordinance passed in Dec. 1921.

Uhlemeyer is the only member of the commission who has had practical experience in the boxing game.

Kabakoff Matched to Fight Redcap Wilson At Coliseum, April 24

MATT SOFFKA, of the Angelica Athletic Club, announced last night that the club's next feature would be a 10-round no-decision bout between Harry Kabakoff of St. Louis and "Redcap" Wilson, of New York. The event will be the feature of the club's next show at the Coliseum, April 24.

"Redcap" Wilson fought here about a year ago against Johnny Noye and displayed good form. He has been boxing frequently in New York and has won his last eight fights by knockouts, according to reports the club has received.

YEATMAN AND SOLDAN VICTORS IN OPENING OF HIGH SCHOOL SEASON

walk allowed three to score as Williamson at short for Central allowed Hannegan's hot punch to short to roll between his legs. The North End crew came back in the eighth with another run, which proved to be the winning marker of the game. Steiner singled and was advanced by Engler's perfect sacrifice and scored a moment later when Soroghan hit to the right field wall for a double.

Both pitchers were in hot water during the majority of the game but with the exception of the above cases succeeded in pitching out of the holes.

Cleveland Fights Hard.

Excitement ruled until the closing inning of the second game. The Cleveland hopes were shattered when Reinhardt and Beck were disabled, but the Carondelet aggregation put up a real fight. Schulenberg was Bert Fenega's choice for the mound. The recruit twirled great ball until the fourth inning, not allowing Coach White's men to gain a single hit in the opening three innings. The West Enders came in with vengeance in the fourth. Branconier, the first man up, ripled, Rawdon duplicated the feat, Stanford beat out an infield roller, Beck relieved Schulenberg and after allowing Halwe to single retired the side. The damage was three runs.

Cleveland scored two in the fifth on a walk, two singles and some bad throwing. Two more were added in the seventh when Beck was hit by a pitched ball and Bowersox doubled to left. A sacrifice fly scored Bowersox from third.

The Carondelet nine went into the lead in their half of the eighth by touching Beckett, who relieved Crause, for a pair of runs, which resulted from a walk and a single mixed with some weird throwing by the Soldan infield. The Soldanites came back in their half of the inning and tied the score. Three singles mixed with some heady base-running were responsible for the trio.

The Cleveland ninth inning was fruitless, but the Soldan nine attacked the shoots of Musgrove, the third Cleveland pitcher, with determination. Beckett singled, took second on a short passed ball and was advanced on De Stabler's sacrifice. Branconier attempted the squeeze play, but Beckett was out at the plate. Branconier stole second and scored the winning run of the game when he crossed the pan on Rawdon's double to left field.

TILDEN MAY BE ABLE TO ARRANGE AFFAIRS SO HE CAN GO TO ENGLAND

By the Associated Press.

CONCORD, Mass., April 14.—The announcement that William M. Johnston of San Francisco was going abroad this spring, communicated to William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, here today, met the response that he would like to go along, too.

"But I'm all tied up with pledges to play in important tournaments with Sandy Wiener and I doubt very much if I make the trip," he added.

Tilden expressed himself as "delighted that Bill Johnston is going." When Johnston played in England before he was not at his best, the champion remarked:

"All America wants England to see him at his best, and with the world championship in singles to be decided for the last time at Wimbledon this year, it is fitting that our best should be there."

Tilden said he and Johnston had discussed a plan of going to Europe together next season and that Vincent Richard, national indoor champion, and Young Wiener also were considering joining the invasion. All his plans this year have been made with a visit to England next year in mind, he said, adding, "it is a question that will take some time to answer whether it can be rearranged now. In any case, I shall not leave Sandy in the lurch. If he can't go across I shall not, and even though he can, we may not be able to adjust other matters."

HIGH SCHOOL BOY SETS NEW 100-YARD RECORD

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., April 14.—L. Thomas of Electra, established a new State High School record for the 100-yard dash at Iowa Park today when he stepped the distance in 9 8-5 seconds in the district No. 4 meet of the University of Texas Interscholastic League.

ILLINOIS BLANKS IOWA IN GAME PLAYED IN SNOW

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 14.—Playing most of the game in a snow storm the University of Illinois blanked the University of Iowa, 7 to 0, in the first baseball game of the Western Conference season here today. Jackson pitched excellent ball for Illinois, allowing only four hits.

Sarazen Expects Young Players to Star at Inwood

Loeffler, Farrell, Mehlhorn and Diegel Stand Excellent Shows Says Gene.

By Gene Sarazen,
World's Champion Golfer.

(Copyright, 1923.)

Unless I am greatly mistaken, I think you will see a number of young professionals making their mark in this game of golf this year.

I was fortunate enough to have won the national open last year, and I wouldn't be at all surprised if some other boy who is nearly as young as I am wins this year. Those three great masters who have been supreme in this country for years—Walter Hagen, Jock Hutchison and Jim Barnes, will have to travel this year to withstand the rush of the younger generation.

As I write this, I have Emil Loeffler in mind. Here is a lad who has everything a champion needs—the shots, the gameness, stamina, tournament experience and a good head. I know Loeffler's game well, having played with him frequently, and I have often wondered why he has not won more tournaments than he has to date.

He has always been a sort of easy-going, care-free fellow, who never seemed to push himself along as hard as he might have. But I think he will bear watching this year.

From the tee he is as long as any of them. He plays all of his irons beautifully, with fine firmness and power. His swing is very compact and he is, as a rule, very accurate.

What is more, he is constantly receiving valuable advice and assistance from W. C. Fownes, one of the finest shotmakers in the game and a man who knows golf from every angle.

Johnny Farrell is nearly ready to step out and win a big championship. And at Inwood Johnny should do very well, for he knows that course and plays it well.

I would advise Farrell to work a little harder on his game and to try to eliminate the slack as much as possible in his irons. I may be wrong, but every time I see Johnny play I have the impression he is a little loose on his iron shots.

Personally, I have worked hard to make my swing as tight and as compact as I can, and I guess Johnny has been doing the same thing.

If he once gets his irons working properly, he'll be a hard man to beat, because he has already shown that he is very near to being a champion. He hits his tee shots beautifully and is a wonderfuly fine putter. I look for Johnny to do well at Inwood this year.

Compact Swing Necessary.

Bill Mehlhorn's long game is as near to perfection as it could be, but he still seems to be erratic around the greens. At least that is the way his game appeared to me when last I saw him. And if you expect to win a tournament, you've got to have your chip shot and your putter working well, else you'll finish nowhere. Bill will be dangerous this season.

So will Leo Diegel, who has improved his swing considerably since he almost won the open at Toledo three years ago. Leo has a peculiar style, but he gets there and is a wonderful plugger. In this respect he has it on all of us youngsters. If determination and a never-say-die spirit count for anything Leo will be one of the foremost contenders for the championship this summer. Having changed his swing, and being in a position to play frequently, Leo is scoring better now than he has ever done before.

Of course you've got to figure Bobby Jones as usual. He's sure to be good always. It is impossible to criticize his game in any way. He has all of the shots and then some. He might be more determined, but he's plenty tough enough for me right now and I wouldn't be at all surprised to see him romp off with the title this year.

There are several other youngsters who are coming along rapidly and who can be expected to step out soon. The trouble with most of them as I see it is that they are a bit slack in their swing.

Most of them I have talked with realize this and are working to shorten the stroke and to make it as compact as possible.

I well remember when I used to overswing considerably. It took a lot of coaching on the part of George Sparling and plenty of practice on my part to eradicate this fault.

Putting May Decide.

Dont' thing for a moment I am counting out Hagen, Hutchison or Barnes. They'll take some beating this year—all three of them.

Hagen's driving has improved marvelously. You'd hardly know he was the same golfer he was two years ago. He visits abroad and his experience on British links have helped him mightily. His short game is even beter than ever, if that is possible. In fact, his putting is as near to perfection itself as it is possible to make it.

Without doubt Hagen today is the greatest putter in the game. It is his putter that has won him most of his laurels this past year and it is his short game he will probably rely on to keep him in the running this season.

Hutchison is hitting the ball better than ever he has done in his long and remarkable career. I know of none in the country who is playing the game through the fairway quite as well as Jock is at the present time. I hope the "Hutch," for his own sake at least, will be able to go abroad again, for I think he stands as good a chance as anybody to win again, the title he won in 1921.

Johnny Farrell, who traveled with Barnes this winter, tells me that Long Jim is playing as well as ever and that he, too, is hitting the ball beautifully, all of which means that the man who happens to be putting at Inwood probably will win.

Joe Kirkwood must be reckoned with this season. The Australian has improved his game a lot and has picked up valuable pointers from Hagen and Hutchison. Joe is playing the chip shot better than he used to do and his putting is steadier and more accurate, he seems to have eradicated the fault of slicing his putts as he used to do.

In my next article I shal ltell of the improvements I have made in my own game and of how I shall prepare for my trip to England.

The winners of both tournaments will receive gold medals in addition to whatever cash prize is allotted.

Ben Cohen won the preliminary last year and C. F. Kaley the final.

11 Net Events Scheduled by Valley Clubs

Ten Tournaments Are Scheduled for Senior and One for Junior M-V Association Players.

CENTRAL STATES TO COME TO ST. LOUIS

Valley Championship Tournament Has Been Awarded to the Rockhill Tennis Club of Kansas City.

By Davison Obear.

Tennis players in the territory of the Missouri Valley Lawn Tennis Association will have plenty of opportunity for tournament play during the coming season. The schedule of events just announecd by Roland M. Hoerr, secretary of the sectional association, indicates that the season will open on June 4 and close the week of Sept. 3.

Ten events for seniors have been sanctioned, while one for boys is listed in the schedule. It is expected that several other tournaments for the younger players will be arranged within the next several weeks.

The Missouri Valley championship will take place July 15 on the courts of the Rockhill Tennis Club in Kansas City. There will be events for men in singles and doubles. The team winning the doubles title will be eligible to compete in the national doubles event at Boston in August. Railroad and Pullman fares to and from Boston will be provided by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Wray Brown, the ranking St. Louis player, won the singles event at Omaha last July. Phil Bagby and Walter Newell of Kansas City captured the doubles title. The 1923 tournament is expected to draw a large entry from all parts of the section.

Tourney at Triple A.

The Central States championship will open on the Triple A courts here on July 2. This event always brings out a very good local entry and it is also likely that a number of prominent visiting players will make the tournament highly successful. Wray Brown holds the Central States singles title, while Josties and Drewes, the veterans, won the doubles event last year.

Kansas City will hold the Missouri State championship during the week commencing Aug. 27. The Oklahoma State tournament appears on the Missouri Valley schedule for the first time. It will take place at McAlester, Ok., during the week of Sept. 3.

The official schedule of Missouri Valley tournaments as is follows:

Senior Events.

June 4—Tulsa city championship, Tulsa, Ok., Y. M. C. A.

July 2—Central United States championship, Triple A club, St. Louis.

July 16—Missouri Valley championships, Rockhill Tennis Club, Kansas City.

July 23—Northwest Iowa championship, Fort Dodge Tennis Association.

July 30—Kansas State open championship, Independence, Kan., Lawn Tennis Association.

Aug. 6—Interstate championship, Sioux City, Ia., Tennis Association.

Aug. 13—Iowa State championship, Des Moines, Ia., Golf and Country Club.

June 18—Tulsa boys' championship, Tulsa, Ok., Y. M. C. A.

Six states comprise the Missouri Valley section of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. They are as follows: Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Nebraska has the only State association, while St. Louis is the only city having a district organization.

With the exception of Arkansas all of the states in the valley are represented by the membership of local clubs and associations. Missouri leads in the number of clubs with a total of 39, of which the St. Louis District Tennis Association has 37, the other two being in Kansas City. St. Joseph, Springfield and Joplin have clubs, but up to the present time they have not become affiliated with the Missouri Valley Association.

HERD DEFEATS JEWELL IN ROEHAMPTON FINAL

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 14.—Youth has the greatest difficulty in getting served on British golf courses. In the face of next month's invasion of England by the youthful Americans who hope to take the open championship title to the United States for the third successive year, the British golfers' traditional reverence for age was maintained in the opening tournament of the professional season yesterday by the 55-year-old veteran, Alex Herd, who won the Roehampton challenge cup.

Herd's finalist opponent, F. C. Jewell, is a stripling, as striplings go here, he is only 35 years old. Herd was playing in the open championships before Jewell was born. Jewell is stockily built, like Gene Sarazen, American champion, whom he expects to meet his spring. He has something of the American's natural golfing form, and great things are expected of him when he matures.

Chance Hopes to Build Winner From Team of Castoff Players

Former "Peerless Leader" Will Have Hustling Ball Club, One That Will Fight All the Way — Team Is Seemingly Weak in All Departments.

No. 14.—THE BOSTON RED SOX.

By Ed Cunningham,
Of the Baston Herald.

BOSTON, April 14.—Apparently no one gives the Red Sox a chance to finish better than eighth in the American League race this season. But the ways of baseball are strange, and the club chaperoned by Frank Chance, the once "peerless leader," may prove a surprise. Chance has a hustling club—one that will fight. And, what's more, Chance will fight for the team.

The Red Sox are composed mostly of cast-off from other major league clubs. This is true of every department. Starting with the pitchers, the main reliance for Chance will be flingers, who were with other aggregations.

For instance there is Howrad Ehmke, who for a good many years was a member of the Tigers. Also Jack Quinn, the veteran spit-baller, who is at present on the shelf with a fractured hand. Quinn pitched for several clubs in the big tent before joining the Boston outfit. Ferguson, Fullerton and Piercy were all members of the Yankees before going to Frazee's aggregation. Fullerton came from the minors. He is a veteran, but has not been a great success.

Much Expected of Murray.

Much is expected of George Murray, the young right-hander, who came from the Yankees in one of the many trades between the two clubs. But Murray is a youngster, having served time in the International League a year ago. Carl Stimson, a right-hander from the Rock Island club, looks like the best bet among the rookies. Dan Fowikes, the $10,000 right-hander from Memphis, has failed to shine. O'Doul this spring has been unable to get into top condition.

Chance plans to carry three catchers . Al Devormer, who did very little for the Yankees last season, is rated as first-string man. Val Picinich, late of the Nationals, comes next. Then Al Walters, a veteran of the club. Chaplin probably will be released.

Cast-offs man the infield. George Burns, Detroit and Athletic, will be at first and probably will be made captain of the team. Norman McMillan, who sat on the Yankee bench, and who was expected to star at third, has been shifted to second, where he is improving daily. Chick Fewster, another ex-Yankee, is at short. Third base is undecided. It will be either Pittenger or Shanks, former Washington outfielder-infielder. Mitchell will be extra man.

Veterans in the Outfield.

Then the outfield. John Collins, the veteran, who was with the White Sox until traded to Boston, will be in right. Joe Harris, obtained from Cleveland, will be in left. Shanks, if he does not open at third base, will be the centerfielder. Otherwise, Camp Skinner, another of the many ex-Yankees. Leibold, Menosky, Reichle and Goebel will fight for the extra bertha.

From this aggregation of talent, Chance expects to build a winner. What he has is uncertain. That goes for pitching, catching, the infield and also the outfield.

THE 1923 RED SOX

Pitchers—Ehmke, Quinn, Ferguson, Fullerton, Piercy, Fowlkes, Grampp, Murray, O'Doul, Black and Stimson.

Catchers—Devormer, Picinish, Chaplin, Walters.

Infielders—Fewster, Mitchell, Burns, McMillan, Pittenger.

Outfielders—Collins, Harris, Shanks, Skinner, Reichle, Menosky and Leibold.

Hagen's Recent Triumphs Stamp Him as Marvel

If His Great Pace Is Sustained He Will Far Outstrip All Competitors.

By Lawrence Perry.
(Copyright, 1923.)

NEW YORK, April 3.—Whatever future events of the golf season may show there is no doubt that the outstanding golfer in this country, if not in the world at the present moment is Walter Hagen. Not only was his victory in the famous North and South open tournament at Pinehurst marked by a record-breaking low aggregate for the 72 holes (299), but his extraordinary achievements at Belleair Heights, Fla., and at Asheville in preceding tourneys were all of unprecedented merit so far as records go.

Unquestionably the British open champion is on his mettle and the question of most interesting moment is whether or not his flight will be further sustained in the months to come If so we shall be called upon to contemplate a golfer who stands out in his profession as Ruth and Dempsey and Tilden and Lenglen and Jay Gould stand out in theirs.

It is interesting to note that Joe Kirkwood, the Australian, finished in the money at Pinehurst, landing a 301 for seventh place. It is not to be doubted that Hagen and Kirkwood have accumulated satisfactory bank balances since they have been in the money, in some one hundred-odd matches and tournaments.

Gene Sarzen and Jock Hutchison who were traveling as a pair, albeit not over territory so great and occupying much less time, met the Hagen-Kirkwood combination six times and were successful upon two occasions at 18 holes only by very small margins, were beaten three times by Kirkwood and Hagen and one match was halved. So to date the honors are with the international pair. We shall see what the future will bring.

ROUSH SIGNS AND MAY PLAY IN OPENING GAME OF SEASON ON TUESDAY

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., April 14.—Edd Roush, great batter and star outfielder, came to terms with the Cincinnati Ntaional League club today and may play his position in the opening game of the season next Tuesday.

Roush finally capitulated and signed a one-year contract, calling for $15,000, with no stipulation that the fine of $50 a day for remaining away from training would be remitted. However, in a communication sent to President August Herrmann which led to the agreement, expressed the hope that the directors of the club, at the end of the season, would reconsider their action, and that the fine would not be enforced.

Roush's career with the Reds has been one of great glory, but also of much annual trouble.

Roush probably will be in uniform tomorrow when the Reds are to play the Detroit Americans.

LANDIS TO OFFICIATE AT BRAVES' OPENING

CHICAGO, April 14.—Kenasaw M. Landis, Baseball Commissioner, departed today to open the baseball season in Boston and New York.

Because of his friendschip for Christy Mathewson, the commissioner will go to Boston to assist the Braves in starting their season on Tuesday and will preside over the dedication of the new Yankee stadium in New York on Wednesday.

Three, Possibly Seven Clubs, Will Open Season With One of Main Cogs Missing

Only 14 Rookies to Get Chance to Show Worth in First Games of Campaign This Week.

By Herman Wecke,

At least three clubs, possibly seven, will open the major league season this week with at least one of their main cogs missing.

Heading the list of these aggregations come the Browns. They are without George Sisler, and everyone knows what that means. The other teams sure of starting without their full forces are the Reds and Cubs. The Moranmen will be without Jake Daubert, the 37-year-old first sacker, who is recovering from an attack of pneumonia, and possibly Edd Roush, who signed only yesterday. Charley Hollocher, one of the best shortstops in baseball, will be out of the Cubs' battle front when the outfit opposes the Pirates.

The three possibilities are the Cardinals, White Sox and Athletics. Max Flack is sure to be lost to the Cardinals because of a recurrence of the leg injury which put him out for the last six weeks of the 1922 season. There also is a chance that John Lavan's shoulder will not permit his playing. Ray Schalk, star White Sox catcher, has a bad ankle and may be unable to start, while Sammy Hale, the $65,000 beauty from the Coast League, is a doubtful starter for the Athletics because of illness. Then the chances are that McNally will supplant Scott as the Yankee's opening day shortstop, because of an injury to the veteran.

14 Recruits to Get Chance.

With the possible exception of the Cardinals this will be a big boost, for the absence of the various stars will be a big help to their rivals. Rickey, because of very capable substitutes in Freigau, Smith and Schultz, will miss his stars less than any other outfit.

When the curtain is run up Tuesday in the National League and Wednesday in the American, 14 recruits will get a chance to show their worth.

These players are: Adams and Grantham, infielders with the Cubs, Conlon, shortstop with the Braves, a former Harvard star; O'Connell, $75,000 beauty with the Giants, who will start in center; Sand, shortstop, Phillies; Schleibner, first base, Brooklyn; Elsch, outfielder; Kamm, $100,000 third sacker, and Graham, catcher, White Sox; Lutzke, third base, Cleveland; Wade, outfielder, and Conroy, infielder, Nationals; Matthews, outfielder, and Hale or Riconda, third base, Athletics.

In addition to this number, 12 athletes who last season were with other clubs, will start for their new owners, while three others, substitutes in 1922, are scheduled to perform as regulars for at least a part of the 1923 campaign.

Three of the teams, the Yankees, Pirates and Reds, will start with standpat batting orders.

No Young Hurlers to Start.

From all indications, not a single young hurler has this spring shown enough to warrant his being named to pitch the opening battle for his team. In fact, with the exception of the Detroit Tigers, all the managers will rely on one of the veterans of last season. Cobb intends to work "Rip" Collins, the right-hander, who came from Boston in the trade which also sent Pratt to the Detroit team.

It looks as though the Chicago Cubs will start with anything but a major league club. Bill Killefer has just one veteran of 1922 on his infield. He is Grimes at first base. The loss of Hollocher will be keenly felt. Adams will play the position until the St. Louis boy is able to perform. Grantham and Friberg are the other infielders with the Bruins. It seems as though the Cub boss will have a tough job.

Brooklyn, in spite of the fact that it has won many spring games, does not look as though it has strengthened. Robinson has pitching. That lets him out. There is something of a story connected with Schleibner, who will play first base. Schleibner last spring started in the Texas League, but was turned loose because he could not hit. He went to Little Rock and there swatted .354. Robby has veterans who are not going to get any better at second and short, while the same is true of the infield.

Cardinals Need Pitching.

The Phillies look hopeless, and it is the opinion of those who have seen the club in action, that Fletcher will spend much of his time under suspension. Mitchell at Boston is another who has a tough job.

That leaves four clubs. The Cardinals have improved and all that Rickey needs is pitching. Cincinnati needs Daubert and Roush, while Pittsburg, with practically the same team, has shown no staying qualities in the past two seasons. The Giants have a veteran outfit. Much of the club's success depends on the pitchers.

In the American League, several clubs seem to have improved. The Browns would be rated much higher but for Sisler's absence. The Tigers, White Sox and Athletics look improved. The Tigers are expected to fight it out to the last ditch with the Yankees, who are starting with a club of holdovers, the only addition being Southpaw Herb Pennock. The White Sox have added Willie Kamm, who is regarded as a real star. Connie Mack needs pitching.

Wade and Conroy Look Good.

Frank Chance seems to have a hopeless task at Boston. His nine is made up of castoffs from other teams. Washington has picked up two mighty good young players in Wade and Conroy. This club may get somewhere if the pitching holds up. Cleveland has added Rube Lutzke, but Louis Guisto, who has been trying for five years, does not impress as a first sacker. In a tion, Speaker's hurling staff i

Unless surprises set in, the

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need.

This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Employer's Defense of Minimum Wage Law

Why Great Merchant Believes It Pays

E. A. Filene, Head of Boston Department Store, Declares Comfortable Wage Not Only Makes Life More Worth While for Employe, but Helps Him to Become a Greater Help to the Business and Enables Him to Be a Consumer.

THE United States Supreme Court has pronounced the minimum wage law unconstitutional, but that this pronouncement of our highest tribunal will have the effect of reducing salaries at once or of ending the crusade for legalizing a minimum wage is improbable. In this able justification of fair wages, E. A. Filene, head of the great department store of Wm. Filene's Sons of Boston, sets forth the sound commercial and economic reasons on which the movement is based, and tells of his experience as a store executive that has led him to support it. This article summarizes the arguments Mr. Filene advanced before the board of inquiry of the Massachusetts Legislature in defense of the Massachusetts minimum wage law, which was under attack.

By E. A. FILENE.

NEW YORK, April 14.

I HAVE much sympathy with those who think that wages must come down and who, on that account, oppose the minimum wage law. Twenty years ago I should probably have opposed it too. It is not easy to get steady profits out of a business. But my experience has been—and I think the general experience has proved—that policies that have been necessary for humanitarian reasons have turned out to be good business policies.

One of the practices that is equally good ethics and good business is the payment of a living wage. When I started in business we paid as little as $4 or even $3 a week, and I suppose that the parents of our employes had to supplement their earnings. Those were counterfeit unless they will buy what is needed to live on plus a fair margin. Real wages are always determined by what they will buy.

Freedom is not a clay eagle perched on a staff; it is the margin men have between their income and the amount necessary to support their families and make it possible for them to be good citizens. Good living and good citizenship depend in important part on real wages. Counterfeit wages won't support either one; a real wage will support both.

Obligation to Pay a Real Wage

Every industry is under obligation to pay a real wage. This requires considerably more money now than it did in 1914. But being accustomed to think of wages in terms of dollars, we think that wages are much larger now than they were then, just because we pay more dollars.

Our whole system of distribution has grown up like Topsy. I began in a small store and later had an interest in five of them. We couldn't pay proper wages and we couldn't furnish good management.

We gave them up because it seemed to us that conditions would eventually crowd them into more and more difficult positions and finally force them out.

It has taken longer than I thought it would to do this, but it is more evident today than ever that the tendency is that way.

The small out-of-town stores have one great difficulty to face. There are too many of them. I say this with a great deal of sympathy because the small shop keeper is usually a very good citizen. I feel that I am doing all I can to conserve him, however, when I try to show him what he is facing.

In speaking before a group of small-store shoe retailers a few years ago, I told them that they were inevitably going to be forced out of business unless they were far-sighted enough to combine with the other noncompetitive shoe stores in their city or in other towns and so get the advantage of chain-store organization. The chain store can buy in large quantities, cut out the expense and profit of an intermediate distributor and have the benefit of the best expert and staff workers. It can gain knowledge and apply it individually to each store of the chain.

The small, independent storekeeper has neither the time, the money nor the opportunity of getting those advantages. I told the shoe retailers that by combining they could have all these advantages in chain stores and at the same time retain those which the chain store lacks—namely, those of personal ownership and of personal contact with customers who are on familiar enough terms with them to say, "Hello, John; how is the baby?"

"Chain Stores Bound to Spread"

The chain stores are bound to spread. I haven't the exact statistics of the growth in my mind, but they are astonishing. I think the last figures show that there are something like 8000 chains of stores. It is a very extraordinary growth. The small, independent stores are certain to decrease in like ratio unless they definitely organize and meet this competition.

There has been a great increase in the cost of distribution; the average commodity now doubles in price from production to consumption. That does not mean that the retailer makes 100 per cent—he does not make over 3 or 4 cents on the dollar. It does mean that the cost of doing business is inordinate.

This is due in considerable part to the multiplication of small stores.

It seems clear that the smaller towns and even the cities cannot support as many stores as they now have. The recent figures are preposterous—something like a store for every 26 families in the country. This overmultiplication of stores makes a charge on the consumer that is not defensible. I know what it means, for I have been through this thing, and probably when it was at its worst period.

When we closed out our stores in the smaller towns, we sacrificed half the capital. We saw that the conditions under which we were working were impossible for any man who holds himself responsible for decent, real success in business. Take in Lynn—Monday afternoons and evenings were busy, and Saturday afternoons and evenings we were rushed. But we had to keep the overhead expense and everything else going for six days in the week. There were three or four times as many stores as could be properly supported by the community. The result was a heavy charge on the customers.

Excess Charge on Community

That is illustrative of all towns and cities. You can go to any big city like Chicago or New York and find store after store in almost endless multiplication. It means that two-thirds of the expenses of running each store is an excess charge on the community. We ought not to have that expense.

The only basic way of changing the situation is to have only as many distributing agencies as are really necessary, and to have these managed as effectively and economically as possible.

If we should establish a minimum wage of $14 for out-of-town stores, we should have a chorus of protests. The reason is that the proprietors would look only at the $14 wage, and would not see that it is better that they be forced to do a business that can afford to pay a $14 wage than just barely to scrape along as most of them are now doing.

Under present conditions they are threatened with extinction. One of the ways for any one of them to lessen its chances of being forced out is to make its business more efficient.

One of the ways of making itself more efficient is to pay wages that will command a high enough grade of employe to make it unnecessary for the proprietor to put in most of his time directing and correcting errors of inefficient, underpaid people.

The most important idea underlying the minimum wage is that our country can have an adequate market only by having properly paid wage earners.

Consumers Are Wage Earners

It should be emphasized always that the body of consumers is made up in large part from wage earners and that on this account power of consumption comes from the wages and salaries that are earned.

It is easy to see that if the standard of wages is too low the buying power of consumers is destroyed.

Take India, for instance. That country has 320,000,000 people. The masses of them get along with a little rice and a few vegetables for food, while a strip of cotton cloth 10 or 12 yards long suffices to wrap their bodies and they wear no shoes. There is very little market there. There is also little industry, and there cannot be a growing civilization.

Quite aside from the question as to whether such a standard of life is desirable in itself, it is clear that the possibility, even the incentive, for the industrial development of India is absent because the people do not and cannot purchase.

We are coming in this country to a situation when the markets of the world are rapidly being closed to us on account of the state of Europe, where almost every Government is bankrupt, and money has so depreciated that the people cannot import goods.

E. A. FILENE.

Exports Falling Off

Our exports are falling off to an alarming degree in consequence. We are going to be confined for the most part during the next few years to the markets of our own country.

These home markets are not going to support our business profitably with underpaid people. A high standard of wages is the very first and most essential condition for making them adequate to consume our mass production.

If, indeed, our people had been obliged, as in India, to confine their buying to the absolute necessities of life, our great industrial expansion could never have taken place.

As a first line of defense against the business stagnation of Europe, and, indeed, of nearly all the world, we have got to keep our own people able to consume. If they cannot buy we cannot go on at all. It is in the failure to realize this that one of our most serious mistakes is being made.

The condition of business as an important relation to wages. If we make wages too small, the buying power of the public would be cut down, production will outrun distribution and business become dull.

Low wages for the low purchasing power, accumulation of excess stocks that cannot be sold, business stagnation—that is a vicious circle that can be avoided by a high wage scale, and by a high wage scale alone. High wages will enable the public to continue to purchase even under conditions that with low wages would bring distress. Therefore, a minimum wage placed high enough to purchase the items of a living budget—yes, even a generous living budget—is extremely important just now to the business of the country.

Trade That Won't Pay a Profit

People getting seven or eight dollars a week have not the money to buy more than the most necessary items—food and the cheapest necessities. Such trade will not pay a profit to very many and will not make possible taxation to keep up schools and the general civilization and progress of our country. It seems self-evident, and I think we will agree that industrial growth would be impossible if we had a constantly underpaid lot of workers.

It would be a short-sighted policy to allow business to be handled in such a way that what we pride ourselves on calling the American standard of living should be reduced. But high wages cannot be maintained unless we have a minimum wage law.

In order to have a standard of wage high enough to give us a good consuming power it is necessary there shall be a limit fixed by an authority outside of the personal decision of the individual employer as to what the lowest wage shall be. There are several reasons for this:

1. Wages naturally tend to go down toward the standard set by the meanest and most short-sighted employers. It may as well be said that inability to pay a living wage is not always the reason why such a wage is refused.

There are greedy employers as well as greedy employes—men who for the sake of profit want

Survey of Constitutional Convention's Accomplishments and Discussion of Changes That Have Been Provided For

Dr. Isidor Loeb Declares Impression Prevailing in Some Quarters That Body Has Wasted Time and Money on Valueless Work Is Unjustified—Three Significant Changes Provided in Articles on Suffrage and Elections—Body to Reassemble Tomorrow.

Article on Corporations Is Distinguished, He Writes, for Its Restrictive Features Introduced for Protection to Stockholders and the Public—Many Opposed Convention Through Fear That Corporate Interests Might Gain Modification in Their Own Favor.

By DR. ISIDOR LOEB.

Acting President-Elect and Dean of the School of Business and Public Administration of Missouri University.

THE Constitutional Convention of this State will reassemble on April 16 for the purpose of completing its revision work. It is therefore opportune to present at this time a survey of its previous activities and an estimate of its accomplishments.

Few of the citizens of Missouri have been able to follow the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention, as its published journal has not been accessible to many people and the newspaper accounts have been inadequate. Many have gained the impression that the convention was wasting time and money and that the results of its work would not be of any value. That there is no justification for this attitude can be easily determined by anyone who will give the time to a careful examination of the record of the debates and proceedings of the Constitutional Convention. These clearly show that the members have been fully conscious of their responsibility and have earnestly striven to perform their duty.

The convention met on May 16, 1922, and on account of the approach of the meeting of the Legislature took a recess on Dec. 15, after having been in session 159 working days. This time may be divided into two periods, during the first of which the attention of the members was devoted exclusively to the many proposals for changes that were submitted and to work of the committees to which these proposals were referred for consideration. During the second period the reports of the committees were debated and amended in the committee of the whole and finally adopted by the convention.

Work Done by 19 Committees

The convention provided for 19 standing committees, of which 15 were revising committees, to which the numerous proposals were referred. Naturally there was little for the convention to do as a body until the committees commenced to submit their reports. As each member of the convention served on one or more committees there was plenty of work for all individuals. Public hearings were held in all cases where the desire for an opportunity to be heard was manifested and these hearings in the case of important committees occupied much of the time of the members.

No committee was able to get its report ready for submission before July 20, when two committee reports were received. One additional report was submitted in July, two in August, five in September, three in October, and one in December. One committee had not filed its report when the convention adjourned for the recess on Dec. 15.

The convention commenced its consideration of the committee reports in the committee of the whole on Aug. 9. From that time it was practically continuously engaged in debating these reports, adopting amendments and perfecting the provisions that had been submitted. The published debates are illuminating and reveal the ability and earnestness displayed by the members of the convention. When the convention adjourned it had entirely completed its work on eight reports and these had been referred to the Committee on Phraseology and Arrangement, which was authorized to act during the recess of the convention. One of the reports had been acted upon in the committee of the whole but had not been taken up by the convention. Another report had been partially considered in the committee of the whole and was awaiting further action at the beginning of the recess. At that time the remaining four committee reports had not been taken up for consideration.

Nothing Radical or Revolutionary

The action taken by the convention on eight reports and its partial action in two others furnish a tentative basis for estimating the character of its work. The four reports that have not been considered by the convention as a whole represent the work of large committees which were practically unanimous upon most questions. Hence they may be accepted as an expression of the probable tendency of the convention respecting the matters dealt with in the reports.

Some of Important Changes Proposed Affecting Taxation

IN his article on the achievements of the Constitutional Convention, Dr. Loeb writes that the report of the Committee on Revenue and Taxation, which has not as yet received any consideration by the convention, contains some of the most important changes that have been proposed. He describes some of them as follows:

"In order to secure equality and uniformity in assessments and a better enforcement of the collection of taxes, provision is made for a State Tax Commission of three members to have general supervision and control over these matters. This eliminates the present antiquated State Board of Equalization and by consolidating all matters affecting State taxation in one body will avoid much duplication and expense and promote efficiency in tax administration.

"Few changes are proposed in the strict limitations upon the rate of taxation. The maximum rate for State purposes is actually decreased from 15 cents to 10 cents on the $100 valuation, and the rate for paying the interest on the certificates of indebtedness is reduced from 3 cents to 1 cent. Because of the difficulty that has been experienced in raising sufficient revenue for public schools the maximum rate for school purposes has been increased to $1.20 on the $100 valuation, but any increase above 75 cents in cities of 300,000 inhabitants or more and above 40 cents in other districts cannot be made without the consent of a majority of the voters and for any increases above $1 a two-thirds majority is necessary. Provision is also made whereby any county, city or town may levy a tax not exceeding 20 cents on the $100 valuation for public library purposes, provided a majority of the voters approve such levy."

In the first place, it should be emphasized that the work of the convention disproves the statements of those who predicted that a constitutional convention would undertake a revolutionary revision of the existing Constitution and would introduce radical and untried experiments into our fundamental law. Of the 15 articles in the Constitution of 1875, 10 will remain substantially unchanged except in particular sections, and even in these the changes, for the greater part, relate to minor and relatively unimportant matters.

The five articles in which significant changes have been introduced are those relating to the Executive Department, Judicial Department, counties, cities and towns, revenue and taxation and education.

It is interesting to note that these are the articles in which amendments have been most frequently sought and whose defects were chiefly responsible for the popular decision to hold a Constitutional Convention.

Before considering the changes proposed in those five articles it is desirable to indicate briefly the more important modifications in the other parts of the Constitution. No change is made in the preamble or in the articles dealing with boundaries, distribution of powers and impeachments. In the important article containing the bill of rights the only significant change is the inclusion of a statement that an "indictment or an information shall be sufficient if it state in plain and concise language the facts constituting the alleged offense." This is an attempt to do away with the quashing of indictments on account of purely formal defects.

Changes in Suffrage and Election

The article on corporations in the present Constitution is distinguished for its restrictive features introduced for the protection of stockholders and the public. Much of the opposition to a Constitutional Convention arose from the fear that corporate interests might be able to secure a modification of these provisions. It is therefore doubly interesting to note that changes were made in only six of the 27 sections in this article. Two sections were eliminated, one because it had become obsolete and the other because its provisions were duplicated in another article.

A provision that preferred stock may not be issued without the consent of all stockholders was changed so that the consent of those owning two-thirds of the stock would be sufficient. A fourth change included business trusts under the term "corporation," while the section prohibiting discrimination by railroads was amended so as to remove the conflict with the Federal transportation act and eliminate injustice resulting from judicial construction of certain provisions. The sixth change was a minor one designed to insure the validity of corporate securities issued in accordance with legal authorization.

Three significant and highly desirable changes have been provided in the articles on suffrage and elections. The first by restricting the right to vote to citizens of the United States strikes out the existing provisions under which certain aliens have the suffrage. Another change makes it possible to open ballot boxes in any case in which the violation of the laws governing elections or nominations is under investigation or in issue. Finally, the Legislature has been required to regulate the registration of voters in all cities having a population of more than 10,000 inhabitants instead of being restricted, as under the existing Constitution, to those having more than 25,000 inhabitants.

The report of the Committee on Military Affairs, Miscellaneous Provisions and Methods of Amending the Constitution has not been before the convention, but the changes recommended by the committee may be indicated. In the article relating to the militia the exemption from military service of those having religious scruples against bearing arms has been stricken out and several changes have been introduced for the purpose of making the system more efficient. The regimental officers are to be elected by the officers instead of the whole body of men in the regiment. A military council consisting of the general officers, the Adjutant-General and the Colonels is established and the appointments by the Governor of the Adjutant-General and of the general officers are made subject to the recommendations of the council.

The article dealing with miscellaneous provisions omits one obsolete section and another section requiring the grand jury in each county to investigate at least once annually the acts of all officers having charge of public funds. New sections are introduced prohibiting the Legislature from delegating to any administrative authority the power to prescribe the qualifications of any person to engage in any trade or profession, requiring all State officials and boards to file annually sworn statements giving information regarding expenditures, names and addresses of employes, amount paid to each, etc., and providing that the first Legislature after the adoption of the Constitution shall by general law fix the maximum amount to be expended by each department board, etc., for the ensuing two years.

The article on the mode of amending the Constitution is changed by increasing the vote required in each house of the General Assembly for proposing amendments from a mere majority to a two-thirds majority.

Another change makes it impossible for a senatorial party committee to nominate a candidate for delegate to a Constitutional Convention, as it is expressly provided that this shall be done by the electors.

Few substantial changes have been made regarding the organization, procedure and powers of the Legislature. In case of any vacancy in the office of Senator or Representative occurring during the session of the General Assembly or within 20 days preceding such session the Governor is authorized to fill the same by appointing some person belonging to the political party with which the elected incumbent was identified. The present inadequate per diem of members of the Legislature is increased to $10, but this is reduced to $1 after 60 days instead of after 70 days, and in revising sessions the period in which full pay can be received is reduced from 120 days to 90 days. Moreover, while no limit is fixed by the existing Constitution on the period in which full pay can be received in extra sessions it is now proposed that a limit of 30 days shall be established for this purpose. Finally, in an effort to curb extravagance in the appointment of clerks, etc., it is provided that the total daily expense for officers, employes and attaches shall not exceed $400 for the House and $300 for the Senate in regular sessions and $200 and $150 respectively during extra sessions.

Old Curbs on Legislature Remain

In the matter of procedure the existing requirement that after a bill has passed and before it has been signed by the presiding officer it shall be read at length is modified so that the reading by title shall be sufficient unless otherwise demanded. Under the existing Constitution no law except the general appropriation act can go into effect until 90 days after adjournment, unless the Legislature by a two-thirds vote in each house provides otherwise. As the Supreme Court has held that the adoption of the optional referendum took away this power of the Legislature except in case of laws necessary for the immediate preservation of public peace, health or safety the section has been changed to conform to this decision. As any act making appropriations for the expense of State government, for maintenance of State

The Father's Rights.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

EVERYBODY has something to say for the mother; may I utter a word in the father's behalf? Several days ago I listened to a case in court, in which a man was endeavoring to get the custody of his children. As both parties to the suit, as well as the objects of it, were in court, I had an opportunity to observe and hear them.

The contrast was very striking. The woman was large, flashily dressed, slangy and defiant. The man was dignified, quiet and apparently very well educated. The man was concerned for the welfare of the children. The woman was concerned with getting all she could. The court decided that the mother had a prior claim, and, even though she had been the offender, that she must keep the children, and the man must support them. The man had to pay all the costs of the suit (although the woman had remarried), lost his children, and got nothing.

I was astonished. This discrimination between parents, in the mother's favor, was new to me. I had assumed that where babies were involved, the mother would necessarily be favored, but the children in this case were of school age. Is it a fact that parents are not equal before the law? If so, we are in a very dangerous condition, indeed. The very basis of our government is that all persons are equal before the law, and no departure from that principle could be any more dangerous and demoralizing than the innovation of making one sex a preferred class.

In the more enlightened countries of Europe, as a matter of fact, the father's interest in children is paramount. By reason of his experience, and in virtue of his position as the breadwinner, he is held to have the greater discretion and the deeper interest. In this country, if this incident is a criterion, the father has all the responsibility and the mother has all the privileges. Unless this was an isolated case of injustice, the law should be clarified or changed. When the law plays favorites between sexes, all legal institutions are menaced.

DON MAGOON.

Bring On the Proof.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN a letter on your editorial page of Sunday's edition there appears a letter signed by "Common Honesty." The writer charges the Ku Klux Klan with every offense in the category of crime. He closes with the following statement: "If a minister of the gospel is on the side of murder, arson, abduction and assault, why doesn't he say so? Such a course would be far more honest and courageous than to join and encourage such a band, while denying from his pulpit that it commits any of the crimes which all the world knows it does commit."

I will pay $1000 reward to "Common Honesty" for proof of any of his assertions, the same to be taken from the court records in any locality anywhere in the United States. Or I will pay it to anyone else anywhere who presents such evidence of such conviction by any court. Furthermore, I will resign my pulpit and turn it over to "Common Honesty" if he or anyone else will present such legal proof.

Protestanism faced worse charges than this and lived them down. Christianity faced even worse and lived it down. The Savior of men was accused of being a "wine bibber," "a gluttonous man," "a friend of publicans and sinners." The Sadducees saw in Him "a fanatic;" the Romans saw "a usurper." Some accused Him of being "the devil." The crowd at the cross saw in him a malefactor. It is not what they saw in Him, it's what He was and is. "Judge not lest ye be also judged, for with what measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you again." REV. CHAS. D. McGEHEE.

The Yap and His Works.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICED your editorial Sunday, headed, "Forward, Missouri," commenting on the Missouri Association, which was organized last Friday in Jefferson City. Certainly pleased that the Post-Dispatch is so enthusiastically pushing the progress of this State and your editorial states exactly what is necessary for Missouri to forge to the front as it should.

I want to particularly comment on one of your points—"Yappism," and all of its obstructive works must be laid on the shelf. This is one of the greatest objectionable conditions in this State today, especially in the rural districts, therefore the Missouri Association should spend part of their campaign educating the rural citizens of this State what is necessary for its real development and progress.

1924 CAMPAIGN ON.

Mr. Harding has let it be known that he would cancel the projected visit to Alaska, which he is eager to make, were the impression to obtain that the object of the trip was political—the first bid for support in the 1924 campaign. Such scrupulous regard for the dignity of his high office does him honor, but the fact is that the Harding campaign for 1924 is now on. It was authentically launched by Attorney-General Daugherty's announcement of Mr. Harding's candidacy, and though that announcement has been mildly regretted, it has not been vetoed. Further, Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce has just made a 1924 campaign speech for Harding in his Des Moines address on the desirability of our entering the jurisdiction of the World Court, and the speech which Mr. Hughes will shortly make on the same subject will serve the same purpose.

And admirable as Mr. Harding's sense of the proprieties may be, there is nothing censurable in his ambition to succeed himself or in undertaking the customary and accepted activities to that end. The mid-term transcontinental presidential swing has sound precedent and seemingly enjoys the sanction of public opinion. Moreover, in the present instance, the logic of the situation joins with precedent in urging this effort. The 1924 outlook requires something constructive in the field of foreign policy. This point does not have to be elaborated. Much of Mr. Harding's support in 1920 was supplied by voters who, if critical of our joining the League of Nations without reservation, were earnestly in favor of our doing our part in work of reconstruction. They had hopes for our participation either by way of Mr. Harding's vague proposal for an association of nations or in the precise assurance of the most eminent Republicans in the country, including Mr. Hughes, that the surest way to get into the League was by voting for Mr. Harding. They opposed isolation as dishonorable and impracticable, and they still do. Thus far they have been utterly disappointed by the administration, but they are too numerous and potent a force to be betrayed and ignored. They must be appeased. Some substantial appeal for their support must be made next year. The only available appeal at this time in the campaign prospectus of 1924 is our adherence to the World Court.

There is another consideration, of course, in the administration's effort to mobilize sentiment in behalf of this proposal. There is a Senate to be whipped into line, particularly the Foreign Relations Committee, which now, as in Wilson's latter days, is under the guidance of Henry Cabot Lodge's evil genius. If Harding, Hughes, Hoover and such others as may be enlisted can develop a convincing sentiment for the World Court the difficulty of securing ratification in the Senate that meets next December will have been reduced. It may come about that, in the summer of next year, America's adhesion to the World Court will be an accomplished fact rather than a campaign promise. Fact or promise, it will be campaign material. So, if 1924 is still below Mr. Harding's horizon it is clearly visible to his associates and advisers and they have already buckled down to work.

MEDDLING IN THE HOME.

The National League of Women Voters, meeting at Des Moines, Ia., is taking a commendable interest in public affairs. The same cannot be said of any disinterested organization of men voters. The new voters can be relied upon to take a fresh, unsophisticated view of the issues that come before them. But, while unsophistication may be an asset, inexperience is not. A majority of the delegates at Des Moines, in the face of a healthy opposition, has advertised its inexperience by the passage of a resolution urging legislation to provide an equal interest of spouses in each other's real estate and the equal control and interest by each spouse of all property acquired after marriage by each or both spouses.

Laws providing for an equitable distribution of property and income in case of separation or in case of decease of one of the spouses are already on the statute books and, if not in some states, should be. But the legal division of property during marriage is a considerable departure from present practices and invades a new field. Are we to have a law at last to regulate the domestic affairs of man and wife while they live peacefully together and consider themselves permanently attached? What a prolific new field to open for the adventuress and vampire; what cause of quarrels; what an encouragement to irresponsible flapperism; what a discouragement to men of property to marry at all; what an incentive to the illicit alternatives of marriage!

Enthusiastic women reformers are too apt to forget that the sex line is not normally a line of antagonistic division. They fail in this case to take into account that the most successful marriages do not involve a daily division of rights and possessions secured by law or treaty. Such marriages consist in an indivisible community of all blessings secured by the advice of the more experienced in his or her particular line—the man in business and the woman in the home, the children and in whatever line her talents may run.

The Women's party, which lobbied through Congress an amendment to the immigration law which depatriated foreign women who married American husbands, won just resentment from many of their own sex. Is the League of Women Voters to follow that trail?

JUSTICE FOR JOHN BARLEYCORN.

Emotion has long been charging John Barleycorn with all the crimes on the calendar and making them pretty well stick, too. Now science, in the person of Dr. Pearl, professor of biometry at Johns Hopkins, has given alcohol the once over, with the result that emotion appears as a scurrilous, libelous, scandal-mongering character assassin.

Dr. Pearl first experimented with chickens. Those that were put on an alcoholized diet swept past the abstainers amazingly. They showed superior virility, greater beauty, got a whole lot more out of life in every way, were, in a word, the aristocrats of the barnyard. Further, their progeny carried on the tradition. Expert judges who officiate at shows and fairs invariably picked the tipplers as the better birds.

Those tests were carried out with the patience and thoroughness of the scientist seeking only the truth. The truth, however, was not what was anticipated. In consequence the doctor's curiosity was aroused as to the generally accepted effects of alcohol on man. There had been research along this line, but not of a character to satisfy the exacting Pearl. He undertook a survey of his own. His observations disclose that moderate drinkers enjoy a vital advantage over total abstainers all along the way, save for an interval at the age of 55, where they drop behind slightly, only to resume leadership presently and retain it to the centenarian end of the chapter. Possibly more surprising than that is the discovery that the heavy drinkers have a lower mortality rate than the total abstainers to the age of 40, and even after that age the disparity between the abstemious and excessively indulgent is inconsiderable.

It was also learned from numerous autopsies that many diseases debited to alcohol, such as cirrhosis of the liver, are not of alcoholic origin.

The principal value of Dr. Pearl's research, besides brushing aside the bogies of emotionalism, lies in the fact that the moderate use of alcohol as a beverage does not diminish the expectancy of life, but that up to 55 and after 65 the moderate drinker is a better insurance risk than is the total abstainer.

What the ultimate effect may be of this investigation, and others that presumably will follow, is, of course, conjectural. But if we accept Dryden's economic dogma that there is no wealth but life a rather powerful ally will reinforce the demand for the moderate restoration of alcohol as a beverage. And would it not add to the general confusion if insurance companies, challenged by the facts, would exact a higher premium from total abstainers than from moderate drinkers?

RAISING THE DEAD.

Science appears finally to have achieved that supremest of all miracles, the raising of the dead. Medical bodies accept, as authentic, reports of experiments in which life was restored by the injection of adrenalin into the hearts of persons who had been pronounced dead, one, at least, for upwards of 30 minutes. The colossal distinction of discovering and successfully applying the treatment goes to Dr. Crile of Cleveland.

Doubtless it will be a long time before the method is developed sufficiently to come into wide use, and perhaps its success will always be limited to a small number of cases. Nevertheless, the accomplishment in any case is a staggering fact. Probably under Dr. Van Loon's theory of history, it would be recorded as the most important event that has occurred in the life of the human race to date. It may be that posterity, in the dim ages of the future, will recall the World War as having occurred a few years prior to Dr. Crile's discovery.

One outstanding fact of the operation is that adrenalin is itself a product of the body, being a secretion of the adrenal glands, located just over the kidneys. For some time it has been known adrenalin, in crucial tests of physical and nervous activity, flowed copiously into the blood and acted as a powerful stimulant and sustainer. There is something enormously plausible and comforting in the thought that the body contains the means of its own resurrection.

PANATELA.

YES, Luella,
In St. Louis
Murder
Has become A sport;
One can scarcely
Wait 'till morning
Brings to us
The last report.
Knowing well
That while we slumbered
Two or three Men shed
Their gore,
Lo, we all
Jump up at daybreak
Feverish
To see the score!

Formerly,
My little girlie,
When the night
Was mild and still,
Almost no one
Went forth seeking Someone he
Would like to kill.
Doubtless we Disliked each other,
Those days being
Much like these,
But we left
Such matters mostly
To avengers
Like disease.

Now and then
When some Great matter,
Say in love
Or money pressed
Irresistibly
Upon us,
Folk were slain,
Be it confessed;
But a man
Like Macbeth even
Had been palsied
By dismay
At the thought
Of having people
Bumped off
As they are today.

Thus while other
Men used murder
Sparingly
Without delight,
Now it has Become a merely Pleasant way
To spend the night.
One returning
To one's lodging
Having left
Nobody dead,
Had as well
In this new era
Stayed at home
And gone to bed.

When the West
Was young,
My dearie,
And the blood
Of men was hot,
Nothing roused
The population
Like the firing
Of a shot.
Now the same thing
In St. Louis
Merely makes Us turn in bed Wondering
About the morrow
Relatively
As to dead.

Sir: While delving into the depths of diction I thought it might be interesting to find the point where words left off. So I turned to the last page of the vocabulary of the Merriam Webster, and in the lower right-hand corner I found the word "zythepsary," meaning "a brewery."

As I am one who rejoices at the aridity of the national epiglottis, this was something of a surprise and shock to me. But I knew that it would please Just a Minute to know that though the wets might be out they would always have the last word.

HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS.

(By an act of the recent Missouri Legislature the hawthorn was made the official State flower.)

SPRING roams today 'neath beryl skies;
The earth shouts with returning breath;
The redbud opes its wond'ring eyes—
The world holds naught that speaks of death,
For life thrills through the veins of earth,
Wooed by the sun, a lover bold,
Which brings the dandelion's birth—
A bridal pledge of rarest gold.

Shell-tinted apple blossoms lay
Upon the orchard's carpet green;
Brook banks are decked with diamond spray;
Long willow tresses o'er them lean,
Swayed by the dreamy airs that bring
Strange drafts like sweetest hydromel
From vales where purple violets spring,
The crocus and the asphodel.

So tender, vaguely strange, and white
The hawthorn blossoms on the hill
Shake out their petals over night,
When calls the first wild whippoorwill;
They come in robes of whiteness pure,
So like a soul's sweet, keen surprise,
With feelings timid, insecure—
When first it wakes in Paradise!

BUSINESS SUCCESS.

GLENN FRANK IN Century Magazine.

I VENTURE to suggest that the great business successes of the next 50 years will be made by men who think of service first and of profit last. The surest way not to make money in any large way is to center all attention on making money. The indictment of the modern business system is that it makes things for sale rather than for use, but the surest way to sell things in the future will be to make things for use rather than for sale. Business has a higher function than the subsidy of uplift; its highest function is to make uplift necessary. The reason we need so much public work, social service and uplift is because we have failed to catch the full social implications of our business and professional activities. Because we have insisted upon interpreting business and the professions as primarily personal and selfish undertakings, we have gone wild on the matter of uplift and on the matter of government. In a rightly run society uplift would be unnecessary and government would not be the all-comprehending and extravagantly expensive thing it is today. Any philosophy that paints business in terms of a disagreeable duty to be got through with as soon as possible in order that we can get at something uplifting is, I suggest, dangerously antisocial.

OLD HYMNS.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THOUSANDS of churchgoers are said to have responded in a survey arranged by Etude, a musical magazine, to determine the most popular hymn. "Abide With Me" led. A close second was "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and the third was "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." Every one of these is of English origin, and each is over 75 years old. Sitting in the shadow of death, in his Devonshire home, the Rev. Henry Francis Lyte, perpetual curate of Brixham, wrote "Abide With Me" in 1847. It was about the same year that Mrs. Sarah Fuller Flower Adams of Clapton wrote "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Charles Wesley was the author of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," of which Henry Ward Beecher said: "I would rather have written that hymn than to have the fame of all the Kings that ever sat on the earth; than to hold the wealth of the richest man in New York." It is almost safe to assume that Cardinal Newman's hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," might have been fourth in the voting. This was written when Newman was becalmed for a week on a sailing vessel between Corsica and Sardinia. He fixes the date as June 16, 1833. "Jerusalem, My Happy Home," is oldest of all familiar hymns. This was found in a hymnbook of Queen Elizabeth's and the author was named as merely "F. B. K.," said to be Francis Baker, priest. Its date is about 1600. • • • Some American production might have had a chance if the religionists of all Protestant denominations could have been polled. This is, of course, mere guesswork. As it stands the result indicates a preference for hymns that are of high literary class as well as impressively devotional.

KU KLUX RULE.

From the New York World.

A KU KLUX mob got together and took the administration of justice into its own hands with results that will not soon be forgotten. Macon, Ga., now gives evidence of the same disease in a form not yet so virulent. A man and a woman against whom charges had been made were kidnaped by eight supposed members of the Ku Klux Klan, who carried the pair outside the city, whipped the man to the verge of insensibility, forcing the woman to look on, threatened death within 24 hours if an attempt was made to return, and left for home, feeling, no doubt, exceptionally virtuous. • • • Their defense of morals rests on a denial of all decency, all law, all tolerance, and an affirmation of as dark a savagery as remains in Africa. In effect, they have tarred and feathered Macon.

institutions and for support of the public schools is not subject to the referendum it is provided that these may go into effect at any time fixed by the Legislature.

The numerous limitations upon legislative power contained in the article on legislative department are retained practically without modifications. Provision is made for including new sections requiring legislation for the promotion of public health and agricultural welfare. The right of laborers to organize and engage in collective bargaining is expressly recognized and it is provided that nothing in the Constitution shall prevent the Legislature from enacting laws for the protection of the lives, health or safety of employes.

Some significant changes are proposed regarding the initiative and referendum, all of which are intended to make either process more difficult. The initiative is to be restricted to general laws and constitutional amendments. The percentage of voters required for petitions has eben increased to 8 per cent and 12 per cent for the initiation of laws and constitutional amendments respectively and to 10 per cent for the referendum. The basis on which the percentages are figured is now made the total vote for Governor instead of that for Judge of the Supreme Court. Every signature to a petition must be witnessed by two persons and where registration is required the signer must be a registered voter. Finally, in the case of the referendum the form of the question on the ballot is "Shall the act of the General Assembly be rejected," thus requiring an affirmative vote to reject instead of a negative, as under the existing provision. In this way the tendency of the uninformed voter to cast a negative vote will be an advantage instead of a detriment to the act of the Legislature that becomes subject to the referendum.

10 Articles Affected.

The changes thus far indicated affect 10 of the articles in the present Constitution. As previously stated, the remaining five articles have been subjected to more significant revision. In the Executive Department there have been introduced provisions for a budget that will materially improve the financial administration and prevent extravagance. The fiscal biennial period is changed so as to begin on July 1 and end on June 30 of the second year thereafter. At the beginning of each General Assembly in January the Governor is to submit the budget for the ensuing biennial fiscal period. This is to contain a detailed statement of proposed expenditures and estimated revenues with recommendations regarding taxation, if any, for increase or decrease of the revenues.

The expenditures recommended are to be based upon itemized estimates submitted to the Governor by the different administrative departments, boards, officers, etc. All of these estimates are subject to revision by the Governor before being presented to the Legislature. The latter body may reduce or strike out items but may not increase or add new items. Special provisions exist for the expenditures of the Legislature and judiciary. After the budget has been finally passed the Legislature may enact other appropriation measures, but only on condition that revenues to pay such appropriations remain unappropriated or are specially provided for and all of such measures are subject to the Governor's veto.

The second significant change in the executive department is the provision for a consolidation of all administrative work under not exceeding 12 departments. Four of these departments are substantially the same as those now existing and are to be presided over by elective heads, but the Legislature is left free to determine the organization of the other eight. The adoption of this plan would do away with the numerous independent boards, commissions, etc., and by bringing all administrative business of the same kind under one department would eliminate duplication and promote efficiency.

The Governor's power to secure the execution of the laws has been increased by making it the duty of all Sheriffs, Constables and police officials to respond to his call for aid in this matter. A number of other minor changes have been made in the executive, but none approaches in importance the provisions for the budget and consolidation.

Judiciary Committee Report.

The report of the Committee on the Judiciary was only partly considered in the Committee of the Whole, so that its final form has not been determined. Among the changes proposed for expediting the consideration of cases are the increase of the number of the Judges of the Supreme Court to nine and of the St. Louis Court of Appeals to six. Two divisions of three judges each are created for the latter court, while the number of these for the Supreme Court is increased to three. Provision is made whereby the number of Judges and the divisions may be increased by the Legislature after recommendation by the Supreme Court or any court of appeals.

A significant change is the creation of a County Court to take over the functions of the Probate Court and to exercise jurisdiction in misdemeanors, in civil cases where the amount involved does not exceed $2500, and in a few other matters, including juvenile cases, except in large cities. As the Circuit Court would be relieved of much of its business by the county courts, the number of circuits is reduced from 28 to 15, though the Legislature may from time to time increase or diminish this number.

Creation of Judicial Council.

The most important innovation regarding the judiciary is the creation of a Judicial Council consisting of

The report of the Committee on the Judiciary was only partly considered in the Committee of the Whole, so that its final form has not been determined. Among the changes proposed for expediting the consideration of cases are the increase of the number of the Judges of the Supreme Court to nine and of the St. Louis Court of Appeals to six. As the Circuit Court would be relieved of much of its business by the county courts, the number of circuits is reduced from [illegible] to 15, though the Legislature may from time to time increase or diminish this number.

Creation of Judicial Council.

The most important innovation regarding the judiciary is the creation of a Judicial Council consisting of five judges of the Supreme Court, the three presiding judges of the Courts of Appeals, three Circuit Judges and two judges of the County Court. This body is to meet at least once annually and is given the power to prescribe rules and forms of practice and procedure in all courts of record. This will be an improvement over the present method of having these matters regulated by the Legislature. The Judicial Council is also given power to provide for the transfer of cases from one court to another court of the same jurisdiction. In this way congestion in some courts can be relieved while others in which business is limited will be called upon to do their share of work and thus assist in expediting the administration of justice.

The article relating to Counties, Cities and Towns has been changed in accordance with the demand for improvements in this field. The Constitution makes a classification of cities, takes from the Legislature all power over this matter, and strengthens the restrictions upon local and special legislation affecting cities. The home rule charter plan which was invented by the Constitutional Convention of 1875 for cities of more than 100,000 population is now extended so that any city of 3000 population or more may draft its own charter. The home rule charter remains subject to the requirement that it must be consistent with the Constitution but as regards acts of the Legislature this requirement applies only to "general laws of the State relative to matters of general State concern and operation."

Of outstanding importance is the declaration that cities possess general powers in matters of local concern and municipal government. This reverses the present rule that cities possess only enumerated powers and the adoption of the new plan would greatly simplify the entire matter of city government.

Bi-Partisan Police Boards.

While express recognition is given to the right of a city to define and control its own police department it is provided that in cities with a population of 50,000 or more there shall be a board of police commissioners consisting of the mayor and not less than two other members. Not more than one-half of the latter can belong to the same political party and all of the members, except the Mayor, may be removed by the Governor who can fill any vacancy until the successor has been selected and qualified. Elections, control over public utilities and examination and auditing of accounts in cities remain subject to legislative regulation.

The Legislature is authorized to provide for the extension of the boundaries of cities so as to include contiguous territory in any adjoining county. A plan is also provided whereby the question of uniting the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County and of a partial or entire consolidation of their governments may be submitted to the voters and go into effect if approved by a majority of the voters of each unit.

Finally the importance of city zoning is expressly recognized by a provision authorizing any city to divide its territory into zones or districts and to regulate the use of land and structures within such zones to the extent and in the manner provided by general laws passed by the Legislature.

The report of the Committee on Revenue and Taxation, which has not as yet received any consideration by the convention, contains some of the most important changes that have been proposed. While the general property tax has been retained, the Legislature is authorized to classify notes, bonds, evidences of debt and money on deposit and to provide different rates and forms of taxation for each class of such property. This is the only section of the report of the committee on which a minority report was presented, four of the 18 members being opposed to this provision, but the committee, after four months' careful investigation and consideration, came to the conclusion that it was essential for removing inequalities and injustice in taxation and that its adoption would make it possible to secure revenue from the kind of property that now evades the general property tax.

The list of property exempted from taxation is extended by including State and local bonds and public cemeteries. Special provision is also made for encouraging the growth of forests by authorizing the Legislature to relieve such lands from taxation while devoted to such use, but providing for a tax of not less than one-fourth and not more than one-half of the value of timber removed from such land.

Tax Commission Provided.

In order to secure equality and uniformity in assessments and a better enforcement of the collection of taxes provision is made for a State Tax Commission of three members to have general supervision and control over these matters. This eliminates the present antiquated State Board of Equalization and by consolidating all matters affecting State taxation in one body will avoid much duplication and expense and promote efficiency in tax administration.

Few changes are proposed in the strict limitations upon the rate of taxation. The maximum rate for State purposes is actually decreased from 15 cents to 10 cents on the $100 valuation, and the rate for paying the interest on the certificates of indebtedness is reduced from 3 cents to 1 cent. Because of difficulty that has been experienced in raising sufficient revenue for public schools the maximum rate for school purposes has been increased to $1.20 on the $100 valuation, but any increases above 75 cents in cities of 300,000 inhabitants or more and above 40 cents in other districts can not be made without the consent of a maojrity of the voters and for any increases above $1 a two-thirds majority is necessary. Provision is also made whereby any county, city or town may levy a tax not exceeding 20 cents on the $100 valuation for public library purposes, provided a majority of the voters approve such levy.

Plan to Avoid Large Sinking Funds.

No substantial change has been made in the limitations imposed upon the amount of debt that may be incurred by the State and its local subdivisions. A significant change has been made, however, in the provision for having the bonds payable in annual serial installments thus avoiding the large sinking funds under the present system with opportunities for loss through mismanagement or corruption and making it possible to sell the bonds at a better rate.

Another important change is the provision authorizing municipal corporations to borrow money for establishing a permanent improvement revolving fund to be used in paying for improvements made by special assessments against the property specially benefited. By having the city pay for such improvements and later collect from the property owners, the contract price will be greatly reduced, as the contractor will not need to include anything to cover risk of invalidity of special tax bills or expenses of collection. It has been estimated that a provision of this kind will save property owners in St. Louis alone, each year, an amount equal to many times the cost of the constitutional convention.

The report of the Committee on Education has also received no consideration as yet from the convention. The most important changes recommended are the substitution of an elective State Board of Education for the present ex-officio board and the provision for a Commissioner of Education appointed by the board to take the place of the present elective State Superintendent of Schools. The Board of Education, which is to consist of six members, is to have general supervision of instruction in the public schools. For many years educational associations and friends of education have been urging changes of this character, though the majority have favored an appointive rather than an elective Board of Education.

Other Changes Recommended.

Other changes recommended in the article on Education include authoriztion for the Legislature to provide for instruction of persons above or below the school age and to provide for the establishment of teacher's retirement funds, an increase of the minimum amoutn of State aid for public schools from one-fourth to one-third of the State revenue, and the recognition of the right of the General Assembly to establish and maintain other free educational institutions. Finally, a provision concerning which there will be diversity of opinion declares that the prohibition upon public aid to any religious sect "shall not be construed to prohibit the reading of any version of the Holy Scriptures in the public schools."

When the work of the Constitutional convention has been completed it will not satisfy those who have hoped for an ideally perfect instrument. Such a Constitution, however, would have no chance of popular approval. It will be found that the new draft Constitution is the old Constitution of 1875 modified to meet some of the more important changes of the last half century. The real test for each voter to apply will be "Is the new document an improvement on the old?"

WHY DEPARTMENT STORE HEAD FAVORS MINIMUM WAGE LAW

to squeeze the last penny from their help.

I am sure we shall agree that the State has a right to step in, in such cases, and fix the limit beyond which cupidity shall not go, especially in dealing with inexperienced women and children.

2. Competition forces the wage scale downward. The very fact that men appear before the Massachusetts State Commission to ask for an abolition of the minimum wage law confirms this. During the next few years we shall have the greatest competition we have ever had in this country, because our producing power is far in excess of what our people are going to use or can use.

When It Is Better to Leave.

It is argued that a mandatory minimum wage law in any State would drive out certain lines of business. I would answer that it is better for any business or any industry not able to pay the minimum wage to leave the State.

Granting that neither greed nor inefficient management has anything to do with the inability to pay more, we ought to consider carefully whether such industries, even though established in the State, should not be discontinued and transferred to communities which have better natural facilities for carrying them on with efficiency and profit.

Any business that cannot pay a living wage—a wage that will produce profitable customers—is not good for the State and has no place in it. By not paying its employes an adequate wage it forces them to be supported, at least in part, by their relatives, friends or by the public. The charges which the public bears on their account must be added to the cost of living and go finally into the cost of the products of the better managed businesses, making it more difficult for them to compete with the products of business situated in states where underpayment is not allowed. This is a thing I want emphatically to maintain.

The minimum wage is ordinarily looked on as benefiting working people only. I contend that it is a boon to the employer as well as to the employe.

Low Wages—Cheap Standards.

Low wages make cheap standards in employers and cheap standards in employers result in inefficient employes. The average employer has to use a very large part of his time and energy in trying to keep things running smoothly between his executives and employes.

This is not due to any viciousness of the employes, but merely to the fact that they are an underpaid and discontented group of people.

A working girl worried about paying for her clothing and lodging isn't going to be either happy or ambitious.

You cannot get effective organization out of people who are unintelligent, and people cannot really intelligent who have not enough to live on properly.

Where the hard pressure of mere living—obtaining food, clothing and shelter—ends, you come to the point where the possibility of intelligent action begins — intelligent study, comprehension of the fundamentals of the business, appreciation and enjoyment of the work that is to be done, cooperative and effective organization of the group in carrying on the business. The better the wages the better off are we in the management, other things being equal.

A $14 minimum wage, moreover, forces us to get $14 worth of work out of an employe. If the State fixes the minimum wage at a proper level it helps me as well as my employe.

How It Helps Employer.

It helps me first by making sure that somebody isn't going to undersell me at the expense of his employes. It also prevents me as an employer from having a body of employes who, because they are not paid decent wages, are incapable of being consumers for my business. In the third place, it helps me by forcing me to help every employe to earn at least $14.

Two $7-a-week people are nowhere near the business asset that one $14 person is. If I have two $7 people turning out a piece of work by their combined effort I do not feel compelled from the standpoint of profit to take an interest in them.

I am busy and so long as I get reasonably good $7 results I am not forced to take enough interest in them to educate them to be worth $14 apiece. If, however, you make me pay $14 to one person, then I am going to teach ~~him to~~ be efficient enough to earn $14.

In our store we find it pays to have classes and to try in every way to make our employes capable of earning a high wage.

Furthermore a minimum wage law forces us to interest ourselves in community affairs—in the public schools, to see that they do a job as nearly right as possible in educating those who will become our employes so that they can make the $14 wage profitable to us. Also in the street car service to see that our employes are not left standing in the rain and get colds that incapacitate them; in housing, to see that the speculators do not make the rents too high.

Even if the minimum wage should force the discharge of a certain number of people, it is better that it should be so. That isn't a bit heartless.

If we should, as a result of the law, find a large number of people who cannot earn a living wage the State will have to get onto its job. And we citizens will have to get onto our jobs.

A minimum wage properly fixed means a leveling up; a wage of $5 or $6 or $8 means a leveling down. The low wage is, therefore, more costly for the state and nation, measured by all the higher and truer standards, and also measured by the actual final total cost in dollars than is a living wage.

Finally, if we have to pay a living wage, it will help us to get away from the habit of thinking about lower wages as the only remedy for high cost of production.

When we are forced by the existence of a minimum wage to apply our corrective endeavors to the real source of high costs—waste—we shall be taking a real step forward.

Ford and His Example.

In this connection, I will call attention to a result which cannot be ignored—to the man who has produced the best commodity for the price of its kind in the world, produced it in quantities never before dreamed of, and produced it so cheap that it can be sold in competition with the cheap labor of Europe—so cheap, indeed, that no country can make it to compete with him.

I refer to Henry Ford. He has produced 1,200,112,000 automobiles a year—eight a minute—has financed his whole business from the profits, and has become the richest man in the world.

And the minimum wage he pays is so high that if it were proposed in Massachusetts those who advocated it would be set down as crazy. Even at his high minimum wage he has been able to employ the lame, the crippled and the blind of the community, not as a charity but at a profit. The statistics in his autobiography covering these facts are amazing.

That demonstration of the possibility of the minimum wage speaks louder than my words and I hope it may be borne in mind in any decision of the minimum wage question.

THIS Lyon & Healy instrument forms a most attractive part of our display. They are, indeed, substantial values. The case designs are in the latest style. The tone is clear and sweet, mellowing with age. The construction is most durable and the musical quality is not impaired by climatic changes or hard usage. The action is of the latest improved style and the rendering of the player roll is filled with a hand-played sparkle which is most appealing. Certain features such as a tracking device and tone control merit your investigation. Be sure to have them demonstrated.

30 MONTHS TO PAY

Make a small down payment amounting to about 10 per cent of the price of the instrument. The balance may be arranged in equal sums running over a period of 30 months. Used musical instruments are taken in exchange at a liberal valuation. Let us explain this in detail to you. If you cannot come in person, send coupon above.

DON'T MOVE YOUR OLD PIANO!

If you are considering moving, don't bother about the transporting of your present instrument. Let us take it off your hands. We will issue to you a credit for it, giving you full allowance for its worth. Then, when you are settled in your new home, you may come down and select a new instrument which will not cost you much when you consider the allowance made for your old Piano. You have a choice of the beautiful Lyon & Healy Apartment Grands, the Lyon & Healy Uprights, and the popular Washburn Players. Many have found this a happy solution to their moving problem. They are relieved of all bother and worry, and increase the charm of their new home at little expense with a Piano of the latest design.

Great Exhibition of American Sculpture Opens in New York With 800 Pieces on View

Many Sculptors and Specially Invited Guests Present—Show Called Most Notable of Kind Since 1904.

By Victor S. Holm,

Professor of Sculpture in the School of Fine Arts of Washington University.

NEW YORK, April 13.

THE greatest exhibition of American sculpture ever gathered, excepting at world's fairs, was opened Thursday and Friday to a specially invited public for a first private view.

The invited guests met the sculptors, who were out in goodly number, and forming little groups they wandered about the gardens and the galleries admiring and discussing the works.

The exhibition is held in the buildings of the Hispanic Museum, the Numismatic Society and the American Academy of Arts and Letters. In the courts and gardens surrounding these buildings and those of the Georgraphical Society and Museum of the American Indian, the statuary was placed giving each piece as nearly perfect a setting as its author could desire. The gardens are laid out in terraces and walks planted with trees, shrubs and flowering plants forming a beautiful setting for the sculptures, so that in passing from Broadway through the massive gates into the grounds the visitor finds himself in something near a fairlyland, reminiscent of our several fairs.

The exhibition is given by the National Sculpture Society and the above named societies have generously offered their buildings and grounds for the show, which is one of the most notable of its kind since the big show held in Madison Square Garden in 1904 and for many years to come.

800 Pieces of Sculpture.

About 800 pieces of sculpture are here gathered, all admitted on their recognized value as works of art and having passed a rigorous jury.

The high quality of workmanship, the imagination and originality of these works makes one feel proud to be counted among this fellowship of American sculptors. And, speaking of fellowship—fellowship there was, all right. The minute I had made sure of quarters so I would not have to sleep in the park, I hit the trail via the subway for the show and arrived just in time to be stood up in the long line of sculptors and "shot" by the cameraman.

Everybody gave me the glad hand and asked about old St. Louis. In 20 minutes I had renewed and freshened up old friendships and acquaintances with former schoolmates, fellow assistants and former masters, most of whom I had not seen for nearly 18 years, but about whom I shall tell later on.

Good Fellowship Prevails.

The day was perfect, the sun shining and everybody looked wonderfully happy. However, spring is not yet here and the atmosphere is pretty cold in spite of the sunshine. But this little circumstance could not dampen the merriment and fellowship of the artists. Good-natured badinage and jollying rang from group to group and while we were lined up for the camera, George Gray Barnard shouted to all the men to take off their hats. He suited his action to the words, removing his own hat and displaying his immense shock of bushy, heavy hair. The suggestion did not meet with general approval, but brought protests from Daniel French, Lukeman and others whose heads are not so well equipped with hair as Mr. Barnard's. Much merriment prevailed among these sculptors, most of whom can look back upon a noble career of artistic achievements of enduring distinction and value. And surely they have a right to be happy, these creators of beautiful things who transform their visions and dreams into enduring stone and bronze. Do not their seamed and lined features speak eloquently of their struggles and hardships?

Most of the big men were there—Daniel French, Herbert Adams, Charles Niehaus, Adolph Weinman, Hermon McNeil, John Roth, Evelyn Longman and Bessie Potter were notable among the women sculptors.

This great exhibition abundantly demonstrates the dignified position held by American sculpture in the world's art. It is too big and too important to be described minutely, but must be studied carefully in order to be adequately presented to the Post-Dispatch readers. I shall spend a few inspiring days up there and write about it more fully in future articles.

NONUNION PLUMBING LABORERS TO REPLACE 500 STRIKERS

Wage Conferences of Last Two Weeks Fail; Men Quit Two Weeks Ago.

Nonunion plumbers' laborers will be employed tomorrow to take the places of 500 laborers on strike because their demand for an increase of 12½ cents an hour to $1 was refused, E. J. Blake, secretary of the Master Plumbers' Association, said yesterday.

Blake indicated that conferences held in the last two weeks had failed, and that the employers did not intend to accede to the demand of $8 a day. He said the unions stood on this demand and would not accept the work at the old scale of $7 a day, in the final conference Friday afternoon.

No comment was made on the announcement by officers of the union, who remarked the situation "remains unchanged." The strike began a week ago last Monday.

War Memorial Meeting.

Patriotic and civic organizations are requested by the National World War Registrars to be represented at a joint meeting to be held at Vandervoort's Auditorium Thursday, at 2:30 p. m. Maintenance of the Gold Star Court on King's highway boulevard, and the planting of trees on the Gold Star National Highway from Kansas City to St. Louis, will be discussed.

1200 SOUTHERN NEGROES LOCATED HERE SINCE JAN. 1

Urban League Reports 1500 Have Arrived and 1200 Stayed to Make Their Homes Here.

225 CAME IN LAST SUNDAY

Arrivals Average 100 a Week and Are Expected to Increase — Many Placed in Jobs.

A study of the migration of negroes from the South to St. Louis has been made public by the Urban League, a negro social service organization. The study was compiled by Gordon H. Simpson, executive secretary. About 1500 negroes arrived here from the South since Jan. 1, he found, and about 80 per cent of these, or 1200, took up residence here, the remainder going to Chicago, Gary, Ind.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Pittsburg and other industrial centers.

Those who remained here took homes in East St. Louis, Clayton, Kirkwood, Webster Groves and Kinloch Park, as well as St. Louis proper. The majority of the newcomers are from Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Mississippi and Tennessee. They were arriving at the rate of about 100 a week in the latter part of January, after which the rate increased. Last Sunday morning 225 arrived and the social workers are expecting even more to come as the weathre grows warmer. Sunday morning is a favorite time of arrival.

It has been observed that many newcomers are met by friends or relatives and provided with housing and assistance in adapting themselves to city environment. Often there are family reunions, where men had come previously.

Some of the workers arriving had made previous arrangements for employment. The Urban League finds that there is work to be had now by all negro men and women who really want work. During March it placed 184 men and women who had just come from the South.

Printers Held on Lottery Charge.

A warrant charging the printing of lottery tickets has been issued against Edward W. Bailey of 3949 North Eleventh street and Leo D. Woods, 2054 De Soto street. Nearly 1000 lottery tickets, based on weather report readings, were confiscated by the police gambling squad on March 2, following a raid on a small printing establishment operated by Bailey and Woods at the North Eleventh street address.

LATE WILLIAM BUTLER HONORED

Cycling Club Adopts Resolutions on Death of Yeatman Principal.

Resolutions in honor of William M. Butler, principal of Yeatman High School, who died suddenly March 29, have been adopted by the St. Louis Cycling Club, of which he had been an active member since 1906.

Besides owning an automobile, Prof. Butler had two bicycles which he invariably used in making week-end trips with other members of the club. His Saturday and Sunday trips averaged 60 miles and his yearly bicycle mileage averaged 3000 miles. He had thoroughly toured most of the scenic and historical sections of the United States, including several national parks, and last summer he spent 10 weeks touring France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany and Holland, covering 1500 miles on wheel.

COMMODITY PRICES IRREGULARLY FIRM DURING THE WEEK

Slight Easiness in Money Market—Wage Advances Announced—Foreign Exchange Is Quiet.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"Generally speaking, events in the week's markets have been quite similar to those of the week before. Reports from industrial districts have remained impressive, while speculative sentiment has been decidedly unsettled. Steel production, building construction, railway loadings, and automobile output all have been setting new records. Commodity prices have remained irregularly firm. Wage advances still testify to a shortage of labor. Yet the speculative markets have fluctuated between weakness and dullness. Quite plainly the bear party tried its strength afresh in both stocks and cotton. In both cases the efforts cannot be described as more than slightly successful. What the shorts have succeeded in doing is to kill off interest rather than to precipitate any large volume of liquidation. The public appetite for speculation is, for the moment at least, small, but the public shows little inclination to throw over its holding.

Slight Money Ease.

"A slight easiness in the money market, which may be connected with the passage of April 1 settlements and the drawing down of the unusually heavy Government deposits built up during March, or which may be related to something more fundamental, serves to draw attention afresh to the banking position. Evidences of contraction which are presented by the Federal Reserve statements have been interpreted as demonstrating a relaxation of demands for credit and a lack of justification for an increase in the official discount rates. It must be remembered, however, that the Federal Reserve system is a reserve system and that changes in its condition do not necessarily parallel those in the condition of member banks. As a matter of fact, the latest information available, that for April 4, shows that the total loans and discounts of the 777 member banks reporting weekly to the Federal Reserve authorities stood at a new high record since September, 1921. At $11,880,000,000 the loans and discounts of these banks were $1,000,000,000 higher than a year before, while investments had grown by an approximately equal amount. Under the circumstances it is clear that, irrespective of the changes in the condition of the Federal Reserve system, a great expansion of credit, based on gold imports, has been had. Incidentally, rediscounts by the Reserve banks themselves have creased from $380,000,000, the low point of last year, to $623,000,000 at present.

Exchange Is Irregular.

"Much irregularity has been apparent in the foreign exchange market, but a rallying tendency was in evidence during the latter part of the week. In addition to such influences as foreign buying of American securities and American profit-taking in foreign securities, it seems that recent reactions have been related to foreign purchases of our wheat and of raw materials which are required to nourish the mild trade revival which is going on abroad. A special factor in the case of the currencies of the continental allies has been the various rumors of negotiations for a settlement of the Ruhr and reparation problems.

"Stocks showed a firm tone in moderate trading activity, changes reflecting the technical position of the market rather than the news. A covering movement in the steels and certain other parts of the industrial list made for an improved tone, while the rails gave evidence of fresh buying in several issues. The movement in the rails was, in fact, the feature of the short session. As the market closed gains of a good sized fraction to a point or more were common in this group. Bonds were extremely dull with unimportant price changes.

Exchange Rates Down.

"In a typical quiet week end foreign exchange market the majority of the leading European currencies were quoted at slightly lower rates, although the tone was steady. Sterling declined ⅛ to $4.65⅝, while French francs after dropping 3 points to 6.65 cents recovered to 6.66 cents. Italian lire and Belgian francs held close to their previous closing levels. German marks were quoted practically unchanged, the market for them being nominal. Canadian dollars made a new low for the week at 97.75.

"Despite a bullish report by the Census Bureau on consumption of cotton during March, the market continued under bearish influences. The report showed 623,105 bales of lint consumed last month, as compared with 566,924 bales in February and 519,361 a year ago. The trade had expected about 600,000 bales. This establishes a new high record for cotton consumption by domestic mills, but nevertheless the report struck a market showing a lack of confidence on the failure of prices to respond to unfavorable weather and prices made a further decline. May contracts at a late price of 28.85 cents were down 31 points. Wheat, on the other hand, was bought briskly and new highs for the season were made, the weather being the chief influence. Corn firmed up in sympathy with wheat.

"A decrease of $26,000,000 in loans and discounts and of $6,000,000 in net demand deposits accompanied an increase of $10,000,000 in surplus as shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House. Loans and discounts now total $4,694,000,000, while demand deposits amount to $3,721,000,000. Circulation rose slightly and there was a gain of $10,000,000 in reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank."

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The cotton cloths market closed a quiet week today with business dull. Prices on print cloths and sheetings continued low, but there was little inclination to buy. Twills, pajama checks, sateens and tire fabrics were easier with some business transacted in small lots. Prices for 64 by 60s and 68 by 72s were unchanged at 11 and 12⅝, re-

MIXED PRICE CHANGE ON NEW YORK CURB MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Today's brief session on the Curb Exchange was for the most part uninteresting, with price changes a mixture of small gains and losses.

Offerings for the purpose of evening account over the week-end were not heavy enough to have much effect while buying operations were also on a smaller scale except in a few special stocks in which pools are reported working.

The sharp advance of almost seven points overnight in Yukon Alaska Trust certificates furnished a noteworthy exception. Up to the last few minutes of trading no further sales occurred, but the stock was quoted 32 bid, offered at 34.

Gilliland among the oils gained a point while such recent favorites as Southern States and Maracaibo were only fractionally changed. The Standard group were disposed to work slightly higher with Standard of Indiana and Vacuum the active favorites.

Foreign Exchange

By Lased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review today says:

"The past week was marked by irregular movements in foreign exchanges, declines that occurred in the first half of the week carrying both Swiss and Dutch rates down to new low levels for the year, while some of the other exchanges sold at the lowest rates noted in a long period. Sterling was extremely heavy and under pronounced pressure in the first two days when demand sold as low as $4.64, a loss of 2⅝ from last Saturday, but it developed a steadier tone during the remainder of the week, recovering a good part of that loss. At the same time French exchange showed pronounced strength, moving up 11 points on Monday to 6.74, and although it reacted from that high level, ended the week with a substantial gain. Many of those concerned in the operations in French exchange continued to insist that the movements were of governmental direction.

"Swiss exchange was under steady pressure all through the week, selling at 18.18, against 18.35 at the close of last week, and exchange on Holland was also under special pressure, guilders falling to 39.03. Denmark was in steady supply, yielding to 18.88, against 19.05 a week ago. Italian moved in an orderly manner and showed firmness especially in the last half of the week. German was quiet with quotations for marks generally being nominal.

"Brazilian exchange, after selling down to the low record of 10.40 in the preceding week, made a gradual recovery to 11 yesterday. Canadian exchange was heavy, ranging from 98.25 to 98. Norwegian made a new low for the year, falling to 17.96.

"In a typical quiet week-end foreign exchange market the majority of the leading European currencies were quoted at slightly lower rates, although the tone was steady. Sterling declined ⅛ to $4.65⅝ while French francs after dropping 3 points to 6.65 cents recovered to 6.66 cents. Italian lire and Belgian francs held close to their previous closing levels. German marks were quoted practically unchanged, the market for them being nominal. Canadian dollars made a new low for the week at 97.75.

Closing quotations Saturday were.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The main distinction between the two-hour stock market today and the markets of preceding days was that the advance was more decided and at the same time better distributed.

It was the first occasion in a long while that the railway shares came in for attention. During the latter half of the trading these stocks in fact were fully as active as the industrials.

Canadian Pacific made a new high for the year above 151 and this, with the renewal of buying operations in Pere Marquette, Pittsburg & West Virginia and one or two other low-priced issues, led to a recovery all through the railway list.

Mercantile Marine preferred made a new low at the start, but subsequently rallied with the rest of the list. There was further heavy selling for a time in Marland Oil, but the pressure was off other oil shares and the short interest in the Pan-Americans, in Pacific Oil and in California Petroleum was busily covering.

Copper stocks for the first time this week showed signs of improvement, although this was not particularly emphatic.

Reynolds Spring was a feature among the specialties. Tobacco stocks were active and strong, with Retail Stores up close to 83.

In the last few minutes of trading the usual week-end selling by the professional following caused some irregularity and prices came down from their best. But the close despite this could fairly be described as strong.

The Bond Market.

Bond prices were mostly steady today. French bonds held around their recent high today and the Belgian 7½s and 8s made fractional advances over the closing prices of last night. Just now Belgian bonds are in greater favor with investers than the French.

United States Steel sinking fund fives were lower and American Telephone & Telegraph collateral trust 5s higher, the latter fairly active. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg 4½s gained a point and the Armour 4½s rallied fractionally. A sale of Lake Shore & Michigan Southern 3½s, the long term issue, was recorded on a 4.70 per cent basis.

The Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio 6s which sold down so sharply yesterday regained part of the loss today.

The Marland Oil issues with warrants attached receded with the stock.

Libertys were dull and slightly lower.

There was only light trade in raw sugar futures, mostly of an evening up character. Closing: May 5.87; July 6.03; Sept. 6.21; Dec. 5.87.

There was no change in refined sugar, fine granulated being listed at 9.20 to 9.40. Refined futures were nominal.

WHEAT SELLS HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

Grain futures closed higher at the week-end session on the Merchants' Exchange today. Private crop estimates and weather conditions exerted influence on prices.

NEW HIGHS FOR SEASON FOR WHEAT AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Wheat made new high records for all months today. There are some extravagant claims being made in regard to the top. The market started lower on profit-taking by longs, but the privately estimated 100,000,000-bushel crop for Kansas and the reported heavy snowfall over the Northwest causing a further delay in seeding induced buying. Shorts were transferring lines to the July, which helped the nearby future. Later another private estimate of 28,000,000 bushels of wheat for Nebraska this year induced buying. Export demand was good for durum wheat, but April shipment is specified and little in this position is available. Cash wheat premiums were unchanged. Milling demand for wheat was quiet. Receipts continue of heavy volume. Market closed ⅜@1⅛c up. May, $1.26½@1.26⅝; July, $1.23¾@1.23⅞; September, $1.22⅜@1.22½.

May and July corn reached new high levels on the crop. There was heavy profit-taking by longs at the start and some selling on stop loss orders. The strength in wheat induced some buying and later there was buying by the reputed bull leaders. Receipts were light. Shipping demand slow. Lake rates to Buffalo opening of navigation are expected to be 4¼c a bushel on corn, 4c being bid and 5c asked. This, it is said, is checking export trade. Market closed ⅜@⅝c up. May, 80⅜@80⅞c; July, 82¼c; September, 82⅝c to 82½@⅝c.

Oats were moderately higher. Heavy realizing sales checked the upturn. Reports indicate that much of the abandoned winter wheat acreage is being seeded to oats. Market closed ⅛@⅝c higher. May, 46-46¼c; July, 46⅞@47c; September, 45⅞@46c.

Provisions weakened after a firm start on selling by longs. Lard closed 12½c lower; ribs 10c lower.

Closing trade at the St. Louis National found most cattle and heavy hogs lower for the week, light hogs slightly higher and sheep and lambs about steady. Receipts of cattle and hogs were liberal, although the run of sheep and lambs was rather small. Compared with a week ago beef steers closed right at 25c lower; light yearlings, 25c to 50c lower; cows, steady to 25c lower; bulls, 15c to 25c lower; stocker and feeder cattle steady, and veal calves $1.50 to $2 lower. Declines were generally forced in the trade the forepart of the week. Later trade braced slightly and the close was reasonably active. Particularly severe treatment was directed against light yearlings early in the period. Receipts were large and demand sometimes insufficient to accommodate the offering. Result was sharply lower prices and fairly large holdovers Monday and Tuesday. By Wednesday the accumulation was finally moved, however, and a clearance was made for the week. Beef steer prices ranged largely from $7 per cwt, or under, paid for common "yellow hammers," to at the top paid for a drove of 1439-lb bullocks. The bulk of all sales were from $7.25 to $8.60. Arrivals included a dozen cars of Mississippi beeves, that sold from $7 to $8.40, and several cars of Texas that made $7.25 to $7.65. Light yearlings were most numerous from $6.75 to $8.50. The top was $8.15. The practical range for butcher cows was $4.75 to $7.25, with the bulk making $5.25 to $6.50. Cutter cows were quotable at $3.50 to $4.50 and canners at $3 to $3.25, with a few common down to $2.75. Beef and bologna bulls sold largely through a spread of $4.50 to $5.25. Stocker and feeder cattle held to a steady level under continued light receipts and demand. Steers varied in price from $5, paid for a common grade, to $8, the top. Veal calves on the close were quotable at $8 to $8.50, compared with a $10 bulk at the close of the previous week. Declines were also forced in the market for common and "throwout" calves.

Hog Receipts Heavy.

The week's hog supply up to date totals 94,040 head, a heavy run when compared with last week and a year ago. Last week the offering of hogs numbered 87,362 head or 6678 less than the week just closed. An increase of 26,471 is shown over last year's receipts for the same period. Receipts up to the present time this year are the heaviest in the history of this market. The heavy supply has aided the big buyers in combating any advance in prices and compared with a year ago prices are from $1.50 to $2 lower. For the week prices are uneven. Light hogs from 150 to 230 pounds at the week's close are about 10c higher. At the close lights are selling up to $8.65, compared with a top of $8.55 last Saturday. On the other hand heavier weights are lower. Hogs from 230 to 250 pounds at the close are right at 10c to 15c lower. The extremely heavy hogs also show a loss of from 10c to 15c. Towards the end of the week buyers have been slow to take weighty kinds and a drop in prices has consequently resulted. Pig trade shows no radical change, although the better weight kinds display a weaker tendency at the close. There has been a right good demand for pigs all through the week and those of good quality have sold well, although some sales have been from 15c to 25c lower than last week. For rough hogs prices are uneven. Packing sows look about 10c to 15c lower and stags about steady. The stag supply has met with a right good demand all week and little or no fluctuations in prices have resulted. The close finds hogs in good to choice quality selling as follows: Heavy hogs from 250 pounds and up $8 to $8.10, medium weights from 230 to 250 at $8.15 to $8.35, 150 to 230 $8.55 to $8.65, strong weight pigs 120 to 130 pounds $7.50 to $7.85; medium weight pigs from 110 to 120 pounds at $7 to $7.50, light pigs 80 to 100 pounds $6.50 to $7 and pee wees 70 pounds and down $6 to $6.50. Sows $6.75 to $7 and stags $5.50 to $6.50.

Sheep Rule Steady.

With just a moderate or small supply on sale each day this week the market was draggy and prices remained on a steady basis all week. Good fat offerings found ready sale at all times, with the exception of those that were heavy. Buyers were very much opposed to the heavy offerings and purchased them under protest only, which means that they do not sell very readily or bring a very good price. Good to choice spring lambs sold during the week at $15@17, fair grades went at lower prices, best wool lambs, $14.50@14.75; plainer ones, $14@14.40; best wool lambs, $11.50 11.90. Good to choice wool mutton sheep ewes were quoted at $8.25@8.50, clipped ones $7.25@7.50, wool wethers $9 or a little better, choppers and bucks $4.50@6, and canners $2.50@4. Most of the offerings now coming to market are clipped.

Horses and Mules.

Receipts of horses approximated 600 head in first hands, a good run. The principal demand was for work stock and heavy chunks with quality. These ruled steady to strong. A weaker trend was indicated on other grades, including Southerners and light Eastern chunks. The offering was cleared in good order, most of the stock selling at auction.

The mule run was rather small—around 500 head on commission. Demand was correspondingly light and except for some of the good big mules that sold steady, a lower trend was indicated in the market. Particularly bearish pressure was directed against the plain, common offerings.

Honey and Beeswax.

HONEY—Bright amber, 7@8c per pound; dark, ½@1c less. Comb honey at $4.25 per case.

BEESWAX—Prime at 26c per pound

LONDON SECURITY MARKET

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, April 14.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review says:

"Opinions vary considerably as to whether or not gilt-edged securities here are going on to a 4 per cent basis. Any important revival in trade would undoubtedly prevent such a development, but it is realized that continued chaos in Europe may tensify the tendency for Continental capital to flow to America and Britain for safety, with the resulting effect of driving up security prices. These conditions are not healthy and are a bad preparation for a genuine revival of international trade later.

"Some interest is displayed in the impending visit of the chairman of Barclay's Bank to your side to deliver a lecture before the Executive Council of your bankers' association at its spring meeting. Goodenough leaves by the Berengaria today."

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Erratic price changes and a sensitive and nervous market characteristic of the transition from winter to spring, marked this week's butter market.

Although the market appeared firm at times, the general trend was toward lower prices. At all times there appeared a sufficient supply and generally a small surplus that was hard to move because of the utter lack of confidence.

The usual spring shortage failed to develop and it was generally believed that foreign buter would offset any lack of domestic supplies. The narrow range between scores and unusual relations of market price to each other continued and all markets complained of the scarcity of under grades and of the surplus of top scores. The range between 88 and 92 score never exceeded 2c and seldom reached that figure.

That condition was brought about largely by better quality butter manufactured and the scarcity of storage butter. More liberal supplies of storage butter would have aided in satisfying the want of those looking for cheaper butter. At the close of the week, particularly at New York, theer were more complaints of poor quality.

Foreign and Far Western butter did not play so important a part as last wek, but their influence still tended to keep the markets unsettled.

Wholesale prices on 92-score stock closed yesterday at the four leading butter markets as follows: Chicago, 46½c, 2 points loss; New York, 47c, 2 points loss; Boston, 49s, point loss, and Philadelphia, 48c, 1½ point loss.

COMPLAINT AGAINST SHIPPING OF MILK IN CARS WITH LIVESTOCK

Distributors Declare Milk Is Contaminated and Its Bacteria Content Increased by Animal Heat.

Milk districutors in South St. Louis have complained to the State Pure Food and Drug Department that daily shipments to them from farmers in Southwest Missouri have been coming over the Mississippi River & Bonne Terre aRilroad in express cars in which calves also were being carried.

The milk is being contaminated, they complained, and the animal heat from the calves raises the temperature of the milk, thus increasing its bacteria count.

Inspectors of the department visited the South Broadway station of the railroad, and found 50 cans of milk in the same car with a shipment of calves. They destroyed two cans of the milk and seized two others.

T. R. Hazard, inspector in charge of the St. Louis office, said the department would take steps to compel the express company to abolish handling milk in cars with livestock.

SUICIDE VERDICT FOR DEATH OF MAN SEPARATED FROM WIFE

Tailor Died of Poisoning After Summoning Wife by Telephone.

A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned yesterday in the case of Henry H. Green, 56 years old, a tailor, of 4904 Easton avenue, who died at the city hospital at 8 a. m. Thursday.

An autopsy held after the Coroner ordered an investigation at the inquest Friday showed death resulted from carbolic poisoning and not cerebral hemorrhage, as was reported when Green was taken to the hospital at 1:40 a. m. Thursday.

Green's wife, Leona, from whom he was separated, told police she was at home at 1 a. m. Thursday when Green called her by telephone and asked her to come to his shop, saying he was very sick. She lives at 4708 McMillan avenue. She arrived about a half hour later, she said, and found Green lying on the floor unconscious. She called the police. The investigation failed to show financial cause for Green's taking poison, and the theory is held that he was depressed over separation from his wife.

QUIET BOOM FOR FRED D. GARDNER FOR PRESIDENCY

Real Object of Friends of Former Governor Said to Be to Land Second Place on Ticket for Him.

SOME TALK FOR REED ALSO REVIVED

Attempt of Either to Obtain State Delegation Likely to Revive Old Democratic Party Split.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

Seemingly reliable reports during the past few days that an organization is quietly being perfected to attempt to bring about the election of delegates from Missouri to the Democratic National convention next year who wil support former Gov. Fred D. Gardner for the nomination for the presidency, is attracting much attention among Democratic politicians throughout the State.

While it is understood the real objective will be the nomination for the vice presidency, it is recognized by the politicians that to effect that it virtually is necessary for a candidate to show some real strength as a candidate for the presidency, at least to have his own State delegation.

Silent as to Intentions.

Gardner has issued no public statement regarding his intentions in the next campaign. It has been assumed that his one term as Governor did not fully satisfy his ambition to hold public office. About his only opportunities in the next campaign will be to seek the presidential, or rather vice presidential nomination, or to again seek the nomination for Governor, there being no vacancy in the United States Senate from Missouri until 1926.

While many of Gardner's friends have believed he wanted another term in the Governor's office, their opinion changed a few weeks ago when Omar D. Gray of Sturgeon, Gardner's campaign manager in 1916, announced he had talked with the former Governor and could say positively that Gardner would not be a candidate for Governor.

Since that time the talk of Gardner for the Vice-Presidency has started. Several Democrats, influential in State politics, who have called upon Gardner within the past few weeks have left him with the definite impression that he would seek to corral the delegates to the National convention to vote for him for the Presidential nomination with the ultimate aim of getting the second place on the ticket. None would admit that Gardner had directly stated such an intention, but they said they considered him a candidate.

Insist He Has Chance.

Close friends of Gardner insist that if he should get into the Presidential contest at once he would have a chance for the nomination, but that, of course, is a position which any active supporter of a candidate for the second place would take.

Gardner was talked of for the nomination at San Francisco in 1920 but had made no effort to line up delegates and was not seriously a candidate.

The prospect that he will enter next year brings up the possibility that Missouri will have two candidates, there being a very considerable talk among the supporters of Senator Reed that he will seek the nomination for Presidency. They realize, however, that an effort by Reed to control the selection of delegates from Missouri would revive the very bitter fight of last year when he won the nomination for Senator by a very narrow margin.

Politicians Not for Reed.

Although Senator Reed developed an unlooked for and remarkable strength in the Senatorial campaign, it is extremely doubtful that he could obtain the Misosuri delegation to the national convention. The politicians in rural Missouri were not for Reed last year and they are not for him now, though a good many who opposed him then would support him now on the theory that he has demonstrated his ability to attract votes of Republicans, and that is counted a strong asset for any politician.

The rural politicians, however, generally pick the convention delegates and a revival of the old fight on Reed probably would cause him to lose in nearly all the country districts, though undoubtedly he could control the eight delegates selected from St. Louis and Kansas City.

On the other hand, it is by no means certain that Gardner could succeed in having delegates instructed for him, there being an extended criticism of Gardner by both Reed and anti-Reed Democrats last year because of his fence-straddling during the senatorial primary fight. Pressure was brought to bear on him by both sides but he refused to mix in the primary. After Reed's nomination he made speeches for Reed and the remainder of the ticket, which did not help him much with the Reed followers because he wasn't on hand when they needed him, nor did it improve his standing with the anti-Reed element.

Gardner's Chances Analyzed.

However, Gardner has a political organization reaching into nearly every county, directed by Democrats he appointed to office. Such organizations frequently disintegrate after a Governor goes out of office, his followers looking to other leaders who will have jobs to give out, but there would be no reason why Gardner's organization would not function for him for the vice presidency and by diligent effort he should be able to get the larger part of the Missouri delegates instructed for him.

At least his candidacy, together with the prominent part Reed undoubtedly will take in the convention, will serve to put Missouri in its usual national convention place in the sun.

Will Address Community Conference.

Elwood Street, director of the Community Council, yesterday received a letter from Dr. Haven Emerson, of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, New York City, in which he stated he would attend the Community Conference to be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, May 2, 3 and 4. Dr. Emerson will make an address May 4 on "Public Health and the Community." a former health officer of New City. Other noted out-of- speakers will speak on touching upon the field of service.

Is It Really Up to Your Grocer?

Madam, we will admit your right to have all your groceries and food purchases protected in clean, sanitary Victory Food Containers.

But—are you sure it is quite fair to blame your Grocer if he overlooks it?

Consider all he has to look after, from early morning till long after closing time. Just notice, next time you are in his store, how careful he is to buy clean goods.

And notice what pains he takes to keep all foodstuffs clean in his store, protected by glass and screens. The old days of the cat in the cracker barrel are gone forever.

And if—through oversight or pressure of work—he fails to give equal protection to your purchases from counter to kitchen by using the world's cleanest, most sanitary food container, is it fair to take away your trade without telling him why?

You wouldn't treat your cook that way. If she became careless about washing her hands before handling foodstuffs, you wouldn't discharge her without at least talking it over.

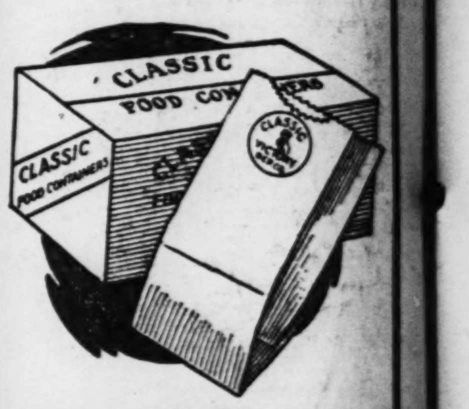
So, if your Grocer "hasn't got around yet" to protecting your purchases in Victory Food Containers, isn't it really up to you to tell him about it?

He knows that Victory Food Containers cost no more than ordinary bags. He will be glad to add this final touch of service.

And—if he is the right kind of Grocer—he will thank you for reminding him that

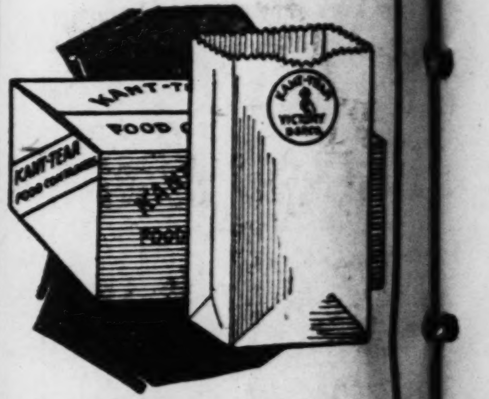
You are entitled to have ALL your groceries protected in clean, sanitary Victory Food Containers.

Victory Food Containers come in three popular brands. All three reach the dealer in sanitary, sealed cartons, as pictured below.



"Classic" Square

Best of the square containers on the market today. Like the Kant-Tear and the Pedigree, it comes to the dealer in sanitary, sealed cartons.



"Kant-Tear"

Universal Standing Automatic. This popular Victory Food Container is strongly built to stand wear and tear on the counter.

"Pedigree"

Universal Standing Automatic. Known to the trade as "The Food Container De Luxe."

Each of these three popular Victory Food Containers is recognized as the best of its kind on the market today.

Amateur Players Busy With Plans For Musical Show

"Sunshine," a Spring Revue, Will Be Presented at American Theater, Evenings of May 10 and 11—Proceeds to Go to Newsboys' Home.

DISCUSSION of costume color-combinations, the very newest dance steps and the most effective stage settings occupies the waking hours of nearly half a hundred of the younger social set just now as plans rapidly crystallize for the elaborate musical comedy "Sunshine"—a spring revue which is to be presented by members of the Amateur Players at the American Theater on Thursday and Friday evenings, May 10 and 11. Proceeds of the production are to be devoted to the work of Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, 3010 Washington avenue, which, though conducted under Catholic administration, cares for all destitute boys, regardless of their religious denomination.

The ranks of the Amateur Players, under whose auspices a number of plays have been successfully produced during the past two seasons at the Frederic Luyties home in Brentmoor, have been augmented considerably since the close of the Lenten period and the organization possesses an array of talent well equipped to enter the theatrical production field on a wider scale. Rehearsals for the contemplated revue will begin within a few days, and announcement of the cast will be made soon. The executive board of the benefit, including the Misses Dorothy McBride, Dorothy Simmons, Marian Franciscus, Elizabeth Luyties, Gloria Geisinger; Mmes. Charles Parsons Pettus, Walter Fischel, Edward Gillette Hotchkiss, and Messrs. George O'Neil and William H. Luyties, met at the home of Miss Franciscus yesterday morning and discussed details of the affair.

Miss Mary Etta Randolph, who conceived the idea and inspired the plans for "Sunshine," will serve as chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. L. DeSmet Carton is handling the publicity, William H. Luyties is designing scenery and stage effects, Miss Gloria Geisinger has charge of dances, and Mrs. Hotchkiss is planning the costumes. The book of the production is the work of George O'Neil, who also will direct the musical numbers.

The outstanding social event of the week and one of general interest will be the arrival on Friday of the Princess Santa Borghese of Italy, who will be the guest of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of 31 Westmoreland place for several days. Princess Borghese, who is one of the progressive intellectuals of Europe, is the descendant of one of the ancient noble families of Italy, a graduate of a number of colleges, and interested in many of the movements which have aroused Italy to forward steps in the past few years. She is a young woman of great beauty and charm, and is keenly interested in affairs in this country. She is in the United States under the auspices of the Italy-America Society, which has as its object the closer relations of the two countries. Princess Borghese is on her way to California to speak at the national educational conference there in June.

Mrs. Soctt will give a large dinner for her guest Saturday evening at the spring opening of the St. Loius Country Club, and Saturday noon Mrs. Harry Potter will have a luncheon. Mrs. Edward K. Love will be hostess at a tea on Friday afternoon. Sunday noon Mrs. J. Porter Tirrill will give a luncheon for the Princess, and that afternoon Mrs. Samuel Fordyce Jr. will entertain the visitor at tea at her country place near Florissant. Monday, April 23, the Princess will be honored at a luncheon by Mrs. William Scott Samuel and that evening will be given a dinner by Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus. Tuesday, April 24, Mrs. George C. Hitchcock will have a luncheon and Mrs. Daniel Catlin a dinner.

Princess Borghese will speak Friday afternoon at a public lecture at the Mary Institute Auditorium under the auspices of the Alumnae Association of the School, her subject being "Who Are the Fascisti?" She will speak Saturday morning at 11:30 at Washington University; Sunday evening, April 22, at the Sheldon Memorial for the Community Open Forum, and Tuesday afterooon, April 24, at the Wednesday Club. Her St. Louis engagements are in charge of Mrs. Guido Pantaleoni.

Mlle. Gondre, Paris Diseuse, Presented at Mrs. Hocker's Salon

Guests Invited to Meet Artiste at Close of Entertainments—Debutantes of This Season and Last Preside at Tea Tables.

IT is quite the fashion in New York and other Eastern cities to hold "salons," when the hostess of the afternoon invites groups of friends into her drawing room to listen to an entertainment provided by a noted artiste, and yet rarely, if ever, has St. Louis society been given the opportunity of attending such functions until Monday and Tuesday by Mrs. Lon O. Hocker at her home, 39 Portland place.

Coinciding with the old French custom, for the salon had its origin in the French Colonial period of the eighteenth century, the guests were invited to meet the artiste at the close of the program and later the doors of the dining room were thrown open for tea, with the debutantes of this season and last presiding at the table.

The entertainment was unique. A miniature stage, footlights and all, had been built at one end of the spacious drawing room, and seats on each occasion accommodated more than 200 guests.

The entertainer was Mlle. Mona Gondre, leading juvenile comedienne at the famous Theatre National de L'Odeon in Paris, a dainty, petite young French woman, whom Mrs. Hocker had known in Paris, and who has become one of her very good friends. Mlle. Gondre is on her way back to France after a concert tour.

She chose from her repertoire songs of almost medieval times, and each day sang groups of them, illustrating the legends of various European countries, in costumes to conform to the subject. Changing from a quaint peasant of Brittany, with a black gown trimmed with Brittain lace, wooden shoes and flaring cap, in which she sang the old French marching song, "Malbrough s'en va t'en Guerre." (Malbrouck Has Gone to the Wars), she became a crinoline girl, in full skirt, lace bertha and poke bonnett. One could almost picture the old woman who "went to market, all on a market day," in the song from the nursery book.

Subsequently she donned the garb of the French Colonial dame and with her hair powdered and curled, she drifted into the old English ballads, such as "I Remember Meeting You."

One could well imagine Mlle. Gondre, affectionately compared to Yvette Guilbert, with her piquant, vivacious manner, charming the L'Odeon audiences of her native Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Audenried Whittemore of 4434 Westminster place, will depart in May for Bronxville, N. Y., to make their home. They gave a dinner party last night for Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fenimore Cooper of Boston, Mass., who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bixby.

Mrs. Samuel C. Davis of 13 Westmoreland place has returned from New York, where she spent Easter with her daughter, Miss Alita Davis, who has returned to resume her studies at Miss Porter's School in Carmington, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborn Van Brunt of 412 North Union boulevard will depart in May to make their home in New York.

T. Saunders Foster and his daughters, Miss May Foster and Mrs. Edward A. Limberg of 2 Lenox place have taken a villa in Florence, Italy, for the spring and early summer. Mr. Limberg will sail in June to join Mrs. Limberg and their small sons.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cocke of 4550 Lindell boulevard have returned from a tour of the world. They sailed in September. Mrs. Harrison Steedman, who made the trip with them, is still in Europe.

Mrs. L. H. Harris of the Westmoreland apartments has departed for California to visit her sister, Mrs. J. L. Pickering, in Lodi. Mr. Harris will join them later and together they will tour for three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Wight of 501 Clara avenue and their son, Daniel Wight, left St. Louis Thursday for the East. Mr. and Mrs. Wight, the latter of whom is convalescing from a recent serious illness, will spend several weeks in Atlantic City. Young Mr. Wight will resume his studies at Yale University.

Mrs. Clarkson Carpenter of the Florissant road had as her guest last week Mrs. George Pirie of Toronto, Canada. THE TRAIL BLAZER
A WELL-STYLED HEALTH SHOE

Endorsed by the Women's Foundation for Health

Health Shoes need not be ugly Shoes. The Women's Foundation has successfully demonstrated this in designing the Trail Blazer.

Not a particle of the Health feature has been sacrificed—yet the result is comfort and good looks.

One of the splendid features of the Trail Blazer Shoe is the flexible shank which tends to strengthen weak arches and preserve strong arches.

The close ankle fit due to the combination last is another special feature.

The Oxford illustrated is shown in tan calf, black kid and patent leather at $10.50.

She has visited in St. Louis frequently and was an attendant at the wedding of Miss Adelaide Simons and Samuel Caldwell Mitchell, several months ago.

Mr. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cowan Wilson of Belton, near Kansas City, Mo., and a nephew of Samuel Graham Wilson of 38 Washington terrace. He is an alumnus of the Virginia Military Institute. During the war he served overseas in the infantry. No wedding date has been announced.

The engagement of Miss Mary Stillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Stillman of 1016 Hodlamont avenue, to Harold Weil, was made known Thursday afternoon at a bridge party by Miss Lena Schweizer and her sister. The news was told by means of an engagement ring placed on a "lady finger" cake, under which was a card bearing the names of the couple. No date for the wedding has been set.

Mr. and Mrs. Foreith have departed for a trip East and will live at 704 Aubert avenue.

Miss Hilda Sandvoss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Sandvoss, 3317 Pestalozzi street, became the bride of Wilbur B. McKelvey of Webster Groves, Mo., March 31. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Forsyth of King's Highway Presbyterian Church at the bride's home.

Miss Esther Sandvoss acted as bridesmaid for her sister. Ben Quinn of Webster Groves served Mr. McKelvey as groomsman. The bride's small nieces, Virginia and Celeste Ringling, were flower girls.

The bride wore white Roshanara crepe. Her veil was adorned with pearls and orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore peach blow crepe meteor and carried ophelia roses.

Mr. and Mrs. McKelvey will reside at 5221 Murdoch avenue.

SOCIALLY INTERESTING ENGAGEMENTS AND MARRIAGES

at Waterloo, Ia., yesterday evening of Walter R. Mayne, son of Mrs. Bertha L. Mayne, 6645 University Drive, St. Louis County. The wedding was solemnized at the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

The St. Louis party who attended the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Guy S. Forcier, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett C. Clark, Mrs. J. W. Bemis, Mrs. Bertha L. Mayne, Mrs. Emma M. Mayne, Miss Edna Mayne and Messrs. Geo. Lawler, Norman Champ, Walter Boehmer, William H. Woodward, Carrol Berkley and Otto W. Hammar.

Mr. Mayne is a member of the law firm of Fordyce, Holliday & White and during the war served with the 103d Regiment of the Twenty-sixth Division.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayne will reside at 743 Heman avenue after returning from their honeymoon.

Miss Loretta Surkamp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Surkamp of 1512 Kienlen avenue, and Harry L. Baerveldt, son of Mrs. J. Baerveldt of Leroy avenue, St. Louis County, were married April 3. The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock in the morning at the Church of Notre Dame de Lourdes, by the Rev. Father S. J. Brady. A wedding breakfast was served for the two families and Father Brady, O'Keefe and Nugent at the Gatesworth Hotel.

Miss Florence Surkamp, of Normandy, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor; Miss Catherine Bartin, bridesmaid; Leonard Baerveldt, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and Oliver Surkamp, the bride's brother, as groomsman. Marie Antoinette Surkamp, a niece, was flower girl. The bride's gown was white georgette, beaded with crystals and pearls, made with a court train, and she carried roses, orchids and valley lilies. Her attendants wore orchid and pink flat crepe, respectively, with picture hats, and carried butterfly roses. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Chicago and will be at home at 6902 Robbins avenue, St. Louis County.

Miss Erwin Hayward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Hayward, has chosen Wednesday, May 9, as the date for her wedding to Harry Hall Knight of Hotel Chase. It is to take place at 5:30 o'clock in the Christ Church Cathedral, and a reception will follow at the Hayward home, 4637 Pershing avenue. The bridal party has not been chosen. Miss Hayward and her fiance are prominent members of the younger social set. She is a member of the Junior League and the Imperial. Mr. Knight, the son of Harry French Knight, is a graduate of Princeton University.

An out-of-town wedding of particular interest in St. Louis is that of Miss Lucille Connett, daughter of Mrs. S. C. Connett of St. Joseph, Mo., and Dr. George Boteler, assistant Health Commissioner of Washington, D. C., which took place at noon yesterday at the Church of St. Thomas of Aquin in New York.

The bride is a niece of William C. Connett, Mrs. Glendy Arnold and Mrs. Walter Coles, all of St. Louis, and lived for a time with Mrs. Alby Donaldson McCarthy of 378 North Taylor avenue. Mrs. Connett and her daughter spent last Sunday with Mrs. McCarthy and departed that night for the East.

Dr. and Mrs. Boteler will make their home in Washington. Dr. Boteler formerly resided in St. Joseph. During the war he served overseas for two years in charge of a hospital train.

Invitations have been sent out for the marriage of Miss Edith Weiterer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herman L. Weiterer, and Elmer H. Bartelsmeyer, of 3318 Winnebago street, Saturday evening, April 21, at the Bethel Evangelical Church, at Greer and Garrison avenues.

The ceremony is to be performed by the Rev. Henry Kraemer, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Church, Buffalo, N. Y., assisted by the Rev. J. P. Meyer, pastor of Bethel Church.

The Rev. Mr. Kraemer, who is a brother of the bride's mother, performed the wedding ceremony of Dr. and Mrs. Herman L. Weiterer, 26 years ago.

The bridal party will be as follows: Maid of honor, Miss Gladdys Sellers; bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Young and Miss Isabel Ruhmschussel; flower girl, Ruth Marie Goerlich; best man, Winfield E. Bartelsmeyer, brother of the bridegroom; groomsmen, Alvin V. Bartelsmeyer and Wilbur H. Hanpeter; ushers, Herbert F. Boettler, Lester G. Kleinschmidt, Charles M. Cunliff, Jr.

The organist will be Prof. Ernst R. Kroeger. Miss Louise Kroeger will sing.

Miss Adele Louise Heineman, 41 Arundel place, honored Mr. and Mrs. Alvin V. Bartelsmeyer, whose marriage was announced recently, at a dinner party last night. The dinner was originally planned as a prewedding affair for the bridal party, but the plans were changed when the marriage was made known. Mrs. Bartelsmeyer was before her marriage Miss Adele Preiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Preiss. Another guest of honor was Miss Henrietta Maude Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O. Carr, 6048 Westminster place, whose marriage to Mr. William J. Agan will take place in June.

MISSOURIANS' ACTIVITY IN SOCIAL CIRCLES OF WASHINGTON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—While Missouri "listened in" via the radio through which the entire program was broadcast, the Missouri State Society on Tuesday at the Hotel Roosevelt enjoyed the last get-together meeting of the season. Hundreds of the state's people in Washington attended the exercises.

At the election of officers, which was the principal object of the business meeting, which preceded the speakers, Representative Cleveland Newton was re-elected president, with the following other officers: Vice presidents, Mrs. A. H. Brueggeman and James L. Baity; treasurer, Horace J. Phelps, and secretary, Stanley H. Ridings. Mr. Baity then made the announcement that arrangements had been made for the customary midsummer picnic.

Fellowship with persons from home is a pleasant tonic and an influence for good, the Rev. Earle Wilfey, pastor of the Vermont avenue Christian Church, told the members of the society. He pointed out the influence Missouri notables had had on our national history. J. M. Bowie of the Gridiron Quartet, sang, and Durward Bowersox played the violin. The entire program was broadcast through the co-operation of a local radio station here. Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Breckenridge Long and Mrs. Joseph Folk were among the guests, as well as all the Missouri delegation remaining in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forman of Muskogee, Ok., are visiting the latter's aunt and cousins, formerly of Missouri, Mrs. James H. Draper and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Kimberly.

Mrs. Phillip North Moore of St. Louis, who has just been on a trip through the South, was in Des Moines to attend the convention of the League of Women Voters in session there this week.

It will fall to the lot of a Missouri woman, Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of the Senator, to say the first words that will open the Thirty-second Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution tomorrow, for she is chaplain general of the society and her opening prayer is the signal that the congress is open. More than 50 delegates will be present from Missouri, backing up the Missouri candidate for national office, Mrs. A. V. Connelly of Kansas City, State historian of the D. A. R., who is a candidate for reporter-general on the ticket of Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Pennsylvania, for the office of president-general. This practically assures Mrs. Cook the support of the Missouri delegation.

Among the other delegates from Missouri who will be here will be Mrs. John Trigg Moss, vice president-general, of St. Louis; Mrs. Paul D. Kitt, State regent, of Chillicothe, and Mrs. Henry W. Harris, State vice regent, of Sedalia. Mrs. Spencer will give a tea in honor of the delegates from her home State Thursday, and Mrs. James A. Reed will also be at home informally to them.

Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War, received on Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, and had with her Mrs. Robert C. Davis, Mrs. Mason Patrick, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Truxton Beale, and Miss Anne Square. Mrs. Davis will receive again Wednesday, April 25. Mr. and Mrs. Davis also were hosts Thursday to a company of 24 persons before the polo ball opened.

General Pershing, gay in his dress uniform, was the guest of honor at the big polo ball, which was one of the most brilliant events of the season. It took place Thursday night at the New Willard, and General Pershing was the center of attention, especially as he had under his care the big four crack players of the War Department team. All Washington was there and Secretary of War Weeks was in the receiving line.

General Pershing is preparing his entries for the horse show, which will occur here in May. President Harding also will enter his riding mount, while the blue ribbon winners of Miss Loula Long, of Kansas City, Mo., also will be cheered by a gay box party of Miss Long's friends. Mrs. Harding, who has so far recovered that she went to the theater on a recent night, is planning to visit the horse show for at least one day.

Another national organization which will meet in Washington next week is the Daughters of 1812. The members will hold their annual council at the New Willard. Among the Missouri delegates will be Mrs. L. M. Ottofy of St. Louis, State president; Mrs. Arthur McCluer, O'Fallon; Mrs. E. J. Sturges, Sedalia; Mrs. T. O. Towles, Jefferson City; Mrs. Walter Miller of Columbia, Miss Gertrude Wright of Maryville, Mrs. J. M. Tipton of Kansas City and Mrs. Paul D. Kitt of Chillicothe.

Baptist Meetings April 23.

The three-day annual convention of the Central District of the Women's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society convenes April 23 at the Third Baptist Church here. Among the speakers will be Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. George Caleb Moor and Miss Alma J. Noble. There will be a banquet for mothers and daughters under auspices of the World Wide Guild the evening of April 24.

It took place Thursday night at the New Willard, and General Pershing was the center of attention, especially as he had under his care the big four crack players of the War Department team. All Washington was there and Secretary of War Weeks was in the receiving line.

General Pershing is preparing his entries for the horse show, which will occur here in May. President Harding also will enter his riding mount, while the blue ribbon winners of Miss Loula Long, of Kansas City, Mo., also will be cheered by a gay box party of Miss Long's friends. Mrs. Harding, who has so far recovered that she went to the theater on a recent night, is planning to visit the horse show for at least one day.

Another national organization which will meet in Washington next week is the Daughters of 1812. The members will hold their annual council at the New Willard. Among the Missouri delegates will be Mrs. L. M. Ottofy of St. Louis, State president; Mrs. Arthur McCluer, O'Fallon; Mrs. E. J. Sturges, Sedalia; Mrs. T. O. Towles, Jefferson City; Mrs. Walter Miller of Columbia, Miss Gertrude Wright of Maryville, Mrs. J. M. Tipton of Kansas City and Mrs. Paul D. Kitt of Chillicothe.

Baptist Meetings April 23.

The three-day annual convention of the Central District of the Women's American Baptist Foreign Mission Society convenes April 23 at the Third Baptist Church here. Among the speakers will be Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. George Caleb Moor and Miss Alma J. Noble. There will be a banquet for mothers and daughters under auspices of the World Wide Guild the evening of April 24.

Sample Sale of

Women's and Misses'

Coats Suits Dresses at Savings 33⅓ to 50%

A new event with us, but one that will be held semi-annually from now on. Sample sales have been held by our group of stores in the East for a great many years and are today one of the most popular sale events of the entire year. To prepare ourselves for this sale our ready-to-wear buyers went to the markets together with the buyers from our Eastern stores and thousands and thousands of garments were purchased collectively for the sale which will take place simultaneously in the big cities where our group of stores are located. You know what wonderful garments come in sample sales, and you know the wonderful savings to be found. We wish to remind you that samples come in 16, 36 and 38, but to make the size ranges complete, we have taken special purchases and garments from our regular stocks and reduced them to the low prices of the sample garments, so that there will be no disappointments. Your size is here. We invite you to come Monday and share in the great sale that will take place twice each year. A sale worthy of the name.

THE ATTAINMENT OF BEAUTY has been the quest of all ages. Thousands of women who have lovely complexions attribute their beauty to the use of Nadine Face Powder. Their cheeks have just a tint of color, their skin is soft, smooth and velvety.

Nadine has been the aristocrat of face powder for a quarter of a century. It contains no white lead or other ingredient that can harm the most tender skin or the eyes. Nadine adheres without repeated applications, and protects the skin from the winter wind and the summer sun.

Nadine Face Powder, now in the new blue box, is exactly the same pure powder which has contributed to the beauty of southern women for so many years—only the box and fragrance have been changed. Both have been improved.

CONSTITUTION CONVENTION TO RESUME WORK

Will Meet at Jefferson City Tomorrow After Four Months' Recess During Session of Legislature.

DELEGATES EXPECT TO SPEED UP SESSIONS

Demand for Change in Rules to Limit Debate Seems to Be Almost General.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 14.—The Constitution Convention will resume its labors here at 3 p. m. Monday after a recess of four months necessitated by the biennial session of the Legislature, there not having been sufficient accommodations in the capitol for both bodies.

Members of the convention who have been drifting in for two or three days have expressed a confidence that, with the lessons of the first seven months of their sessions to guide them, the remainder of the work to be done can and will be disposed of expeditiously.

With one or two exceptions the demand for some change in rules of the convention to hold debate within reasonable limits appears to be general.

Efforts to Hamper Work.

From the very outset some delegates, opposed to any change in the old Constitution, made determined efforts to hamper the work of the convention. There appeared to be no concert in their tactics, each working on his own particular way, but the net result was determined obstruction to every step of progress made by the body.

It is realized now, however, that the people of the State demand that the convention bring its work to early fruition.

So letters have been exchanged among the delegates with suggestions as to how debate can be restrained without unfairly hampering discussion.

C. M. Shartel, president of the convention, has suggested a number of changes in the rules, one to limit the discussion of any single proposition by any one delegate in committee of the whole to 30 minutes and in the convention to 10 minutes to provide that 15 delegates rather than five must demand a roll call, before one can be made. Calling the roll is aways a ravenous devourer of time in every deliberative body.

The only opposition to these rule changes which has been heard so far was voiced by Paul Conwell of Kansas City.

Hyde Has Not Acted.

Gov. Hyde has not determined what he will do with respect to the Casey joint and concurrent resolution passed by the recent Legislature which would take from the people the right to call a constitutional convention by initiative and lodge it back in the hands of the Legislature. This resolution proposes an amendment to the present Constitution which would repeal the section under which the present convention is meeting, would toss off all of the work done by this body and force it to disband, if carried by vote of the people. Hyde can submit it to a special election to be called at his will, or he can let it wait for submission until the next general election in November, 1924. The Governor will determine upon his course in this regard after conferring with members of the convention next week.

Familiarity breeds contempt. Perhaps you don't regard headaches seriously, simply because they are unfortunately all too familiar with you.
However, science tells us that headaches are nature's danger signals. You may disregard the warning only at your peril.

PLANS FOR FIRST SECTION OF RIVER DES PERES SEWER

Details to Be Ready Soon for Presentation to the Citizens' Bond Supervisory Committee.

WORK TO BEGIN NEAR MAPLEWOOD

Stretch Extends North and East About Mile and Construction Cost Is Estimated at $500,000.

Plans for the first section to be constructed in the conversion of the River des Peres into a 13-mile sewer and concrete stormwater channel, a $11,000,000 bond issue project, are being completed in the Board of Public Service and soon will be presented to the Citizens' Supervisory Committee for inclusion in this year's construction program.

This section, extending from Lindenwood place, near Maplewood, north and east about a mile to a point near Southwest avenue, is estimated to cost $500,000.

The engineers decided to start work on this stretch of the river because drainage during the construction period will be provided by the existing eight-foot sewer under the bed of the river, from Maplewood to the Mississippi River, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, said yesterday.

Little Difficulty Met.

Another factor was that the proposed section extends through an industrial section and little difficulty has been met by the city in obtaining permission from property owners for the right of pre-entry, pending condemnation of property for the sewer right-of-way.

Designs for this stretch provide an underground sewer to carry foul water, and above this sewer an open concrete waterway, to carry stormwater only. The waterway will be 18 feet in depth, 35 feet in width at the base and 90 feet in width at the top.

The course of the river within the city now is 18 miles in length, from where it enters at the western limits, near Clemens avenue, then winding through Forest Park and the southwestern section of the city to its outlet into the Mississippi River, just inside the southern city limits. As has been related the course will be shortened to 13 miles. The first three and three-quarter miles, including Forest Park, will be a closed sewer, ranging from 32 feet in diameter to a double-barreled sewer, each branch 29 feet in diameter. The remaining nine and three-quarters miles will include the underground closed sewer and the open concrete waterway for stormwaters, varying in width from 90 to 205 feet.

Designs for Another Section.

Designs also are being prepared for the section of the sewer which will extend through Forest Park, Kinsey said. A survey was made recently to select the route, which will be much shorter than the course now traversed by the river through the park. In the northeastern section of the park it it planned to place the sewer under the beds of a series of small lakes and lagoons, to avoid destruction of trees.

The lakes will be drained temporarily, when the sewer is built, Kinsey said, but will be refilled later. When the work is completed a part of the present course of the river will be converted into a chain of lagoons. Earth removed in the excavation will be used to fill low places in the park.

Engineering Staff Limited.

Surveys along the course of the River des Peres have been in progress since the $87,372,500 bond issue for public improvements was voted last February, but work has been held up on the plans of sections other than at Maplewood and in Forest Park, Kinsey said, as no money has been available for increasing the engineering staff. No appropriations for the work can be made until bonds have been sold, and the field and designing work done thus far has been carried on by the regular force, which also handles a large amount of other city work.

Construction of the sewer will be by short sections, Kinsey stated, so that there will be more competition among contractors for the work. When larger contracts are let, he said, fewer contractors bid, because of the problem of financing the work, and the result is higher costs to the city.

"The First Year," at American, Is Comedy of Connubial Combat

Frank Craven, Author of Popular Play, Heads Cast—Fannie Brice at Orpheum, "Turn to the Right" at Empress.

THE opening act of Frank Craven's comedy of embattled honeymooners, "The First Year," which begins a week's engagement tonight at the American, is entitled "Training Quarters." The second—which, by the way, takes place in Joplin, Mo.—is inscribed "The Ringside." And the third is succinctly labeled "The Knockout. This picture of matrimonial polemics has enjoyed the unusual popularity of a run of two seasons in New York and of a winter in Chicago. Mr. Craven himself heads the cast, which includes several of the players who first launched the comedy at the Little Theater, New York, on Oct. 20, 1920.

The Shubert-Jefferson is delivered over for another week to the cinema spectacle, "Fabiola." Fannie Brice, singing comedienne, for many seasons identified with the "Ziegfeld Follies," has the featured turn at the Orpheum. "Turn to the Right," a comedy by Winchell Smith and John E. Hazzard, is the offering of the Woodward Players at the Empress.

"The First Year" is billed as a "tragi-comedy of married life," and dedicated to the theory that the first year of connubial bliss is the most difficult one. Grace Livingston, who is heartily tired of small-town life in Reading, Pa., has two suitors, Dick Loring and Tommy Tucker. The latter eliminates his much-traveled rival by proposing to take Grace out into the great world—for instance, to Joplin. She doesn't know anything about Joplin, but it sounds adventurous, and she accepts Tommy's gorgeously amusing proposal.

The fiasco results in domestic fireworks such as only a seasoned benedict can appreciate, and Grace flees in tears to mother and Reading. The third act amusingly works out a happy ending.

Mr. Craven has the part of Tommy Tucker and others surviving from the original cast include Tim Murphy, Leila Bennett, Lyster Chambers and Merceita Esmonde. Later recruits are Jane Ellison, Alice Owens, James Bradbury, Harry Leighton and George Wright Jr.

Raymond Hitchcock's latest revue, "Hitchy-Koo 1923," comes to the Shubert-Jefferson next Sunday night, and on the following evening Otis Skinner, at the American, will open a week's return engagement in Booth Tarkington's comedy, "Mister Antonio."

Miss Brice's Song Repertory.

MISS BRICE, at the Orpheum, is promised in a series of song characterizations, ranging from an Indian squaw to a Greek nymph. On the bill also is John Davidson, stage and screen actor, who will appear with a comedy of 12 in a one-act drama called "Circumstantial Evidence," by Harrison Armstrong. Others programmed are "Chief" Caupolican, Indian baritone; Stan Stanley, acrobatic comedian; Pert and Sue Kelton, in song and dance; Page, Hack and Mack; the Ruth Howell Duo, and the Peacock Orchestra.

"Turn to the Right" relates the reformation of a pickpocket and a burglar through the influence of a country boy who is sent to the penitentiary by mistake and who is released at the same time with the professional criminals. Robby Reed and George Doan Borup will play the latter, and John Warner the rural youth. Hazel Whitmore has the part of his sweetheart.

Other Vaudeville Bills.

AT the Rialto, Ned Nestor, Allice Sessions and Olive Green will be seen in "So This Is Ireland," together with the Cevenes in "A Paris Cafe," and Jack Hughes Duo, and Walter Ward and Ethel Dooley, who sing, dance, cycle and throw the lariat. The Four Tamakis, swordsmen and jiu-jitsu experts, will lead the new bill beginning Thursday.

Frank and Ethel Halls are featured at the Columbia in a comedy of domestic strife. Others on the bill are Seymour and Jeanette, dancers; Wheaton and Boyd, character actors, in "It's Bound to Occur;" the Richardsons, in a comedy novelty, and Jones and Collins, in a musical skit. The film announcement is "One Stolen Night," with Alice Calhoun. A new bill begins Thursday, with the McKinley Sisters, in a dance revue, and several others. Elinor Glyn's "The World's a Stage,"

Chaplin's "The Pilgrim," "The Forgotten Law," "Grumpy" on View

"Fabiola" Remains Over at Shubert-Jefferson and "Driven" at Rivoli—Vera Gordon in "Your Best Friend."

"The Pilgrim," Charlie Chaplin's first feature-length comedy since "The Kid," is featured at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol theaters this week. The cast includes Edna Purviance, Syd Chaplin, Charlie's brother, and Dinky Dean, a youthful actor whom Charlie sponsors as a coming star.

The plot is based upon a convict's escape. He finds a minister in swimming and appropriates the minister's clothing. He boards a train and gets off at a small town where a committee of church elders is awaiting the arrival of a new parson. The disguised convict is mistaken for the parson and is at once escorted to the pulpit, where he delivers his first sermon. The story then loses itself and develops into a Chaplin series of comedy situations.

An added attraction at all three theaters is the presentation of Louis Shuman's inside story of the African jungle, "Man vs. Beast," or hunting wild animals. Shuman has some remarkable scenes, including those of the capture of a laughing hyena, the shooting of two rhinos and the killing of two hippos.

"The Pilgrim" will remain at the West End Lyric for four days only, "Environment" opening at that house Wednesday, with Milton Sills and Alice Lake.

"Grumpy," based on popular stage play, is shown in picture form at the Missouri this week. The title role is played by Theodore Roberts. Others in the cast are May McAvoy, Conrad Nagel, Virginia Bullivant and Ernest Heron.

The story of "Grumpy" has to do with the love affairs of a young couple fostered by an irascible though lovable retired criminal lawyer. A valuable diamond is stolen and its recovery is wholly due to the discovery of the identity of the robber by means of a gardenia, of which one each was worn by three of the leading characters. Grumpy gets the clue and runs it down. This is a William de Mille production.

"The Forgotten Law," a photoplay version of the novel "A Modern Madonna," by Caroline Abbott Stanley, is the feature at the Delmonte Theater for the week starting today.

When the novel made its appearance, it exposed an unjust law with such force and indignation that an investigation was demanded, resulting finally in the abolition of the law. Through its operation the father in any household was permitted to arrange for his child's rearing after his own death, even to the point of separating the child from its own mother. The statute is a very old one, and fraught with dangerous possibilities. What these could very well have been is seen in "The Forgotten Law."

Milton Sills has the leading role. Jack Mulhall and Cleo Ridgely are in the cast. On the Delmonte's program also are a comedy, and the usual short-reel subjects, and the Harmonious Trio made up of Arthur Nealy, "the singing policeman," Steve Cady and Elmer McDonald.

Vera Gordon in "Your Best Friend," and William Farnum in a reissue of "Les Miserables," are the leading attractions on the current week's program at the Liberty Theater.

"Your Best Friend" is the story of a mother thrown into the maelstrom of two socially ambitious women. Miss Gordon plays the part of a widow, who, at the outset is surprised to learn that her son has married without ever having told her he had a sweetheart. She takes the shock calmly and welcomes her daughter-in-law; but soon discovers the girl is a snob with an equally snobbish and socially ambitious mother. To please her son, the mother is transported from a lowly existence to one among the social elect. Here she sees her daughter-in-law with her mother squandering her money on gay parties and midnight suppers. At every turn she is snubbed and it does not dawn upon her that she is the financial weapon for the gratification of the whims and fancies of her daughter-in-law. In time, however, she sees the light and declares herself.

"Fabiola," an excellent picture based on Cardinal Wiseman's great novel of that title, remains over another week at the Shubert-Jefferson and "Driven," a powerful screen drama of mountaineer life, goes into its second week at the Rivoli.

Harvard Club Acts Plays by Guitry and Andreyeff

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.

THE Dramatic Club of Harvard University comes to the Comedy Theater Monday night for an engagement which will include three performances of Leonid Andreyeff's "The Life of Man" and two performances of Sasha Guitry's "Beranger." On Tuesday night a new comedy, "Within Four Walls," by Glen McDonough, will be presented at the Selwyn Theater. Helen Ware is the featured player; others in the cast are Ann Morrison, Leonard Boyle, Walter Lawrence, John Keefe, Florence Gerald, Marie Berne, Violet Dunn and Dorian Anderson. Another all-negro musical comedy, "How Come," will try its fortunes Monday night at the Apollo. The libretto is by Eddie Hunter and the score by Ben Harris.

The season is waning apace, and the week just ended has been the worst of the season from a box office point of view. Four shows ended their careers tonight—"The Guilty One," at the Selwyn; "Anything Might Happen," at the Comedy; "The God of Vengeance," at the Apollo, and "Sandra Botticelli," at the Provincetown.

However, many shows are preparing for spring openings, either here or out of town. Among those listed for New York premieres in the near future are Robert McLaughlin's "Fires of Spring," Joseph Shea's "Chivalry," starring Irene Fenwick; a musical show named "Adrienne," with Vivienne Segal and Billy B. Van, and a piece called "For Value Received." Shows due to open next week out-of-town include Henry W. Savage's production of "Minnie and Me," which will be launched Monday night in Boston, with Mitzi in skirts again; "The First Thrill," by Beulah Poynter, in Atlantic City; "The Changeling," at Philadelphia, with Henry Miller, Blanche Bates, Ruth Chatterton, Geoffrey Kerr and John Miltern in the cast; the National Theater production of "As You Like It," with Marjorie Rambeau, at Poli's in Washington, and "Goodness Knows," by David Gray, in Pittsburg.

Another Shubert Becomes Manager.

THE Henry Miller show is headed for the Pacific Coast during the summer, and will return here in the fall, if successful. "As You Like It" is announced for the Forty-fourth Street Theater a week from Monday.

SHERIFF'S POSSE ENDS CAREER OF MEXICAN OUTLAW

Alfredo Luna Shot Down at Camp Near Rio Hondo, Tex., Following Murder and Kidnaping.

COMMITTED MANY CRIMES WITH AX

Said to Have Confessed to Wife of Last Victim Whom He Held Prisoner Until Officers Trailed Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RIO HONDO, Tex.—When Alfredo Luna, Mexican outlaw, murdered Guadalupe Moreno and kidnaped the beautiful 16-year-old widow of his victim, a few days ago, he committed the last of a series of bloody exploits. Luna was trailed to his camp in the chaparral, 25 miles from here, by a Sheriff's posse and there shot and killed by Deputy Sheriff Victor Ortega. With the death of Luna and the confession that he made to Mrs. Moreno there was solved the mystery of several murders and assaults which have been committed in the Rio Hondo section of the lower Rio Grande border in the last two years.

For three days Luna kept Mrs. Moreno a captive in his remote camp, submitting her to many tortures. According to her sworn story, Luna entered the Moreno home, five miles from Rio Hondo, late at night. He awakened her first and asked if her husband was at home. The latter answered for himself, and Luna then struck Moreno over the head with a pistol and then picked up an ax, with which he continued beating him until he was dead. The bandit then grabbed Mrs. Moreno and placed her on a horse in front of him and fled. He threatened to kill her if she made an outcry. They traveled most of the night, finally arriving at Luna's camp.

The camp is about two miles from Rancho Nueva and five miles from Los Leones. Here the girl was kept in captivity from Thursday morning until Saturday afternoon. During this time Mrs. Moreno did not eat anything, although Luna brought her food. He went to the Chapa ranch house, some distance from the camp, to obtain food, she said. It was at the camp that Luna told her of his crimes.

According to Mrs. Moreno, she was repeatedly threatened with death by Luna while in camp. He spent much of his time telling her of the many crimes he had committed. He said that he killed Miss Marie Shroeder at Rio Hondo two years ago; that he was the man who brutally assaulted E. F. Ehlers of Rio Hondo and attacked Mrs. Ehlers, a few weeks ago. His purpose, he said, was to kidnap Miss Ruth Ehlers, their daughter, but he was foiled in this effort.

The killing of the Shroeder girl was described as the most atrocious in the history of the lower border country. The girl was accustomed to go to and from school, about three miles from her home, on a horse. She failed to return home one evening. Nothing was thought of it at the time, as she frequently spent nights with friends in San Benito. Next day, when she failed to appear, a search was started. Her horse was found, and later her badly mutilated body was discovered hidden in underbrush.

Posses beat the country for several days, and one man, a Mexican, believed to have had some knowledge of the crime, was killed when he resisted officers. Intense feeling prevailed throughout the San Benito country, and when Federico Ortega and Rincones were arrested mob violence was feared and the men were rushed to jail at Brownsville. Later they were removed secretly to San Antonio, where they were released.

Heinous Crimes Similar.

Luna, according to information obtained, was feared by all the people of the Rio Hondo district because of his brutality and treachery. The similarity of the heinous crimes, which he said he committed, bears out this statement—all of his victims died from having their heads beaten in with a club or an ax. Ehlers suffered for some months from the effects of blows dealt him by Luna, and Moreno was battered until his features were unrecognizable.

Luna had been suspected for some time of having been implicated in the Ehler's crime. At the time this crime was committed, Sheriff Sam Robertson put Victor Ortega on the case. Ortega expressed the belief that Luna was the guilty man, and he spent most of his time after the Ehler crime searching for Luna.

Robertson offered a reward of $100 for the murderer of Guadalupe Moreno, dead or alive, and Ortega, with the faithfulness with which he started on the case, got his man—dead.

Robertson, Clifton Brown and Ortega worked on the case following the receipt of news of the murder and kidnaping. They followed the tracks from the scene of the murder for about seven miles, but here Robertson insisted on Ortega taking up a new trail which proved futile. That night Ortega was directed to form a posse of Mexican boys and try to run down the murderer.

Ortega followed the old trail again, and this time did not leave it, although it was two days old. His many years' experience on cattle ranches fitted the deputy for following the tracks and led him to Luna's camp.

When the posse reached the camp, in the desolate brush country of the Arroyo Colorado, they recognized his tent and his horse, tethered, nearby. Ortega's men, Antonio Pena, Jose Ortaga and Juan Jose Juarez, lay down in the brush and a moment later Luna sprang from under his blankets and fled. Pursuing, Ortega commanded him to halt, then fired with his rifle. Luna ran about 50 steps further. Then he dropped, dying several minutes later. Mrs. Moreno was found tied inside of the tent.

Luna was 24 years old and it is believed by peace officers that his death will remove the ringleader of a group of bandits who have been committing crimes in the Rio Hondo district, and hiding in the stretches of brush land between that place and the bay.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method
Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this, get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little bit on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of calonite powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

Sound Kidneys Save Suffering

The hustle and bustle of modern life often cause weak kidneys. Overwork and worry invariably create poison faster than the weakened kidneys can filter it from the blood. Pains in the back, nervousness, and lack of ambition are some of the warnings that the kidneys may not be functioning properly.

Why Spring Brings Out Freckles and Eruptions

The sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines at this season is attributed by scientists to the "actinic ray," which is unusually active during spring. Where the skin is so affected by this influence, if one will procure an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little before retiring, like cold cream, the trouble can easily be overcome. When the wax is washed off next morning, minute flaky skin particles come with it. Soon the entire outer cuticle is removed, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually or harmlessly remove freckles, moth patches, liver spots, pimples, etc. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking, youthful.

NEBRASKA WILL CASE APPEALED TO SUPREME COURT

Lawyer Convicted of Attempted Inheritance Fraud Insists Evidence Does Not Support Verdict.

MANY TRIED TO PROVE HEIRSHIP TO ESTATE

Shoe Dealer in Hastings, Neb., Left Property Valued at $100,000, and Which Caused Suit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb.—The final chapter in the famous O'Connor will case is to be written by the State Supreme Court, which has just had submitted to it the appeal of James B. O'Connor, an attorney of Kansas City, Mo., whom the State claims to have caught attempting to carry out a scheme to take the greater part of the estate for himself and his relatives.

John O'Connor was a cobbler and later a dealer in shoes in Hastings, Neb. He was a bachelor and a good bit of a recluse. He invested his savings in farms that grew rapidly in value, and when he died in 1911 he left an estate of $100,000. No will was found, nor any record of heirs. When the story got into the newspapers heirs sprang up everywhere, and during the next 10 years the courts were busily engaged in sorting out their claims. None of them was recognized or was able to prove a case. The claimants were of various names, and among them was a half-breed Indian who claimed to have evidence that O'Connor had married his mother.

In 1916 there came by mail to W. H. Lanning of Hastings, a well-to-do citizen, a package that contained a letter and another envelope marked on the outside as the will of John O'Connor, and bearing the direction that in case of death it be sent to Lanning. He presented the matter to the Probate Court and his connection with it ceased. This will bequeathed the estate to his brother, Charles, if living, and if not, to his heirs. It further provided that if these heirs did not make their claims within five years after his death, then the entire estate should be used for founding an orphanage for homeless children.

"Impossible Story."

The letter that accompanied the will told what the State claims is an impossible story. Grant S. Watkins had been a lawyer of no very great practice in St. Joseph, Mo. He died and his law library was being inventoried preparatory to its sale, when a man who was looking over the books excitedly called the attention of Mrs. Watkins to the presence of this package. She mailed it at once to Lanning, with a letter explaining how it came into her possession. The will purposed to have been drawn by her husband, Oct. 19, 1908, three years before O'Connor died.

James B. O'Connor, the Kansas City lawyer, made claim to a part of the estate as the heir of Charles O'Connor, described as the brother, but the supreme court held he had failed to establish the legitimacy of the will, which it pronounced a forgery. The State then caused his arrest on the charge of uttering a forged will. He was convicted and sentenced to from two to seven years in the State penitentiary, and fined $250 and costs. He asserted in his appeal that he had never offered the will for probate, that he had never claimed it was genuine or otherwise, and had merely appeared to protect whatever rights as the son of Charles O'Connor, might accrue to him. He also insists that the evidence does not support the verdict.

Allegations by State.

The claim made by the State is that O'Connor, finding all other claimants had failed to make good, drew this will or had it drawn in Kansas City and had it planted in the books of the dead lawyer of St. Joseph, where it was conveniently found just a short time before the five years that the instrument gave Charles O'Connor's children to claim it had expired. It produced evidence that Watkins had been suffering with paresis for several years before his death, and that he was not competent to draw a will; that it was witnessed by two men who said they were called in off the street for that purpose, and who, it was shown by letters, had claimed to remember, after reading newspaper accounts that they had witnessed a will for a man named O'Connor in St. Joseph eight years before. A handwriting expert said James B. O'Connor had written the superscription on the envelope, and a former stenographer said it looked like his writing. Samples of writing from his typewriter were compared to back up a claim that the same machine was used in writing the will.

The State said it was improbable that O'Connor would go 200 miles from home to have a strange lawyer write his will and two strangers witness it, and then leave it with a man he did not know to be forwarded if he ever heard of his death. The State found two witnesses testified that John O'Connor was in Hastings the day he was supposed to have signed this will in St. Joseph. One of these witnesses volunteered while the trial was on, the evidence having disclosed a date that he was able to remember because it was his wedding day.

You Can Guard Against Appendicitis

Simple Intestinal Antiseptic Is Worth Trial

A Treacherous Disease.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment, even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in exactly the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble and the development of influenza or gripp, by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Just exactly the same procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington; Enderle Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

SUPPOSE that your living room rug simply must be replaced this spring. And that the most you can squeeze out of the housekeeping money is $20 or $30, for a 9 x 12 rug.

Two places where you need no hairpin

You'll need no hairpin to clean a cup, because cups have no corners that you'll have to dig out.

And because the Kitchen Maid cabinet has "cup-like" corners, you'll have no trouble keeping it clean. The "rounded inside corners" of the Kitchen Maid—and its no-panel outside construction—have done away with 78 old-fashioned corners.

That's just one way in which it's better. It's also more convenient, because of the plan of Miss Alice Bradley, famous cookery expert, who shows you how to make the Kitchen Maid a greater saver of time and work in kitchen.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

Pola Negri's second American-made picture, "The Cheat," is well under way at the Paramount West Coast studio. Jack Holt will be leading man and Charles de Roche, who recently came from France, will have the role of the yellow man of the story. Dorothy Cumming, Robert Schable, Charles Stevenson and Helen Dunbar are also in the cast.

Two players have been signed by Mary Pickford to undertake important roles in her next picture, the title of which is yet to be determined. Holbrook Blinn, famous footlight star, at present playing the stellar role in "The Bad Man" in San Francisco, has been chosen to enact the part of the King in this new historical romance, the background for which is colorful and picturesque old Spain. The portrayal of the Queen will be handled by Clara Eames, another stage celebrity.

Motion pictures are becoming equal to a course in geography. They cover the world. Some of the new Paramount pictures furnish examples of this. There is "The Covered Wagon," which traverses the Western plains from Missouri to Oregon and California; "The Tiger's Claw," laid in India; "My American Wife," Gloria Swanson's recent picture, laid in South America; "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," starring Mary Miles Minter, a Southern mountain story; Pola Negri in "Bella Donna," with an Egyptian background; "The White Flower," starring Betty Compson, filmed in Hawaii, and so on.

Old Tutankhamen, dead these thousands of years, will live again in motion pictures, thanks to Cecil B. de Mille, who will use the ancient Egyptian King as a character in his forthcoming Paramount picture, "The Ten Commandments."

NEW ATLAS IRON WORKS PLANT SERVED BY TERMINAL

The Atlas Iron Works, a Missouri corporation, has completed a well equipped plant to manufacture structural steel and iron work for buildings. The property is served by the Terminal Railroad on its own switch track.

All machines are operated by direct connected motors and are served by three lines of traveling cranes running the entire length of the shop. The raw amterial, or stock yard, is served by a 150 foot crane runway.

The organizers of the company have been engaged in its various branches for from 15 to 25 years. The officers are: William C. Smith, president; O. B. Klein, vice president; A. H. Koppen, secretary, and Charles E. Galt, treasurer.

Sportsmen Make Sure the Fowl Will Not Perish.

McGREGOR, Ia.—The Northeastern Fish and Game Association comprised of sportsmen of the four northeastern counties of Iowa, have fed thousands of wild ducks during the stormy period just passed.

The ducks arrived during the mild weather, but when the mercury went down and the river froze the ducks remained near the single open piece of water caused by the swift current, in front of the city.

Officers of the association have made trips to this spot, scattering grain on the ice.

Ailing Children Get Well on Syrup Pepsin

A small dose at bedtime brings relief and laughter by morning

HOSPITAL and doctor's records prove that 75 per cent of human illness has its origin in the intestinal canal, complicated with what is commonly called constipation. Realizing what that figure means, mothers should contrive methods of handling their children while they still control them that will prevent these future dangers. Teach children regularity of bowel movement, and be especially watchful of young girls. Insist on two passages a day until the age of 18, when one is usually sufficient. Give plenty of oranges and apples, plenty of butter because it lubricates the intestines, and encourage the drinking of water.

If you detect restlessness, belching, gas or wind on the stomach, sleeplessness, or lack of appetite, examine the tongue and you will find it coated, accompanied by unpleasant breath. The child is bilious, constipated. According to age, give from one-half to a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which children never object to taking as they like the taste. By morning the youngster will be well again. Likewise if the nostrils are stuffed up or there is persistent sneezing, a dose of Syrup Pepsin will break up the fever and cold.

Mrs. Geo. N. Colson of Bernard, Me., keeps her family well in that way, and Mrs. Ida A. Burkett of Carroll, La., who has been using Syrup Pepsin for a dozen years, has raised her three children on it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The formula, however, is on every package. Druggists have sold it with satisfaction to their customers for over 30 years, and it is now the largest selling family laxative in the world. Buy a bottle today. It will last you for months, and the cost is only about a cent a dose.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Suffered Four Long Years, Balmwort Quickly Helped

Dear Sirs: I had suffered for four years with kidney and bladder disorders in the worst form. I had suffered everything but death and I lost weight from 190 to 117 pounds and was so weak that I could not walk. I picked up your little book, read about your Balmwort Tablets, procured them of the druggist and when I had taken half of the box I was able to again do my own work. I had gotten so bad that I was passing blood and black clots, but thanks to your wonderful medicine, Balmwort, I am almost a well woman now. I can and will recommend it to all who are suffering from kidney and bladder troubles, like mine. Thanking you again, I remain, yours truly,
Mrs. Anna Dantz, Rear 98 Lackey Ave., Woods Run, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Thin Folks Gain Weight

Beautify Complexion And Increase Energy

MASTIN'S YEAST VITAMON

Tablets are easy to take and have been used by millions who like their convenience, economy and quick results to put on firm flesh, clear the skin of pimples and eruptions, renew vitality and correct stomach and intestinal troubles.

A large quantity of concentrated vitamines was recently sent from New York to the Near East Relief of the American Red Cross in Greece, for use in combating and repairing the wasting effects of prolonged malnutrition among the inhabitants there. It is believed that the human body must have a sufficient quantity of these delicate food factors, such as are contained in MASTIN'S VITAMON, to build vigorous health and provide a strong defense against disease.

If you are thin, nervous or rundown, it is probably due to malnutrition and you will find this simple test well worth trying: First, weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take MASTIN'S VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking MASTIN'S VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight, "pep," energy and improved appearance. MASTIN'S VITAMON contains in highly concentrated form the three important vitamines (including yeast), as well as the necessary iron and lime, all of which science says you must have to be strong, well and fully developed.

By increasing the nourishing power of what you eat, MASTIN'S VITAMON supplies just what your body needs to feed the shrunken tissues, strengthen internal organs, freshen the skin and rebuild shattered nerve force without upsetting the stomach or causing gas. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions vanish as if by magic and the complexion becomes radiantly clear and beautiful. But it is not only a question of how much better you look and feel or what your friends say and think—the scales and tape measure will tell their own story. A two-weeks' test will surprise you.

IMPORTANT: MASTIN'S VITAMON should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having their weight and strength increased to normal. Be sure and remember the name, MASTIN'S VITAMON—there is nothing else like it, so do not accept imitations or substitutes. Get it at any drug store.

Rheumatism Left Him As If By Magic!

Had Suffered Over 50 Years!

Now 83 Years, Yet a Big Surprise To Friends

Regains Strength Goes Out Fishing Back to Business Laughs at "URIC ACID"

How the "Inner Mysteries' Reveals Startling Facts Overlooked By Doctors and Scientists For Centuries

"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army over fifty years ago," writes J. B. Ashelman. "Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures,' and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now, as if by magic, I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old, false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous belief induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints by taking treatments supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism; that it is a natural and necessary constituent of the blood; that it is found in every new-born babe; and that without it we could not live!

These statements may seem strange to some folks, who have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders, and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," a remarkable book now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this particular trouble.

NOTE: If any reader of the Post-Dispatch wishes the book that reveals these facts regarding the true cause and cure of rheumatism, facts that were overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to H. P. Clearwater, No. 20 R street, Hallowell, Maine, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Cut out this notice lest you forget! If not a sufferer yourself, hand this good news to some afflicted friend.

MAY CONQUER WAX COVER ON BACILLUS OF TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. Albert Jentzer, a Surgeon of Geneva, Switzerland, Tells of Experiments in Piercing Armor of Germ.

SUCCESS CLAIMED IN MANY INSTANCES

He Believes He Can Dissolve Protective Covering of the Bacillus by Injecting Proper Agency Into the Body.

By Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

GENEVA.—The scientific details of the new treatment for tuberculosis, discovered and used by Dr. Albert Jentzer, a surgeon of Geneva, will be published in the leading medical journal of Switzerland very soon. A partial report of his work on the bacillus which Dr. Jentzer made before a learned society has already provoked great interest in medical circles here.

Although his experiments along this line began in 1918 and he deposited a brief statement, under seal, with the scientific society above mentioned in April, 1920, it is only now that Dr. Jentzer is discussing his method, even with members of the profession.

Nevertheless a representative of the Post-Dispatch obtained from Dr. Jentzer some interesting and important facts which he put in language as untechnical as the subject permits. Some 200 cases of tuberculosis have received the new treatment in connection with two medical services in Geneva and the same number have been treated by Prof. Zeffron and Dr. Natausch at the Jubilumspital in Vienna. All these cases were of a serious nature; it is claimed that 75 per cent of the surgical cases of tuberculosis of the bones and so on—and 38 per cent of the lung cases were cured. In the other cases great improvement was effected.

Bacillus Has Protection.

Dr. Jentzer explained that the great difficulty in dealing with the tuberculosis bacillus lies in the fact that the bacillus is encased in a coating of wax. This, according to the best authorities, gives protection against the attacks of the protective and defensive forces of the human body, while the bacillus emits its poison.

Hitherto medical effort has been directed largely to neutralizing these poisons by means of serums or vaccines. But if a means were found to destroy the protective covering of the bacillus, it is logical to suppose, it was explained, that its resistance to the natural protective forces of the human system—the so-called "antibodies"—would be greatly weakened.

It is from this angle that Dr. Jentzer's efforts have been directed.

It must be explained right here that there are two kinds of white corpuscles in human blood. One kind—the mononuclear—contains lipase, a fat-splitting ferment. In the human body lipase has comparatively feeble power.

There is an insect, the caleria melonella, the caterpillar of the beehive moth, which Metanikoff, experimenting in Paris, proved possesses powerful lipase, and it is the lipase that enables it to eat and digest the wax in a beehive.

Increasing Lipasic Power.

Dr. Jentzer reasoned that if he could increase the lipasic power in tubercular persons, it would set up an increased dissolution of the waxy-fatty casings of the tubercle bacillus—would dissolve the casing as soap dissolves grease—and would so render the bacillus more vulnerable to the natural defensive forces of a tubercular person. He was strengthened in this reasoning by experiments by Much, who had proved that the tubercle bacillus is dissolved by the mononnclear white corpuscles of the Galeria melonella, strong in lipase, and is not affected by those of the tree caterpillar, weak in lipase.

So Jentzer experimented on infected guinea pigs with injections of a mixture of wax, lipoids and fat. Although guinea pigs react poorly to fatty matters and are therefore practically defenseless against the tubercle bacillus, he found their defensive power was increased by the wax, lipoids and fat. After a long series of careful experiments along these lines, all of which led to the same deductions and conclusions, it remained for him to prove that the injection of his mixture is innocuous to humans. So he tried it on himself. Only then did he feel free to employ the treatment in the hospital.

The "Anti-Body."

"Your mixture or wax, liproids and fat is itself the 'anti-body' that attacks the bacillus?" asked the correspondent.

Dr. Jentzer assented.

"What kind of wax do you use?"

"Ah, that has been a matter for long experiment to determine. There are about 20 different waxes. I cannot tell you the whole secret," protested Jentzer. "I have already betrayed a great deal in saying all that I have to a newspaper."

By this Dr. Jentzer meant, of course, that when he has satisfied himself absolutely of the value of his discovery he will describe every detail to the medical profession.

unity Council to Hear Burns. Allen T. Burns of New York, sec- tary of the American Association Community Organization, will address a joint meeting of the Community Fund and Community Council in the Vandervoort auditorium at 4 p. m. tomorrow on "Putting Charity on a Business Basis."

Season Ends With Four Concerts This Week

THE last flareup of the musical season occurs this week, with four concerts of importance listed. On Tuesday evening the Apollo Club will present Alberto Salvi, distinguished harpist, at the Odeon. On Wednesday night, also at the Odeon, the Knights of Columbus Choral Club will sponsor the first public appearance of the new Symphony Trio, composed of Rudolph Ganz, Michel Gusikoff and H. Max Steindel. On Thursday evening there will be two concerts—that of the St. Louis Massenchor at the Coliseum, presenting sections of Max Bruch's cantata, "Odysseus," as the feature of its program; and that of the Morning Choral Club, at the Odeon, with Charles Dalmores, French dramatic tenor, as soloist.

Signor Salvi, who ranks with the first virtuosi of his instrument, will play the following program: Impromptu, Schuecker; "Am Moer," Debussy; "Gitana Caprice," Hasselmans; "Norwegian Ballade," Poenitz; "Danse Orientale," Cady; "Am Springbrunnen," Zabel, and "Spanish Dance," Tedeschi. The Apollo Club, directed by Charles Galloway, will sing Chadwick's "Credo," MacDowell's "The Collier Lassie," Georg Schumann's "The Nightingale," Saint-Saens' "Winter Serenade," Brewer's "March of the Men of Harlech" and Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving."

Symphony Here Three Days.

THE appearance of the Symphony Trio Wednesday night is due to the fact that the Symphony Orchestra has a lay-off of three days in St. Louis this week. It returns Tuesday morning from the first section of its spring tour, and will leave Friday morning for Springfield, Mo., to begin the second leg.

The trio's numbers will be Mendelssohn's Trio No. 1, Op. 49, and Arensky's Trio No. 1, Op. 32. Messrs. Ganz and Gusikoff will also present Beethoven's violin sonata No. 3, Op. 12. The Knights of Columbus Choral Club, under the baton of William Theodore Diebels, will sing Sarjeant's "Watchman, What of the Night?" Halfdan Kjeruff's "Last Night," with tenor solo by George E. Muskens; McGill's "Duna," Le de Rille's "Le Soir" and Freudenberg's "Thou Art Come" and "Everywhere."

Max Bruch's "Odysseus."

THE Massenchor concert, under the direction of Hugo Anschuetz, will present a chorus of 600 voices, 65 members of the Symphony Orchestra, and three soloists — Mme. Emma Tester, soprano, and Mme. Meta Diestel, mezzo-soprano, both of the Stuttgart Opera; and Raymond Koch, St. Louis baritone. Rehearsals have been in progress for several months.

With the exception of one number, the excerpts from the Bruch cantata, "Odysseus," will be sung for the first time in this city. The work consists of 11 movements, from which Director Anschuetz has selected six for performance. They will be as follows: No. III, "Odysseus and the Sirens," for chorus and solo baritone; No. IV, "The Tempest at Sea," for chorus and solo baritone; No. V, "Penelope's Mourning," mezzo-soprano solo; No. VII, "The Banquet with the Phaeaceans," for chorus, with solo baritone and soprano; No. VIII, "Penelope Weaving a Garment," mezzo-soprano solo; and No. XI, "In Flames Ascending," for chorus.

The text will be sung in German, to Paul Graff's verses after Homer's "Odyssey." Preceding numbers will be Handel's Largo from "Xerxes," arranged for mixed chorus; Koschat's "Deserted" and Silcher's "Little Girl, Let Me Tell You," for male chorus, unaccompanied; the aria, "Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster," from Weber's "Oberon," Mme. Tester; Gelbke's "Ave Maria," Mr. Koch and women's chorus; and Silcher's "Now Farewell, Thou Little Street' and Weber's "Luetzow's Wild Ride," for male chorus, unaccompanied.

First American Concert Since War.

HIS first American appearance since before the war will be made in St. Louis by M. Dalmores, at the Morning Choral Club concert, Thursday. This artist was formerly a member of the Chicago Opera Co. His numbers will be as follows: "Verborgenheit," Wolf; the Narrative from "Lohengrin," Wagner; "Beau Soir" and "Romance," Debussy; "Invitation au Voyage," Duparc; "Il Niege des Fleurs," Fourdrain; "San Basilio" and "I Pastori," Da Parma; "Dreams," Strelezki; "Fleurette," McGeoch; "Gray Days," Johnson, and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," Lieurance.

The principal number to be offered by the club of women's voices will be E. R. Kroeger's arrangement of the chorus of Flower Girls, from Wagner's "Parsifal," with incidental solos by Mrs. Hector M. E. Pasmezoglu and Mrs. Katharine Cowan. Other ensemble numbers will be Dunn's "It Was a Lover and His Lass," Stanford's "The Fairies," Wostenholme's "The Three Fishers," an arrangement of Dvoraks "Humoresque" and "Suanee River," with violin obligato by Mrs. Esmeralda Berry-Mayes; and Cecil Forsyth's "Tinker, Tailor," with incidental solos by Mrs. Charles Blankenship and Miss Clara Schlief. Charles Galloway will conduct, and the accompanists will be Paul Friess and Adelbert Huguelet.

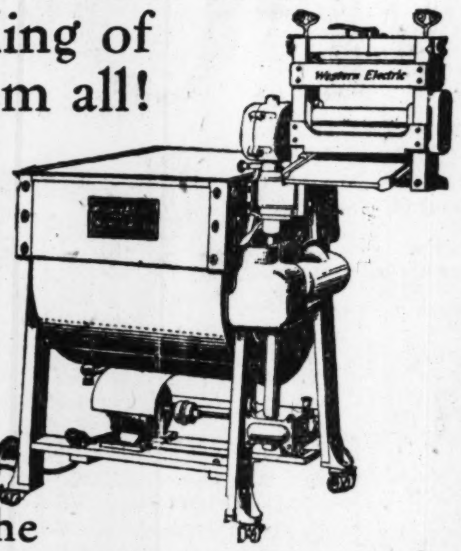
To the woman who wants an electric washer

You expect your Electric Washer—the one you are going to own—to relieve you of much work and trouble. You have a right to expect all that. And you can get an Electric Washer that will do everything you count on its doing.

You have only to talk to people who have the Western Electric in their homes—their enthusiastic praise will convince you that here is the ideal Washer—built to fulfill your fondest expectations.

The Western Electric "fits in"—becomes a genuine household treasure. And, as it piles up the years of satisfying service, you'll grow prouder of it—you'll rely on it more and more—with each passing year.

Frank Adam
904 Pine Street



Here it is—
King of 'em all!

The
Western Electric
Washer and Wringer

Built as firm and rigid and lasting as a steel office building; beautifully finished inside and out; smooth and quiet running, easy to operate; safe as can be, with all moving parts enclosed—the Western Electric is the Washing Machine in its finally perfected form.

Thorough cleansing without rubbing—that's its most wonderful feature. And so quick—15 minutes to the average tubful, 3 to 5 tubfuls to the average wash.

Economical to run, too—5c worth of current is enough for most washings.

And it's absolutely dependable. It has no chain to break, no belt to slip. It will serve you faithfully year in and year out—for years, always on the job.

Send this coupon

—and a lady or gentleman demonstrator will call at your home to demonstrate the Western Electric. A demonstration puts you under no obligation to buy.

Frank Adam Electric Co.,

A carload of Western Electric
WASHERS to be sold for $10 less than the price you will have to pay for the Western Electric as soon as the carload is sold.

The price of the Western Electric advanced to $145 on April first. But by a special co-operative arrangement with the makers we got one whole carload to sell at the old price of $135. You can get one at that price. But you'll have to act quickly! It's a "never-again" opportunity. When this carload is sold, never will you be able again to get a Western Electric Washer for as little as $135.

THE Western Electric Washer is found right now in thousands of St. Louis homes. And it's going to be found in thousands more. Its goodness is known. It is wanted. Lots of people will tell you, "When we do get a washer, it will be a Western Electric."

Maybe you have said the same words yourself. If you have—well, in the ordinary course of events it would be only a matter of months, or weeks, or days—and you'd have your Western Electric.

But why wait? Here's a sale that breaks in on the ordinary course of events—a sale that says, "Get your Western Electric NOW—for $10 less than it would cost you later!"

Isn't that worth while? Just think—the Washer made by the largest electrical firm in the country, the washer recommended and sold by St. Louis' oldest and best-known electric shop—the washer you have always wanted—buy it now and—

You save $10

Remember the price on this particular carload of Washers is $135. Just the one carload goes at this figure. When it is sold you won't be able to get a Western Electric for less than $145.

You pay only $10 down

Only ten dollars down—that's all the cash you need—balance in convenient monthly amounts—a whole year to pay.

Phone, or send the coupon!

While the chance is open—take it! The first move is up to you. And the only place to get it is here. Demonstrations at the store or, on request, in your home. Come in, telephone or send the coupon. Do it now—no time to lose.

when "Sally, Irene and Mary" goes to the Century and "The Lady in Ermine" departs for Boston. . . . Milton Shubert's first theatrical venture, which will probably lead to a partnership with Brothers Lee and J. J., is a summer stock project in Philadelphia.

Walter Hampden, who has been an "independent" since he financed and staged "Hamlet" without aid or even encouragement from the regular producing managers, has leased the National Theater for a year, beginning Aug. 1, and will there attempt to realize his ideals as an actor-manager. He will play "Hamlet," "Othello," "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Servant in the House" and "A New Way to Pay Old Debts."

In addition, he has two new plays recently tried out in the West—"The Black Flag," a romantic comedy by A. E. Thomas; and "The Ring of Truth," a drama based by Arthur Goodrich and Rose E. Palmer on Robert Browning's poem, "The Ring and the Book." In the latter Hampden plays Caponsacchi, a poet-priest, and Carrol McComas appears as the Countess Pompilia, the death of whose husband, Count Guido, brings about the murder trial which is the climax of the play.

John Barrymore to Tour.

It is reported that John Barrymore, next season, will tour the principal cities not only in "Hamlet" but in "Richard III" and "Redemption." . . . Robert B. Mantell is to play his familiar role of Richelieu in a film version of "Under the Red Robe." His wife, Genevieve Hamper, will also appear in the picture, as will John Charles Thomas.

Channing Pollock's "dollar theater" is to have competition. Jessie Bonstelle, whose repertory companies are well known in Detroit, Providence and Buffalo, is negotiating for an uptown theater commodious enough to make popular-price productions of new plays practicable. Pollock, by the way, is said already to have received $300,000 in royalties from the companies playing "The Fool."

Donald Robertson, director of Chicago's proposed civic theater, has this to say: "When the tired business man tells me that he needs relaxation, I advise him to take a long walk, look at the stars and go to bed, but not to try to turn the theater into a hospital." . . . Tchekoff's farce, "The Dentist," is included in next week's program of the Chauve-Souris. . . . Gen. Leonard Wood's son, Leonard A. Wood Jr., is entering the show business, it is reported, and will open with a stock company in White Plains.

Equity Players Lose $80,000.

THE EQUITY PLAYERS are said to have lost $100,000 by their season at the Forty-eighth Street Theater, prior to the production of Jesse Lynch Williams' "Why Not?" This success has already cut the deficit down to $80,000. . . . Rumor comes that "Peer Gynt" has only two more weeks to run at the Shubert Theater. . . The singular tale is told that Don Marquis, of all men, has written a play about Jesus of Nazareth which the managers, with one accord, are declining. The action takes place immediately after the Crucifixion, and by some accounts the playwright's point of view is the skeptical attitude of Anatole France's "Procurator of Judaea."

A. A. Milne's play, "The Great Broxopp," has failed as summarily in London as it did in New York and Boston.

The National Art Theater, which Morris Gest is promoting, will be situated in the Forties just west of Eighth avenue, and according to present plans will extend through an entire block, with entrances on two streets. . . . A total of 522 persons will be employed in the nine companies which will present "The Fool" next season.

Lotus Robb, recently of "Johannes Kreisler," will have the leading feminine rôle in the Theater Guild's production of Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple." . . . Tessa Kosta, star of "Caroline," has turned composer. Two of her songs are to be sung at a recital in Town Hall, and a waltz from her pen is to be used in a new musical show . . . Frank Tinney and Rene Riano have been engaged for the prospective third edition of "The Music Box Revue." . . . "The Torchbearers" closed in Boston last week after a year's tour, and the second act has been transported to vaudeville. Players in the original company are retained, including Helen Lowell, Mary Boland and Alison Shipworth.

"THE FIRST YEAR," AT AMERICAN, IS COMEDY OF CONNUBIAL COMBAT

with Dorothy Phillips, will be shown on the screen.

The schedule at the Grand Opera House includes Henry Catalano and others in a revue; Raymond Bond, Duncan Harris, Eleanor Magnuson in "The Minute Man;" Stanley Chapman, Bob Murphy, the Glencoe Sisters, Grace Ayer, Weir and Crest, and Stanley, Tripp and Mowatt.

The German Theater Stock Company, at Eagle Auditorium, tonight, will present a comedy, "Die Beruehmte Frau" (The Famous Wife"), as a benefit for Kurt Hernfeld, a young actor who has been with the organization for three seasons. The Gayety announces "Maids of America," with two acts, 14 musical numbers, and a cast including Jack Shutta, Fred Reebe, George Leon, Alfaretta Symonds, Florence DeVere and Mildred Franklin.

"LA GARCONNE" BEING FILMED

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, April 14.—"La Garconne," for the writing of which Victor Margueritte was expelled from the Legion of Honor, is being filmed, amid a storm of protest. Objectors say the book has done harm enough without its episodes being depicted on the screen.

The scenario is written and the names of the actors are announced. The question is whether the censor will permit it to be shown. French opinion fears unfavorable impressions would result from an exhibition of the picture abroad.

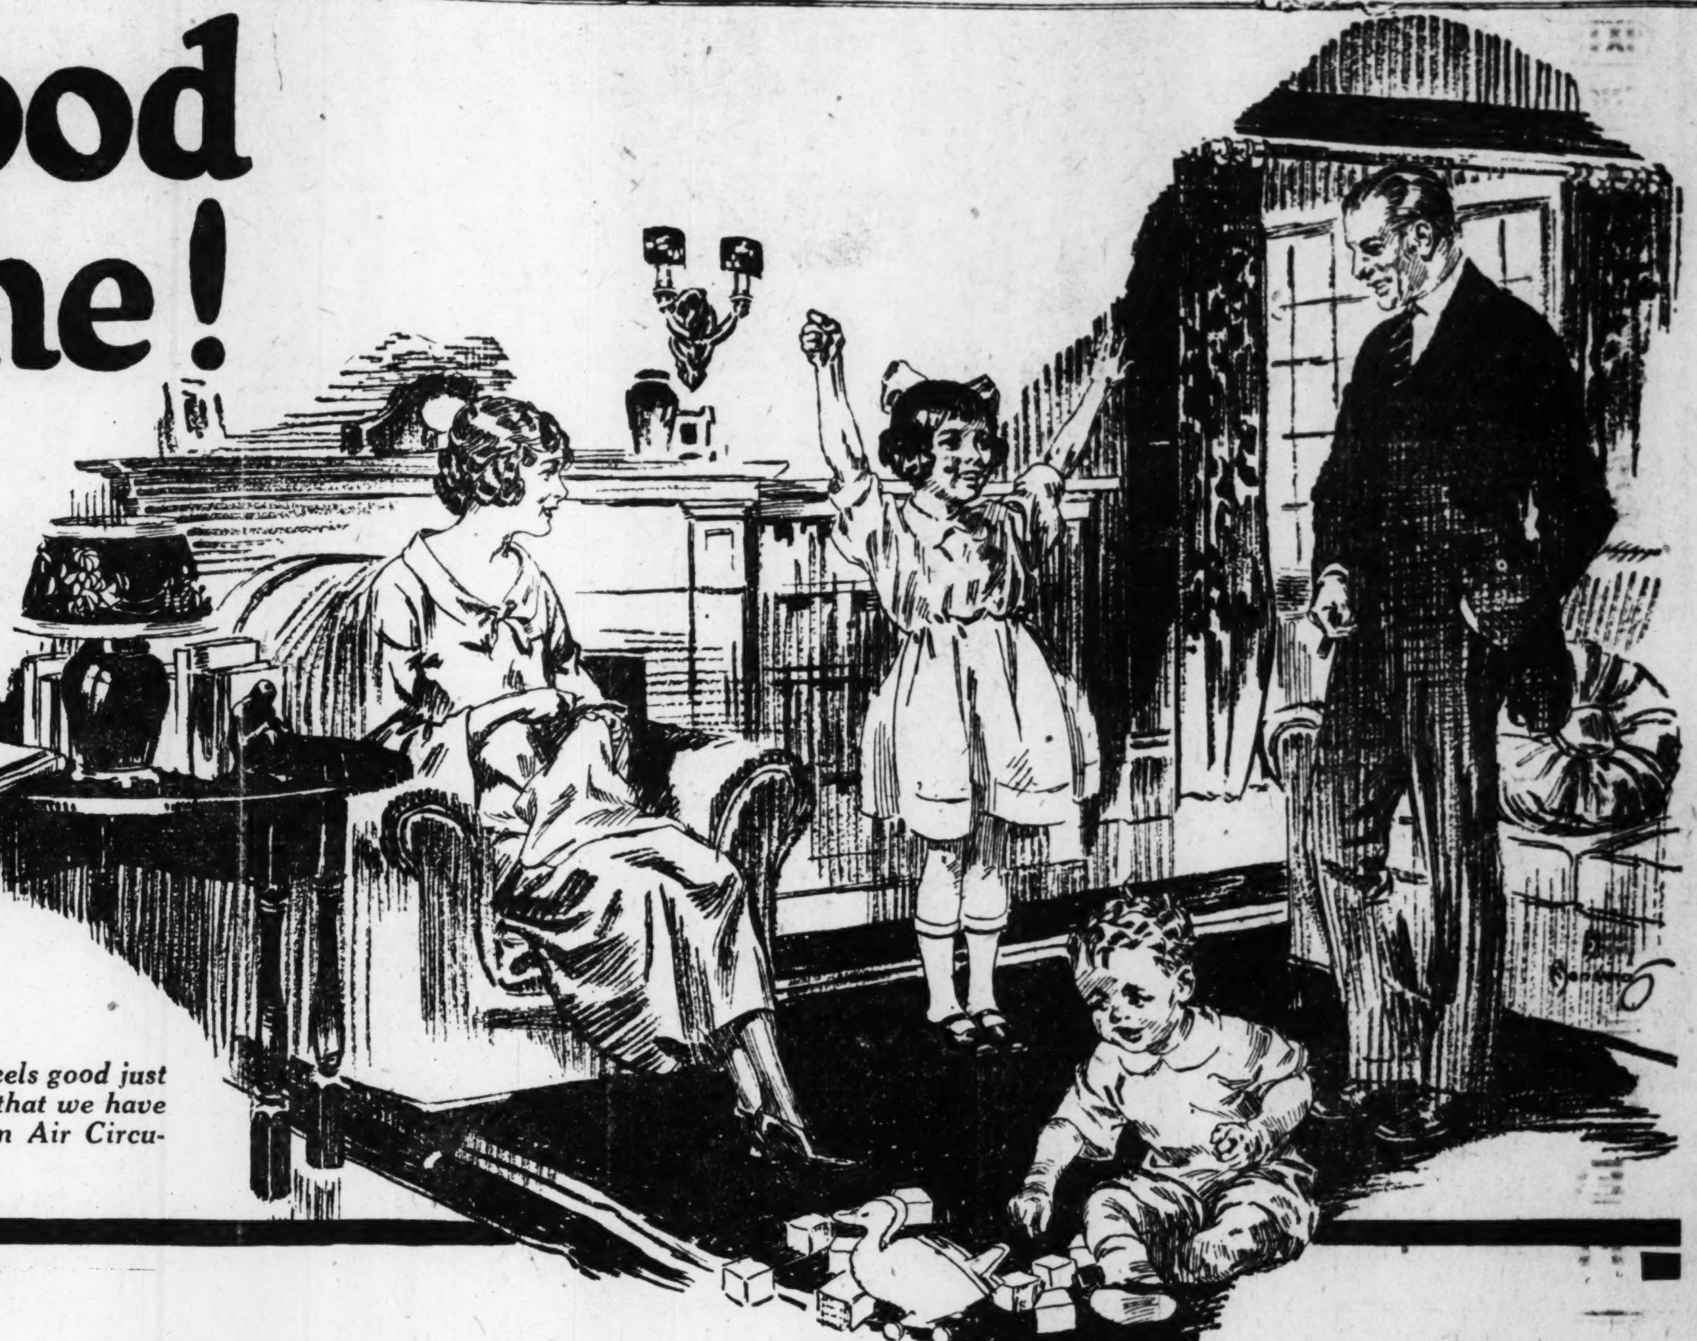
It does feel good just to Breathe!

THE HOLLAND Warm-Air Circulating System does provide good air for healthful, invigorating breathing. It is the kind of air that makes you want to stretch out your arms in pure joy, just to breathe as deeply as you possibly can.

The Holland System is not only replacing hundreds upon hundreds of hot-water, steam and vapor systems, but also just as many hot-air furnaces that, old or new, fail to provide the satisfaction that goes with the Holland System.



"Oh, Daddy, it feels good just to breathe, now that we have a Holland Warm Air Circulating System."

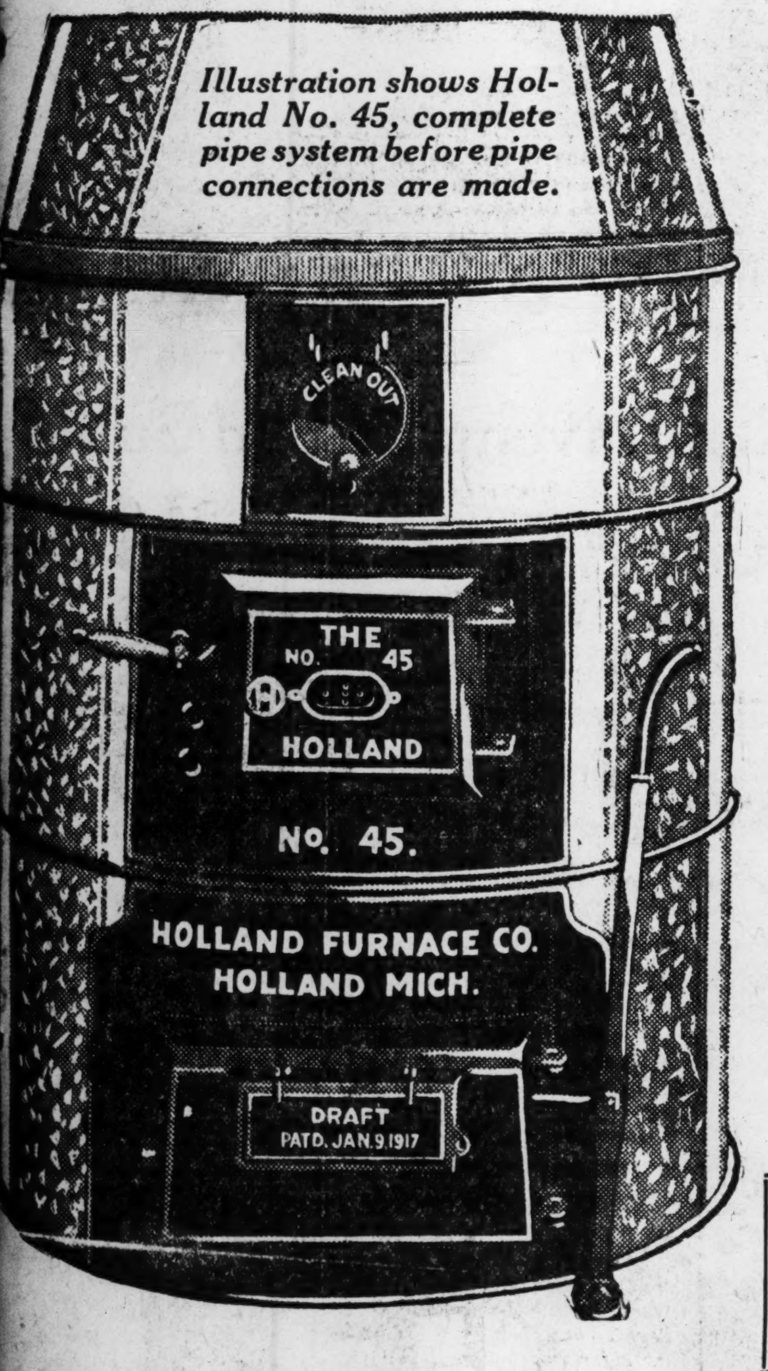


Illustration shows Holland No. 45, complete pipe system before pipe connections are made.

It is true that the Holland System is the most economical. But judging from a careful analysis of sales, the replacement is due primarily to the Holland's excellent provision for air circulation and humidity.

It is not strange that the Holland excels in sales when it excels in the advantages of comfort, convenience and economy—the very things that the home-owner pays for when he buys a heating system.

Remember, no matter how handsome your house may be—it is never a "home" until it is comfortably heated and ventilated. The Holland adds that final touch of solid comfort to home happiness. It makes every room livable, inviting and cheery. It makes for health through proper air circulation.

There is one right way to buy a heating system for your home. Buy it yourself! And if your home is already built, buy it in your home. Buy from a representative of a proven concern; one able to shoulder all the responsibility. And get the factory price!

Holland men are not only heating experts. They are gentlemen; the kind of men whom folks like to meet in their homes. Holland men receive a special training in home heating and ventilation. You may have full confidence in the advice and information they give you because their recommendations are backed by the guarantee of this company.

You can waste many tons of good fuel and burn up a lot of real money through the inefficiency of a poor furnace. And it's strange indeed why so many hard-headed business men, wise in every other thing, will stand for such waste and accept "any old furnace" without personal investigation before buying. A little time spent in looking into the merits of the Holland System in advance will add much to your comfort and spare many a drain on your pocketbook later on.

Right now—before house-cleaning—is a good time to take care of your furnace problem. Make sure of your installation by calling up a Holland Branch today, or writing the General Office. Asking for information will not obligate you in the least.

FREE BOOK

"The Whole House Comfortable and Clean" is an attractive new book—a guide you should have in furnace buying.

Send the coupon to us or get in touch with the nearest Holland Branch today. No matter how many furnaces we make, their installation depends entirely upon the number of trained men available.

Look at the list of Holland Service Branches printed at bottom of this page. The Holland man in your city will gladly give you valuable information on home heating.

Holland Furnaces Make Warm Friends

Gladys Cooper the Loveliest of "Magdas"

LONDON, April 14.

IT was an ambitious flight for so young an actress—Miss Gladys Cooper's recent essay of Sudermann's "Magda," at the Playhouse. The role provoked a memorable rivalry between the two greatest actresses of our time, Sarah and the Duse. It suited Sarah to bring out the cabotine in Magda. The Duse played her as if Magda had been Duse herself, thereby ennobling her with the true artistic soul that Sudermann had left out. After these, a long way after, though with considerable credit, came Mrs. "Pat."

Miss Cooper, who a year or so ago seemed a mere amateur, a beautiful woman and nothing more, here proves herself an artist of high intelligence. The role is her own creation, thought out for herself, and acted in accordance with her own individuality. That she is the most beautiful Magda yet seen need hardly be said, and yet should be, for beauty is a valuable asset in the part.

Her intonation is a little hard, and thus she scolds better than she pleads, says the critic of the Times. As her chief scolding is reserved for her former lover, Von Keller, it follows that the scenes with Von Keller were her best. We all enjoy a bit of hearty vituperation in the theater, and the violent scorn with which Miss Cooper overwhelmed the unhappy man was a most effective crescendo. But her scenes with Pastor Heffterdingk were good, too. Her gradual change in the first of these from contemptuous amusement to serious attention and then to profound conviction was excellently done. Evidently she has mastered the difficult art on the stage of listening well.

Great Theater-Play Still.

AS for the work itself, which many people and all actors suppose to be a great play, one could not help feeling that it was old-fashioned. Its ideal of family life—parental tyranny in a household of female slaves—is a thing of the past. We wonder, indeed, whether such a monster as old Schwartz ever existed outside a lunatic asylum.

Its ideal of the free, Bohemian, ultraluxurious life of the prima donna, with parrot, courier and Italian maid, is by this time fly-blown. Only once, and then incidentally, does she speak of the joy of singing. A modern dramatist would be expected to depict the artistic temperament more accurately than that.

But the very disrespect for the essential truth of things which disqualifies "Magda" as a great work of art helps to make it a great theater-play. The more flamboyant the personage of Magda, the better the actress' excuse for wearing extravagantly rich gowns and furs, and for sweeping the stage with her insolent pride of success. On the stage it is the violence of the collision that matters far more than the just measurement of the colliding forces. Strength of situation is more important than nice accuracy of character, and "Magda" is a rapid series of the strongest possible situations.

There was torrential enthusiasm at the fall of the curtain on the opening night and the usual silly cry of "Speech," but Miss Cooper had the sense to say nothing more than a simple "Thank you."

Ambrose Small Still Legally Alive After Three Years Though No Trace Has Been Found

"The Perfect Disappearance" of Canadian Theatrical Magnate Has Furnished a Mystery Which Is as Complete Today as on the Night He Disappeared—Wife's Effort to Obtain Control of His Property Thwarted by Court.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
TORONTO, April 14.

IT was on a bitterly cold and gloomy winter evening some three years and four months ago that Ambrose Small, Canada's millionaire theatrical man, stepped up to his favorite newsboy under the lamps of Adelaide street, just outside the doors of his Grand Theater, purchased an evening paper and hurried away into the dusk which was rapidly gathering into blackness. The newsboy pocketed his pennies, musing upon the fact that his wealthy customer would be a little late getting home that night, and turned back to the demands of his trade. When he looked again the man had vanished. Now, after three years and four months have gone by, that newsboy, so far as detectives who have searched every part of the globe have been able to discover, was the last person to see Ambrose Small living or dead.

The hunt for the lost millionaire has been a quest as sensational as it was fruitless. At the beginning it meant plunging into a maze of tangled theories, any one of which was just as good and fully as bad as any other. After three years, it means going over the old ones again and a lot of new ones besides, for Ambrose Small left no more trace of himself than a bubble that has burst, and the scattering bits of evidence adduced have been too intangible to support even an intelligent supposition as to his fate. Suggestions of murder, kidnaping, loss of memory, entanglements with women and a thousand and one other threads of investigation have been followed to their tattered ends and abandoned as hopeless, while the investigators have returned to the start to take up others, only to have them frazzle out in the same fashion.

New Mysteries in the Case

Now to the mystery of his death, or at least his disappearance, have been added other mysteries of circumstances surrounding his life. As a result of them, his wife has been denied her request to be declared his widow and the courts have ruled that no matter whether he is really alive or dead, he must remain "legally alive" until more conclusive evidence of his death has been established or until the period of his unexplained absence reaches seven years.

In Canada, as in the United States, it is the prevailing custom in legal circles to regard a missing man as alive for seven years after his disappearance and in most cases this custom is observed, but before half of the allotted time had elapsed in this case, Mrs. Small decided she had evidence enough of his death in the fact that she had heard no word from him since he dropped out of sight and she sought a decision to that effect at the bench of Judge Coatsworth, as Vicar of Destiny in Canada. Had the Judge chosen to accept her views and cut down Small's expanse of life in oblivion it would have had the effect of bringing into Mrs. Small's possession an estate of some $2,000,000 which he had left her in a will. But as he didn't, some three and a half more years must pass before Small can be consigned to the world beyond and Mrs. Small must do the best she can with the only inheritance she has received so far—a bitter feud with her husband's two sisters who, before his disappearance, received comfortable annuities.

Old Family Skeletons Appear

In view of the fact that the wife was the only heir named in the will, the advantages of a living Small over a dead one to the sisters are readily perceptible, and when Mrs. Small's attorney sought to link him with the spirit realm by adducing a presumption of death from a threat of suicide, it was not surprising that the Misses Mary and Gertrude Small were on hand with their counsel to conduct a gruelling examination of the would-be widow with a view to blocking the proceedings. This examination it was that brought old family skeletons to the light on such a scale as to fan the flames of interest in the case to a higher pitch than they have experienced for many a day.

Meanwhile there remains a deep and abiding enmity between the sisters and the wife as the search for further evidence goes on. While Small remains missing with his fate unexplained his wealth isn't doing anybody any good, because he took with him the annuities that would have been paid to his sisters and he also took away the signature that made checks to Mrs. Small—and in the trust company where he kept his funds, he had on that day deposited $1,000,000, the first payment made to him on the sale of his Canadian string of theaters.

Situation Ideal for Dramatist

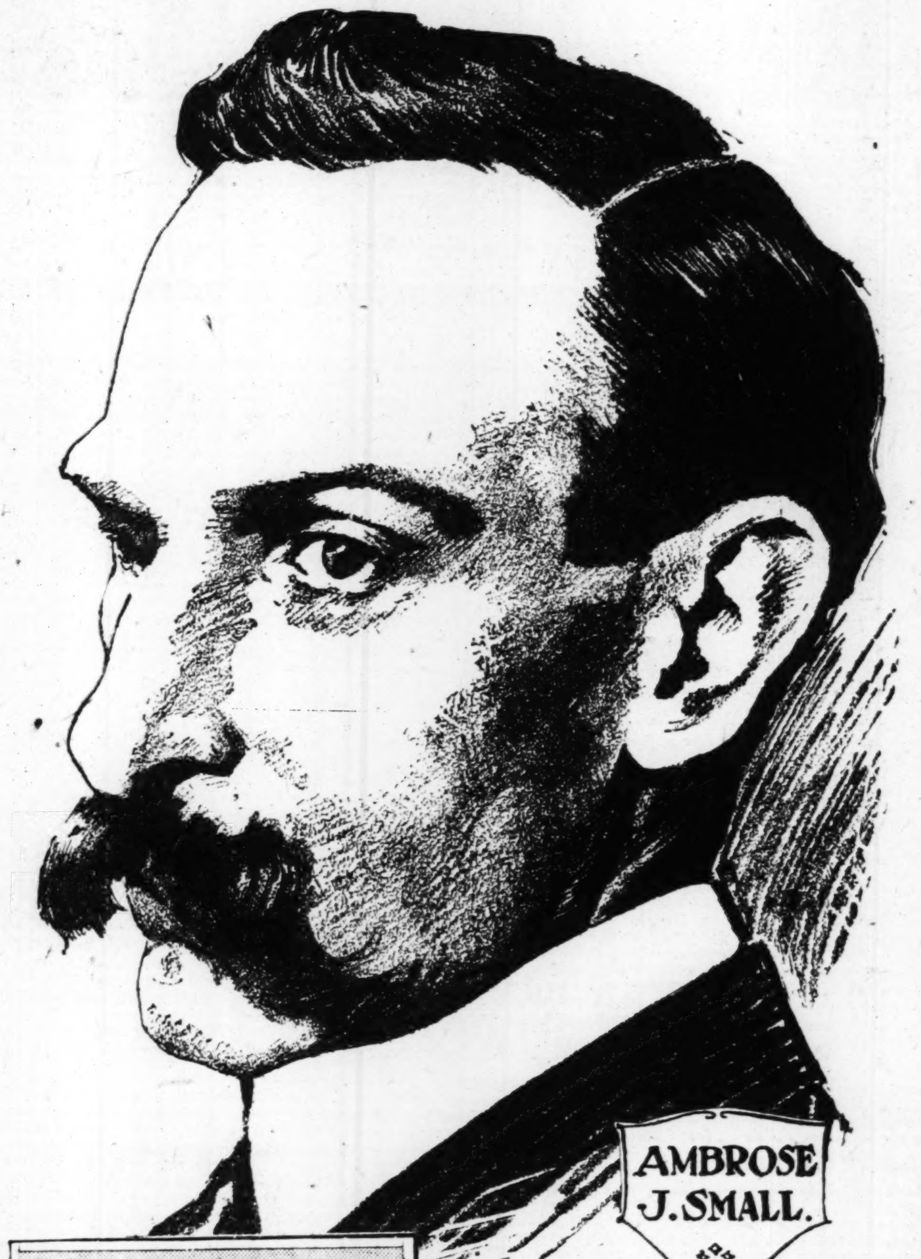
Small's plunge into the void of nothingness, leaving his $2,000,000 behind, and no tracks to mark his flight, produced a series of situations that might bring delight to the heart of a dramatist in search of new thrills for a mystery play. The suddenness of his departure—just as if he had stepped into a street manhole and gone on through to China and from China on through space to where the Einstein theory ends—furnishes ample material for act one, scene one, and it is not difficult to picture the rise of the curtain on such a play, revealing the butler dusting off the furniture and putting his audience en rapport with the state of affairs by saying:

"Ah, my poor master. What could have become of him. It's all mighty strange the things that 'appen about this 'ousehold. And there's no pleasure livin' any more with the police turnin' everything upside down and a-searchin' and suspectin' everyone"——

That soliloquy, then, might pave the way for involvements of plot that even Mary Roberts Rinehart never thought of, for late developments have revealed that Ambrose Small was a man of many intrigues and several times allowed his penchant for amorous adventure to bring him perilously near the matrimonial crossroads.

So, with such a background, suspicion of murder, kidnaping or conspiracy might easily fall on any one of many characters in the drama, only to have it all solved in the end by a simple little detail of detective work that everybody had overlooked. The synopsis of Small's story would look something like this:

Ambrose J. Small, shortly after noon Dec. 2, 1919, goes to his barber to be shaved. He is in a hurry. He takes out his watch, shows it to the barber and says he has only a few minutes to spare.



AMBROSE J. SMALL.

MRS. AMBROSE SMALL, who unavailingly sought to have the courts declare her a widow.

MISSES GERTRUDE AND MARY SMALL, sisters of the theatrical magnate, who oppose his wife in court actions.

Gets Check for a Million

He goes to his offices in the Grand Theater, where he sells his string of theaters and gets a million-dollar check.

That check is deposited in his bank, the assumption therefore being that his conference was over before 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

He is seen about the theater between 4 and 5 by employes.

His wife expects him home to dinner at 6.

Mrs. Small testifies he never came home.

He is supposed to have bought a newspaper from a boy on Adelaide street about 7 o'clock of this night and walked off into nothingness.

But—that watch he showed to his barber on this last day was found beneath the pillow of his bed at his home.

How did it get there?

But this is only the skeleton of the play, the outstanding points in the disappearance of the millionaire. The substance that lends color and subtleties to the drama is made up of those vital elements not so easily seen—his secret love affairs and the effects of his contact with the glamour of the theatrical world and its fascinating women.

The recent hearing in which the lawyers of the missing man's wife and sisters fought for their points did much toward supplying these elements.

Early in the hearing there came a development that seemed to index the story of Mrs. Small's life with her husband and reveal it as largely a series of dalliances, in which her husband would have sentimental relapses, make confessions of his infidelity and resume for a time a straightforward existence of matrimonial faithfulness, only to fall again and again. It all came out when the attorney for the Small sisters, A. G. Slaght, wanted to know why it was that Mrs. Small had allowed several weeks to pass before she notified the police of his disappearance. Her explanation in brief was that she thought he had gone off on a jaunt with another woman and would eventually come back for forgiveness, as he had done before, without the necessity for stirring up embarrassing publicity.

But at the same time it was disclosed that on the very night of his disappearance, after making futile inquiries about Toronto, she summoned courage to telephone to the most mysterious man in Small's list of mysterious acquaintances, seeking information. This man was Tom Flynn, known as Small's betting commissioner, and in answer to her question he is declared to have replied: "Don't be so fussy about it. Give the man some liberty."

In an interview arranged some weeks later, however, Flynn changed his note. According to his own testimony at the hearing, Mrs. Small had appealed to him, saying: "Can't you help me find Ambrose? He can have all the girls he wants." Flynn then told her, he said, that he did not believe a woman had anything to do with the theatrical man's disappearance.

In the suit just dismissed Mrs. Small testified that she thought her husband had eloped with a woman named Clara Smith, but the police scout this theory, having found Mrs. Smith in Minneapolis and established to their satisfaction that she knew nothing about Small's disappearance.

"When was Mrs. Smith mentioned between you and your husband?" asked the attorney for Small's sisters.

"It was back about 1916 or 1917," Mrs. Small said.

Q. Did it disturb your domestic relations—this matter of Mrs. Smith? A. No.

Q. Did you speak to your husband about it? A. Yes. He asked to be forgiven, and asked me to help him get rid of her. I told him I would do all in my power, and I forgave him.

Q. Had you and your husband a serious difference of opinion in 1917? A. Well, I only knew of one occasion; he made a confession to me, and thereafter we were very happy. He was very kind to me and did everything in his power to make up for the things he had told me about.

Q. He didn't make any confession to you in 1917, did he? A. Yes, he did.

Q. In what month did he do so? A. In May.

Q. Did your husband write a letter to another man in 1917 making accusations against him? A. My huband was in the power of a designing woman, who passed as Mrs. Kelso, and there was a diabolical plot so that she might stay in this city.

Suggestion of a Man in the Case

Mr. Slaght repeated his query as to the letter her husband was said to have written to the other man.

"Yes, and the man wrote back to me demanding an explanation," she said, and added. "This woman and her friends were making up a diabolical plot."

Alluding to the woman, Mrs. Small exclaimed: "She didn't succeed and she didn't scare me and I did not get out. She went away and got married and my husband, until the day he died, did everything in his power to make up for the wrong he had done me."

THOMAS FLYNN, Small's confidant and betting commissioner.

When Tom Flynn, the betting commissioner, came to the stand, Mr. Slaght questioned him about this episode.

"It was suggested by Mrs. Small that somebody had been a party to some diabolical plot to accomplish something with her to enable some woman to remain in Toronto. Did you do any such plotting?"

"Anything I did in the way of plotting was to protect Mrs. Small," answered Flynn.

Q. Did you at any time influence her husband or poison him against her? A. In no way.

Q. She further stated you used the name of "Kelso"? A. That was a name used by Small and myself in business. There was nothing to do about any woman by that name.

Q. She linked this name with a woman? A. I heard her. Let her link it along. I am not afraid of her. Let her talk all she likes.

Q. You say you protected Mrs. Small? A. I protected her life. That is all. Don't you think that is protection?

Q. Protected her life against whom? A. A. J. Small.

Flynn Picturesque Witness

Flynn was a picturesque witness. He told of an interview with Mrs. Small at her home at her request. As he was about to leave her she said to him: "Guess who was here today?" He replied: "I am a bad guesser." And she said: "There were two police officers. They had come to question the maid. I wouldn't allow it."

"'Why?' I asked," continued Flynn. "'I don't want my charity work interfered with,' she said. I told her she would have publicity enough if there were a murder. She said to me: 'Can you prove an alibi?' and I said: 'I can to my own satisfaction, even if not to the satisfaction of the police.' I told her the police could take any of us and hold us while they were inquiring—they could take me or they could take her. She said: 'Ugh!'" and Flynn shrugged his shoulders expressively.

Flynn also told about Small's race track betting. He said he bet large sums, $1500 to $2000, and his winnings were large, sometimes $15,000 to $18,000 on a race. In one week, he said, he had won $70,000 for Small.

Who was the woman named Kelso? Why did Flynn and Small use the name as a "firm name" to cover their race track deals? Did Small plan to go away with this Kelso woman after that $1,000,000 was placed to his account?

Did Former Wife of Memphis Millionaire Spend Her Alimony in Buying Another Woman's Husband and Give Up Her Two Children in the Bargain?—As Her First Husband Has Married Again Also, Only One Person Concerned in the Transaction Is Left Without a Spouse and She Appears to Be Satisfied With the Money.

By F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 14.

TRADING old husbands and old wives for new husbands and new wives has been expensive business for Joseph Newburger, cotton merchant and banker, and his former wife, Hettye. Just how expensive it has been for Newburger only the parties to the trading and their lawyers know, and they will not tell, but new husbands and new wives come high, when a man of great wealth is paying the bills. It is quite evident that fancy prices were paid before the families were rearranged to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The cost to the woman is spread upon the records of the court and is known to all men. The new husband that she acquired was at the price of practical renunciation of her two children.

When Joseph Newburger, forbearing to obtain his freedom by attacking the mother of his children or even opposing her suit against him, suffered Mrs. Newburger to obtain a divorce from him, he was willing that she should have the children part of the time and it was stipulated in the decree that the mother should have them two months, June and July, of each year, and the father obligated himself, if either of the children became ill while in his custody, to notify their mother and invite her to visit them, and on the death of either of the parents full custody was to revert to the survivor.

But when Mrs. Newburger was married to Dr. W. T. Arrington, Memphis dentist, Newburger was no longer content for his former wife to have the custody of the children even two months out of 12. The decree was so amended as to give him the absolute custody as long as he shall live and continued control after his death in the form of a guardianship.

Paid Generously for Freedom

First and last the money used in the deals came from the ample fortune of Newburger, business man, civic leader, clubman, philanthropist, several times a millionaire and often spoken of as Memphis' foremost citizen. He paid, willingly and generously, for freedom from his first wife which enabled him to marry his second. The money paid to the first Mrs. Newburger was hers to do with as she pleased and if she chose to use a substantial part of it to acquire another husband, at the valuation placed upon him by his first wife, it was not the affair of Newburger.

The former Mrs. Newburger has her new husband and Newburger has just lately taken as his second wife Miss Rose Cohen, and all indications are that all four are well pleased with the rearrangement. Only Mrs. Arrington No. 1 is left husbandless, but her suit for $100,000 for the alienation of the doctor's affections has been settled out of court to her satisfaction, which probably means that she has received what she considers a very fair price for the one she had and couldn't keep, so she is not complaining.

If an explanation is sought for the necessity which arose for all this matrimonial rearrangement it may be found in the marriage of December and May. Newburger was 49 when he first married and his first wife was 22. That was in 1907 and Newburger was then a very wealthy and successful man. He built for his wife one of the show places of Memphis, a marble mansion in a picturesque woodland on the East Parkway. The household over which the young Mrs. Newburger reigned was said to be the most elaborate in the city. Newburger was deeply in love with his young wife and counted it no hardship to pay something like $80,000 a year for the upkeep of the establishment, with its retinue of servants, its fleet of automobiles and its elaborate social functions.

That is, he counted it no hardship at first. It is matter of allegation in the divorce suit which Mrs. Newburger finally filed against him that there came a time when he took the financial management of the home out of her hands and told her she could not have any more money. But that was after his happiness in the possession of a beautiful young wife and a palatial home had become clouded.

Bought Her Costly Clothing

Before the clouds came to obscure the sky of his happiness and security, no expenditure was too great if it helped to make his young wife happy and contented. It was his delight to provide raiment for her at the cost of a king's ransom. Memphis society, accustomed to lavish expenditure, nevertheless commented upon the elaborateness of the dinners at the Newburger mansion. Not so much dinners for guests as dinners just for Newburger and his wife. The story was that each evening the lighting and the color scheme were changed to suit the dinner gown of Mrs. Newburger.

But, after all, it takes a lot of things to make a woman happy and long before the open break which brought the couple into the glare of publicity it was known that happiness no longer dwelt in the marble mansion. Mrs. Newburger, when she finally filed suit for divorce, said it started when Newburger became engrossed in business. Before that, she says with significant emphasis, they were happy "despite the disparity in their ages." But by and by, as he became more and more engrossed in business, he became domineering in the home and there were stormy scenes and it came to the point that he refused to associate with her or her guests and refused to dine with her and found his amusement in playing solitaire.

Let Wife Know She Wasn't Wanted

That he still valued social life was shown by the fact that he gave elaborate dinners to his friends, but he gave his wife to understand that she was not wanted at these. When, finally, he took the financial management of the home out of her hands and told her she could not have any more money, she left him and filed suit for divorce.

If Newburger felt that he had cause of complaint against Mrs. Newburger he did not avail himself of it. He was content to take any blame that might be incurred by non-resistance to Mrs. Newburger's suit and to make provision for her in keeping with his financial standing. So when Mrs. Newburger had her day in court Newburger was not there. His lawyer was and gave assent to a decree the terms of which had been agreed upon. As entered upon the records after Mrs. Newburger had told of his "cruel and inhuman treatment" of her and had been given her freedom, August 1, 1922, the decree provided for the payment by Newburger to her of $50,000 at once and an additional $250,000 in installments covering a period of seven years, and she was to retain her jewelry and apparel, the furniture of her sleeping room and boudoir and the silver.

As for the children, Joy, 6 years old and Mary, 3, the husband was to have them 10 months of each year and the mother two months, June and July, with the stipulation that if either child became ill during the 10 months their mother should be notified and invited to visit them, and at the death of either of the parents full custody was to pass to the other.

Divorce for Mrs. Arrington

Just a little while after Mrs. Newburger obtained her divorce and the first installment of her alimony, Mrs. Edna Arrington filed suit for divorce from Dr. W. T. Arrington, 48 years old, dentist to the fashionables in general and dentist to Mrs. Newburger in particular. The sequence of events was not lost upon Memphis. The charges she made against Arrington were commonplace but, with no resistance from him, sufficient to obtain a decree for her.

So far as the court records were concerned

there was nothing in the coincidence of the two divorces to indicate that they were preliminary to another marriage, but the public had information, more or less authentic, that was not contained in court records and the expectation, based upon this information, was that wedding bells would soon be ringing for Dr. Arrington and Mrs. Newburger.

Mrs. Newburger left Memphis. In a little while Dr. Arrington turned his patients over to another dentist and also departed. He joined Mrs. Newburger somewhere and they were married at Crown Point, Ind., and went to Chicago to live.

Whether Mrs. Arrington foresaw this culmination when she obtained her divorce and counted upon it as one of the factors of her claim against Mrs. Newburger, or whether she merely utilized the marriage in aggravation of the damage she had already sustained, is not apparent, but the wedding was quickly followed by the filing by Mrs. Arrington of a suit against the new Mrs. Arrington for $100,000 damages for the alienation of the doctor's affections.

Cognizance of the settlement which Newburger had made with his wife was taken by the filing of attachments against the cash which Newburger had given his wife and which she had deposited in a bank, against the $250,000 still due and against the household goods which Mrs. Newburger had placed in storage.

Overtures for Adjustment

The situation was becoming so complex, with such possibilities of annoyance for all concerned if the alienation suit went to trial, that overtures for an adjustment were made. Three sets of lawyers, representing Newburger, Mrs. Arrington No. 1 and Mrs. Arrington No. 2, got together and talked the thing up one side and down the other. An agreement was reached. Except for certain details of this which had to be incorporated in an amended decree in the divorce suit of the Newburgers, the terms were sealed with secrecy, but they were satisfactory to Mrs. Arrington No. 1, who had placed a valuation of $100,000 on her husband, and to Mrs. Arrington No. 2, and to Newburger, whose part was to put up the money for the whole transaction.

The first action revealing the three-cornered agreement that had been reached was the dismissal of the alienation suit and the dissolution of the injunction, garnishments and attachments which had been obtained in aid of the alienation suit. The sum paid Mrs. Arrington No. 1 is said to have been $40,000.

An advantage gained by Newburger which he probably values more than all the money that it may have cost him to finance the adjustment, was the exclusive possession of his children which he contrived to gain. What pressure was brought to bear upon their mother or what inducements offered for her to completely surrender her children does not appear.

All that the public is permitted to know is contained in the supplemental and agreed decree in the Newburger divorce case which was filed after the dismissal of the alienation suit. This shows that the notes for $250,000 given by Newburger to cover the settlement first agreed upon have been returned to Newburger and "it is decreed that all demands have been satisfied," and that the personal property enumerated in the original decree has been delivered and satisfactorily divided, complying with the original decree in this respect. What bulk sum was paid by Newburger in lieu of the instalment payments provided for in the original decree is not revealed. It is assumed that the bulk settlement was substituted for the deferred payments because the continuing financial relations became distasteful to Newburger after his former wife acquired another husband.

Most Interested in Children

However liberal Newburger may have been or however close a bargain he may have driven, the supplemental decree shows that it was the exclusive possession of the children in which he was most interested. The decree sets out frankly that on account of the remarriage of the former Mrs. Newburger to W. T. Arrington, the provisions for the care and custody of the children, as made in the original decree, "are no longer satisfactory." The supplemental decree annuls the former decree and gives to Newburger the exclusive custody of the children not only as long as he may live but after his death in the form of a guardianship of his selection, not only with reference to the children's estate but as to their persons, relating to "their care, maintenance, education, rearing and support."

The only right the woman retains as the mother of the children is that of seeing her children between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. "at reasonable times and intervals" during the life of their father, with the man reserving the privilege of determining what are reasonable times and intervals. After the death of the father, if the mother survives, she is to have the privilege "at suitable and reasonable times, places and intervals" to see her children and have their companionship.

Recognizing the greater likelihood of disagreement about the exercise of the privilege, with Newburger's sister, Mrs. Alma Conn, acting as guardian, as stipulated in the decree, provision is made for arbitration. The decree provides that if the mother disagrees with the guardian about the reasonableness and propriety of her exercise of the privilege of seeing her children, the question shall be submitted to the executors of his will and the trustees of his estate, whose decision shall be final as long as Julian C. Wilson is an executor and trustee. If such a question arises and Wilson is no longer functioning as executor and trustee the woman may apply to the court for a determination of her rights.

Thought of Matrimony Again

It was Feb. 12 when the supplemental decree was made a record of the court. Following that, with full custody of his children and a receipt in full from his former wife for all her claims upon him, Newburger gave thought to the matter of taking unto himself another wife. It is just possible that if the mother of the children had known that they were to be provided with a stepmother she might have been more difficult to deal with in the matter of an agreement as to their custody. Newburger is 64 years old and it may well be that his former wife assumed that he would not again enter the matrimonial lists.

But on March 6 Newburger married Miss Rose Cohen, daughter of Mrs. Jennie Cohen and they left on a honeymoon trip to Tampa and Havana. On the marriage license records Miss Cohen's age is given as 46.

"Did Small tell you anything about his plans for the future?" Flynn was asked.

"A. Yes; Small said: 'I don't want you to tell anyone, but we leave here Jan. 1.' I asked: 'Where do we go?' And he replied: 'South; and we won't be back until the races are on in Toronto in the spring or probably later.' I asked him if the old lady was going along. He said he was going to send her to her sister to stay for the winter and I told him it was bad dope."

Mrs. Small's Movements Described

Mrs. Small was then called to the stand again and questioned about her movements on the night her husband disappeared. She had been at home with only the maid, she related, and became uneasy when the dinner hour passed and Small failed to arrive. She waited half an hour, she said, then telephoned her husband's office. There was no answer. Next she telephoned the box office. The line was busy. Then she called Small's secretary, Doughty, but he was unable to tell where his employer was. At 8 o'clock she set out to carry on a search by herself. She visited the theater; then Tom Flynn's house, where Small "sometimes watched a game of poker;" next she went to a sister's home and finally the home of Small's father, but all her quests were fruitless. When midnight was near she gave up the search and returned to her own home, where she sat by the window watching until early morning. But that night of waiting and many others that followed brought the wanderer no nearer home.

Letter Indicated Plans

It was that very thing, she said, that convinced her that Ambrose Small was dead. Had he only gone away, he would not have kept her in suspense and anxiety for so many months. There had been no word from him since that night of Dec. 2, 1919.

What her husband's plans had been were indicated by a letter she produced, written shortly before his disappearance, and addressed to James H. Decker, New York. It read as follows:

"Dear Jim: Between ourselves, I am going to drop out within the next year or so, and I thought you or the firm might perhaps like to know about this. Mrs. Small was educated in Europe, speaks all of the languages, and I made her a promise some time ago I would shape my business in a way that would enable both of us to spend a little more time on the other side. Then again, I have worked very hard during the last eight or ten years and have definitely decided to go a little bit easier. Of course, I'll probably never relinquish my holdings in Toronto, but the circuit of outside towns is what keeps me tied down.

"Last season I had about 50 one-night stands on my list, including the smaller towns. I own outright the theaters in Hamilton, London and Kingston and lease the Russell in Ottawa. The whole bunch in the outside territory, the booked houses being all on a percentage basis, net me from $75,000 to $100,000 per annum, as I have no rents to pay excepting Ottawa. Had one season in the towns a few years ago that turned in $114,000. Of course, this is all to you in the strictest confidence.

"With every good wish.

"AMBROSE SMALL."

Percy Small, half-brother of the missing man, insists Ambrose Small was murdered in his office at 6:30 p. m. on Dec. 2. The question in the minds of everyone then is:

Where is Small's body?

George Soucy, formerly a superintendent of the Toronto Hydro Electric, swore he had seen Small four days after this supposed murder, pinioned down in a flying automobile.

Small, in the absolute mystery of his vanishing, has been virtually a male Dorothy Arnold. And the tangle of intrigue grows worse.

James Cowan, formerly manager of the Grand Opera House, says Small asked him to discharge his half-brother, Percy.

A letter which Curtis Aldridge, dining-car steward on the Toronto-Buffalo train, said he wrote to Mrs. Small regarding a conversation he had with Small was discovered to have disappeared; a detective, Austin Mitchell, claiming he could not locate it; Arthur Weatherup, the barber, who said he shaved Small the day of his disappearance, told of Detective Mitchell trying to force him to sign a statement that he was mistaken in his dates; Patrick Regan, Small's tailor, told of a key which he had seen in Mrs. Small's house, attached to a watch having mysteriously disappeared, and that Mrs. Small had warned him to "keep his mouth shut."

The "70-Acre Burial Plot."

Detective Mitchell, who has been on the case from the beginning, made trouble for himself by declaring he knew a plot of ground, 70 acres in extent, where he believes Small's body is buried, though he declined to say where it is.

Yet in the eyes of the law Ambrose J. Small is alive.

His millions stay intact until someone produces the corpus delicti—or until seven years have passed, when his money will be distributed.

So, the fresh installment of evidence, outside of arousing interest in the case almost to its original pitch, has done but little toward accomplishing a solution of the puzzle. In fact, it has only tangled the threads worse. The detectives who have spent weeks and months on the case are under renewed criticism for their failure, but officials refuse to concede that they will not yet unravel the mystery.

Meanwhile, John Doughty, the missing man's secretary, who disappeared three weeks after Small, and who was located in Oregon, brought back and sentenced to seven years for the theft of $100,000 of Small's bonds, is serving his term in Kingston penitentiary.

Fred Stone's Role as "Christian" in New Version of Pilgrim's Progress

MONTANA PASTOR DESCRIBES INCIDENTS ATTENDING ACTOR'S RETURN TO THE FAITH OF HIS FATHERS

The Rev. Robert A. Cameron, Who Was One of Stone's Guides in His Move to Declare His Belief and Pledge One-Tenth of His Income to the Church, Writes That Comedian Was Drawn Into the Folds of Christianity by a "God-Created Repining Restlessness," and Not Through the Intercession of Ministers.

WHEN Fred Stone, the eminent comedian, set out upon the course that was to lead him into the acceptance of Christianity and the pledging of one-tenth of his income to the church, it was his destiny to find as his guides, two ministers of unusual ability and achievement, one of them a Presbyterian and the other a Methodist. The first who helped him to direct his steps toward his newly visioned goal was the Rev. Robert A. Cameron, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Billings, Mont., whom he met by chance. But as he had been born into the Methodist denomination, it was not unnatural that Stone should seek a Methodist minister for the counsel that was to bring his public avowal of faith. The minister he found was the Rev. Cecil Leslie Clifford, pastor of the Mountain View Methodist Church of Butte.

Marooned in a blizzard on the plains of North Dakota one day late in February, Stone fought out with himself the question of his religious convictions without ministerial intercession. But when he had reached Billings with his awakened faith still uppermost in his mind and had visited a bookstore for the purpose of providing himself with a Bible, he happened to gain the acquaintance of the Rev. Mr. Cameron. How he continued his Pilgrim's Progress from that point is an interesting story.

It was when Stone and his company got to Butte for their two nights' engagement that he came into contact with those churchly forces which brought about the real culmination of his conversion, dramatically, powerfully and in a way that aroused nation-wide attention.

In the accompanying article the Rev. Mr. Cameron discusses the events preceding and attending the actor's return to the faith of his fathers and throws considerable light upon the much-discussed question of his sincerity in his move.

Man Who "Guided" Fred Stone Born in Charlie Chaplin's Block

THE Rev. Robert A. Cameron, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Billings, Mont., was born in London, England, Dec. 15, 1882, of Scotch parentage. The neighborhood is further noted as the birthplace of Charlie Chaplin and is described by the comedian in his book, "My Trip Abroad."

THE REV. ROBERT A. CAMERON

The Rev. Mr. Cameron came to the United States at 20 to continue his education. Since then he has been a naturalized citizen. He attended Princeton and McCormick Theological Seminaries, was graduated from the latter in Chicago in 1909. He also spent two years in special Bible study at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

His first pastorate for three and a half years was at Clarinda, Ia. For the past 10 years he has been a resident of Montana. He has held pastorates at Anaconda and Billings. He is a member and director of the Billings Rotary Club, and in 1921 was chosen representative of several Montana clubs at the International Rotary convention, held in Edinburgh, Scotland.

This year he is the Moderator of the Yellowstone Presbytery of the Synod of Montana.

In 1911, the Rev. Mr. Cameron married Miss Caroline Landers of St. Louis, an alumnus of Western College.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Billings counts himself a Western man. In summer his recreation is whipping the trout streams with which Montana abounds, and in winter he finds relaxation in the study of Lincoln literature and the collecting of a Lincolniana of which he has assembled many interesting and valuable items.

By ROBERT A. CAMERON, D. D.

BILLINGS, Mont., April 14.

AS I talked with Fred Stone in my study there flashed into my mind Edwin Markham's beautiful poem, "The Juggler of Touraine," which I had not read for years. A closer study of that poetic legend since that memorable afternoon has revealed to me the remarkable parallel between the character and experiences of Barnabas the Juggler, as told by the poet, and the kindly, modest, sincere comedian, Fred Stone, waylaid by the Divine Spirit on a snowbound train midst the solitude of a Dakota prairie.

Beloved by all who have worked with him, and highly respected by the American public for the clean, wholesome fun of which he has been the purveyor for more than a quarter of a century, Fred Stone has all the good attributes ascribed to the Juggler of Touraine.

Like Barnabas he has been unspoiled by the success and fame which have crowned his labors, and with all his popularity and acquisitions he too, has kept the ways of a little child. Self-effacement, kindliness, sincerity, these are the traits for which he is beloved by all who know him behind the scenes.

The undue and undesirable publicity which has been given to the religious crisis through which he has recently passed is abhorrent to his nature and foreign to his wishes. So absorbed was he in the thing he was doing and so little did he imagine that the world would be interested, that he little realized the publicity that would be given to his church attendance in Butte and to his confession of faith before the congregation of the Mountain View Methodist Church.

Fred Stone, at the pinnacle of fame in his profession, rich in the friendship of thousands and happy in the love of a devoted family, suddenly was made aware that God "hath set eternity in the heart," and that nothing less than God Himself can ever fill to completeness and with utter rest the heart of man.

"Repining Restlessness"

George Herbert, in "The Pulley," relates that:

> When God at first made man,
> Having a glass of blessings standing by—
> Let us (said He) pour on him all we can;
> Let the world's riches, with dispersed lie,
> Contract into a span.
> So strength first made a way,
> Then beauty flow'd, then wisdom, honor, pleasure;
> When almost all was out, God made a stay,
> Perceiving that, alone of all His treasure,
> Rest at the bottom lay.
> For if I should (said He)
> Bestow this jewel on My creature,
> He would adore My gifts instead of Me,
> And rest in nature, not the God of nature;
> So both should losers be.
> Yet let him keep the rest,
> But keep them with repining restlessness;
> Let him be rich and weary, that at least,
> If goodness lead him not, yet weariness,
> May toss him to My breast.

So by this God-created "repining restlessness" and "weariness" was Fred Stone tossed upon the bosom of the Divine Father, to find rest as sweet as that of an infant in its mother's arms.

> God moves in a mysterious way
> His wonders to perform;
> He plants His footsteps in the sea
> And rides upon the storm!

And upon the fury of a Dakota blizzard, which snowbound the comedian's train for two days, God rode majestically and triumphantly; and His servitors, Wind and Snow, stalled the hunted soul, pursued by the Hound of Heaven, and forced him to capitulate to the Divine Love that "with unhurrying chase and unperturbed pace" had pursued its quarry to this glorious consummation.

Sought to Purchase a Bible

Little had man to do with Fred Stone's conversion. As surely as Saul of Tarsus was arrested on the Damascus road, so was Fred Stone apprehended by One whom he now delights to call "Master."

Arriving in Billings, Fred Stone sought a book store to purchase a Bible, that he might grope his way to the peace which he sought. Happening to be in the store (and since the writer believes in miracles, he believes, providentially) someone said: "Here is a sky pilot; perhaps he can assist you in your selection." I was introduced to Mr. Stone and offered my assistance. We afterward left the store together and walked toward the Northern Hotel, where I prepared to leave him, when he volunteered to walk up the street with me. Seeing that something evidently burdened his mind, I ventured to elicit his story, suggesting my interest in his recent purchase of a Bible. It was then that he told me of his quest, of the fame he had achieved, of the friendships won, and of the love possessed, yet "Wanting was—What?"

We walked toward the Presbyterian Church of which I am pastor, and I invited him to my study. That which took place behind those doors is a sealed chapter—I have tried to write the story in my own journal and failed! It is not true, as has been published, that Fred Stone sought counsel from me as to his future on the stage. The use made of the legend of "The Juggler of Touraine" was to illustrate what I believed was his immediate privilege to express his joy and gratitude to his Maker by giving the very best that was in him, while doing the one thing that he could do better than anything else.

Was Playing to the "Sky Pilot"

I stood in the "wings" that night at Fred's request and saw, not what others saw—that he was not playing to the audience but "to the sky pilot in the wings;" what I saw was an offering made to God!

Would any have counseled that immediately he should quit the stage and return to New York, leaving stranded a company of 100 people, 1000 miles from home, and who were dependent upon him for their livelihood for several months until this tour of "Tip-Top" should be ended?

Those who know me credit me with a fairly stiff Scotch Presbyterian conscience, which I endeavor to keep regulated by the Light which is from above, and it does not prompt me to believe that such advice would have been ethically sound.

As to Fred Stone's future on the stage, my subsequent counsel, given in correspondence has been to follow the advice of Proverbs 3, verses 5, 6. "Trust in the Lord with all thy heart, and lean not upon thine own understanding: In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct thy paths."

More than that at present I would consider presumption to offer. Those who know Fred Stone know that one of his leading traits is his earnestness. Whatever he is doing has his entire attention. Just now, to do the will of God is the thing uppermost in his mind, and his sincerity is evidenced by his prompt response the following Sunday morning to the earnest and able appeal of Dr. Cecil Leslie Clifford, pastor of the Mountain View Methodist Church of Butte, to his congregation to acknowledge the Divine ownership by covenanting one-tenth of their income for the purpose of maintaining and extending the Kingdom of God.

Responded Instantly to Sermon

The first sermon heard in years, yet this sincere man seeking the Light, responds instantly to the truth as he grasps it! How does this action rebuke the complacent church member who has become "Gospel hardened" and who is failing in the recognition of his stewardship!

I have been asked what passages of Scripture were used to assist Fred Stone in his quest for spiritual rest. Not all of them are remembered, but among them were the great universal promises of the Good Book, "Him that cometh unto Me I will in nowise cast out" (John vi, 37); "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (First Epistle of John, chapter 1, verse 9), and Isaiah 55, verses 6 and 7.

Is Fred Stone sincere? Was he playing to the galleries? Is this a good advertising stunt worked up by his press agent? These are questions which those who know Fred Stone, the man, as he is off the stage, will never ask. Only the ignorant, the cynical and those who, because their own hearts are not pure, can see no goodness in others, will ever doubt.

Fred Stone keeps in physical trim by taking plenty of strenuous exercise. He is shown here "taking a hurdle" in competition with Douglas Fairbanks at Hollywood. Judging from the photograph, there is little to choose between them as hurdlers.

THE REV. CECIL LESLIE CLIFFORD,
Pastor of the Mountain View Methodist Church at Butte, Mont.

The Mountain View Methodist Church, where the noted comedian made his public avowal of faith and pledged one-tenth of his income to the church.

THE REV. ROBERT A. CAMERON,
Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Billings, Mont., in cowboy attire. Like the Rev. Mr. Clifford, this pastor is greatly beloved by his people because "he talks their language."

Pastor a Power Among His People Because He "Talks Their Language."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUTTE, Mont., April 11.—Who is the Rev. Cecil Leslie Clifford of Mountain View Methodist Church, Butte, Mont.?

It was in his study that Fred Stone, the eminent comedian, fell on his knees one Sunday recently, accepted Christianity, then entered the church, publicly declared himself a penitent follower of Christ and promised thenceforth to give one-tenth of his income to the church, a promise he has been fulfilling faithfully. But who is this pastor?

This Cecil Leslie Clifford is quite as dynamic in his field of endeavor as Fred Stone is in his. Ever since the story of how Fred Stone became a professed Christian gave Broadway a startling thrill, the Rev. Mr. Clifford has been fairly deluged with letters.

Dr. Clifford is a dynamo of energy, of faith and efficiency. He is not theatrical. Nothing like it. Nor yet does he seek in any way to emulate a Billy Snuday mode of combating hades. A Montana pioneer once hearing Roosevelt make a speech in the West, declared enthusiastically: "He's all right. He talks our language!" Cecil Leslie Clifford's big congregation and his fellow townsmen like him—he talks their language.

You find him in his modest study on the second floor of his parsonage. His desk looks like a telegraph editor's after a busy night. His college pennants are on the walls. A few framed diplomas, book shelves, a much-used typewriter—a working place.

He is medium-sized, sturdy-looking, smooth-shaved, hair brushed back from a well-formed forehead, nose straight, jaw decided. He neither smiles deprecatingly nor ingratiatingly. In fact, he is rather casual in his manner. He is a man devoid of pretense. He has the way of a man who believes he is right. You question him and find he surprisingly has combined modern efficiency with ecclesiastical sincerity, both merged with admirable candor, and neither impairing the quality of the other.

If you were to suggest to this minister that religion is slipping in its influence he would open his steady eyes wider and he would not censure you, but he would let you know he does not understand anything of the kind. He offers no hidebound doctrine, no churchly panacea for offsetting whatever fears there may be as to lessening church attendance, but he states principles and methods that he has devised and uses in his own working.

OPEN SOCIAL SERVICE MEETINGS MAY 2, 3, 4

"Community Conference" to Be Held Under Council Auspices in C. of C. Auditorium.

A "Community Conference," for exemplification of the work of the 94 social service agencies and charities belonging to the Community Council, will be held under the auspices of the council in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium May 2, 3 and 4. The public will be welcome at all times without knowing charge.

There will be a group of exhibits to portray the work of the individual agencies and of the following 10 departments of the council: Neighborhood work and recreation, delinquents and correction, publicity methods, Americanization, family treatment, mental hygiene, health, children, the handicapped, boarding homes for working women.

Social service workers here are of the opinion that the public is not sufficiently well informed of the work of the social agencies and plan the community conference as an annual event to enlighten the people. There will be discussions of pertinent questions at various sessions and luncheons during the conference. This will include discussion about the Community Fund, which recently raised more than $1,000,000, by public donations, as a central fund for the work of St. Louis and St. Louis County charities for 1923. It plans to make a similar campaign annually.

The various departments will have opportunity to tell what they are doing about "the three P's"—problems they encounter, progress they are making in solving these and programs for the future. The annual election of officers of the Community Council will be held at the session. J. Lionberger Davis, chairman of the board of the Security National Bank Savings and Trust Co., is the present president. There will be a popularity contest, to determine the most popular member of the Community Council by votes of the agencies.

Among out-of-town speakers expected are: Dr. Herman M. Adler, chief psychiatrist, State Department of Public Welfare, Springfield, Ill.; William Wachs, director, Community Fund, Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. W. W. Alexander, secretary, Commission on Race Relations, Y. M. C. A., Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Winnifred Salisbury, Western secretary, National Federation of Settlements, Chicago; Dr. George E. Haines, secretary, Commission on Race Relations, Federal Council of Churches, New York; James F. Jackson, superintendent, Associated Charities, Cleveland; Arthur Dunham, executive secretary, Social Service Exchange, Philadelphia; Edwin N. Clopper, associate director, Council of Social Agencies, Cincinnati, O., and Rev. Father Frederick Siedenburg, Loyola University, Chicago.

REGISTRATION OF BRITISH HORSESHOERS ADVOCATED

Equine Defense League Claims Ignorant Farriers Cause 75 Per Cent of Animals' Lameness.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 14.—The National Equine Defense League is advocating a law requiring the registration of all farriers. It is charged that 75 per cent of the lame horses in England are thus afflicted because they are poorly shod.

The farrier's craft is said to have made no progress in 2000 years. Many attempts have been made to devise a better shoe, especially one that would prevent horses from slipping on smooth or frosty roads, but the league's experts say that real security is in the horse's own feet. If properly shod, the frog of the foot should touch the ground and thus obviate slipping. Ignorant owners and farriers do not understand this, the league contends. They cut the frog down, and lameness results.

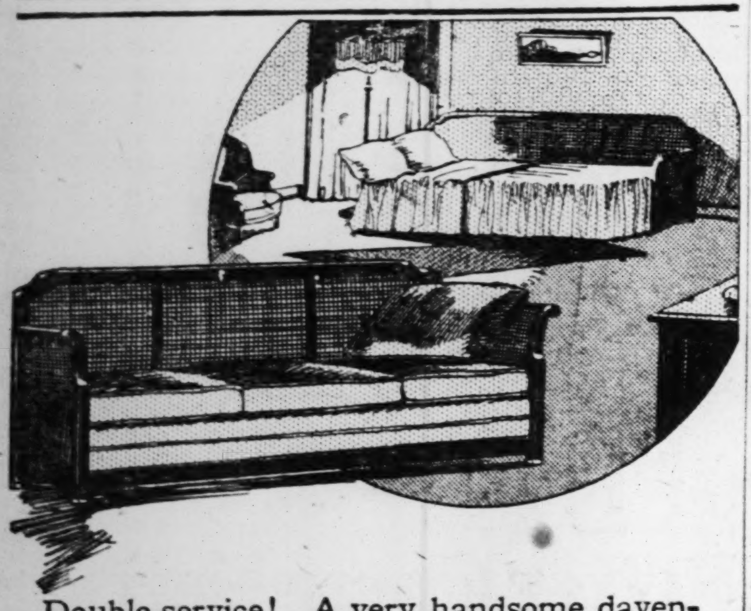
A horseshoeing competition held during the last week to encourage efficiency drew entries from 3000 London farriers. Each competitor was allowed 50 minutes in which to make two shoes, putting one of them on the foot. However, there was none of the picturesque village blacksmith in the scene, for the farriers worked at electric furnaces. Shields prevented sparks from flying and schoolboys were kept away by a burly Constable.

It is said that England has 68,000 horseshoers, but that only 3000 have passed efficiency examinations.

Dramatists at Movies on First Night

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 14.—The most brilliant "first night" of the season took place this week with the opening performance of "Ciboulette," by Marquis Robert de Flers and his collaborator, Francis de Croisset. Repeated calls of "authors! authors!" however, brought from the stage this announcement: "They are not here; they have gone to the movies."



Double service! A very handsome davenport by day, a restful bed at night. Ask to see a variety of Davenport Beds at any good furniture store.

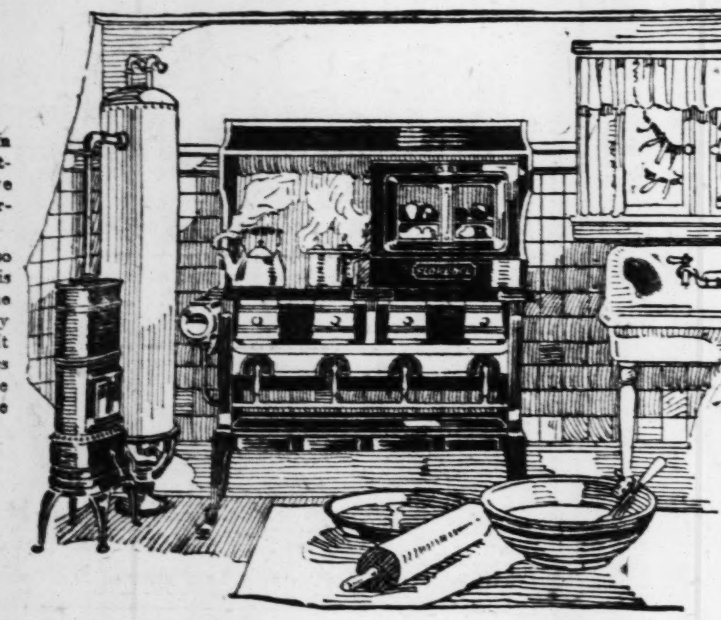
The Modern Kitchen

If you take pride in your kitchen you naturally wish to have every detail in harmony.

The Florence is so good-looking that it is an ornament to the most carefully equipped kitchen. It saves money and gives you more time for the outside things you love to do.



Are your fuel bills running too high?

THERE is a way to cook economically and at the same time quickly and in comfort. That way is by using the Florence Oil Cook Stove. You can remove any doubt on the matter by examining one of these modern ranges at a nearby hardware or furniture store.

Not only is kerosene cheap in comparison with other fuels, but it is always to be had. Furthermore, you use fuel in the Florence only when you are actually cooking.

Wickless, odorless, smokeless

To light a Florence you simply touch a match to the burner. You get a clean, powerful blue flame, intensely hot. There is no wick, for it is gas from the oil that you are burning.

The flame is close under the cooking and you can regulate the heat by the mere turn of a lever.

Every refinement

The Florence Oil Cook Stove is made lastingly beautiful with hard-baked enamel and nickel trimming. Each leg is fitted with the Florence Leveler, so the stove can be set level even if the floor is not. This sort of refinement is typical of the Florence.

Pat. applied for

You can convince yourself that you can save kitchen drudgery as well as fuel bills, by a few minutes spent in a store where Florenee Stoves are sold.

Judge Electric Washing Machines by these Standards

Make sure that the machine you buy comes up to these requirements:

1—It must wash clothes absolutely clean, without injury.

2—It must be easy and safe to operate.

3—It must have proven its dependability without a shadow of doubt.

4—It must be trouble-proof, low in upkeep, and give a lifetime of service.

If you will try the Thor at any Thor dealer's or see it in operation at the home of a friend, you will quickly see how Thor fulfills all of these requirements.

For seventeen years it has been doing its work well—ask any ten housewives which is the leading machine today—the majority will say Thor, for more Thors are in use than any other machine. Every fourth electric washing machine in use is a Thor!

3,000 years ago, Egyptian beauties got their velvety complexions from palm and olive oils. Today, beauties of all races use these same oils—given new effects by Science—in Palmolive Soap.

Your Complexion Decides

If you want to be considered beautiful, beautify your skin

This advice can easily and successfully be followed without trespassing upon either your time or your pocketbook. Ten minutes or less at bedtime is sufficient. The means and methods are simple.

These consist in thoroughly cleansing your face with a mild, soothing cleanser. This cleanser must be in the form of soap, such soap which is lotion-like and cosmetic in its action.

Palmolive is ideal

Palmolive is blended from palm and olive oils, used by Cleopatra in the days of ancient Egypt. These perfect natural cleansers kept her complexion so fresh and smooth that every passing year added to her beauty.

The scientific combination of these rare Oriental oils in Palmolive has produced the perfect facial soap. Millions of women have found its use the basis of complexion beauty, keeping the skin youthfully firm, fine-textured and soft.

How to use it

Gently massage the smooth, creamy Palmolive lather into the skin, so that every minute pore will be completely cleansed from dangerous, clogging accumulations of dirt, oil and perspiration. Rinse just as thoroughly and vigorously, for the stimulating action of warm water is very beneficial.

Now is the time to use cold cream, which will be immediately absorbed. Then to bed, with the assurance that you have induced real beauty sleep.

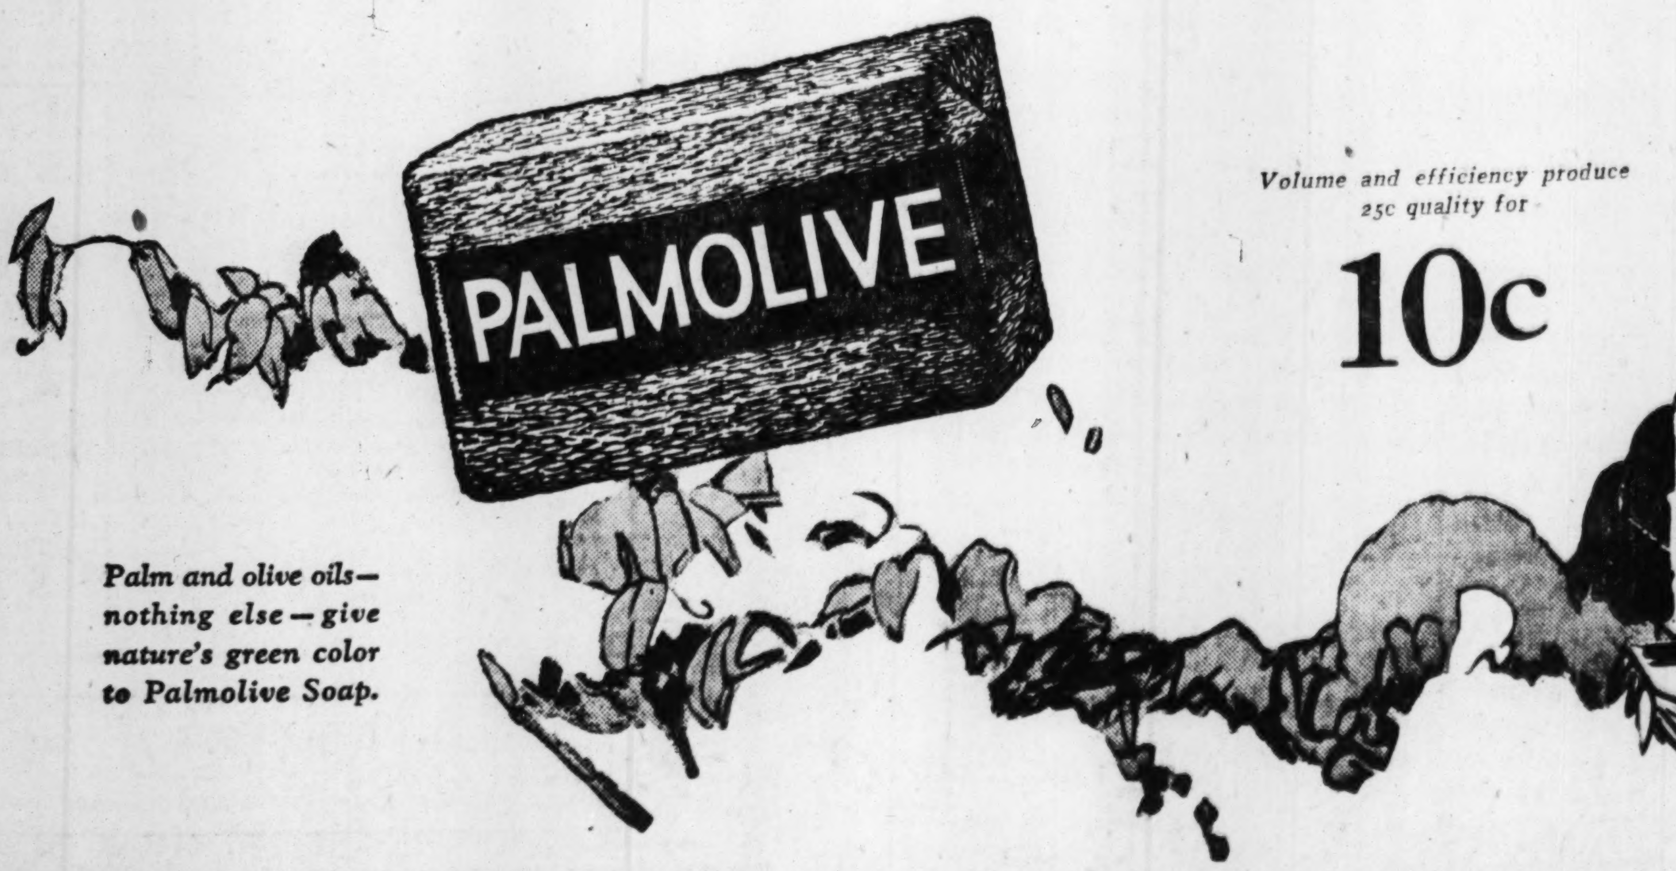
In the morning content yourself with a freshening rinse in cold water, then apply your favorite daytime cream, if you use one. Moderate application of powder is a protection against the effects of sun and wind.

Simple, isn't it? But most effective, as you will quickly prove. It's the sane, simple, sure but easy way to keep your schoolgirl complexion!

Perfection for 10c

The modest price of Palmolive is just as satisfactory as the quality. It is made possible through the world-wide popularity which keeps the Palmolive factories working day and night, and permits the importation of the costly ingredients from overseas in price-reducing quantities.

Thus Palmolive is an economical luxury and may be enjoyed by all for every toilet purpose.



Volume and efficiency produce 25c quality for

BARRACKS HORSE SHOW THIS YEAR MAY 11 TO 13

Program Includes Prize List of 37 Events—Entries Will Close May 1.

The second annual St. Louis Military and Civilian Horse Show will be held May 11, 12 and 13 at Jefferson Barracks, the prize list showing 37 events. The entries will close May 1 and anyone can enter a horse, subject to reservations by the Show Committee.

Cash prizes and silver tropthies, together with suitable ribbons, will be provided for the winners of most of the events this year, and the list indicates that the 1923 exhibition will surpass the successful one of last year.

Essentially Local Show.

This show will cater especially to local exhibitors, but will not exclude distant stables. The various civilian classes include the gaited classes, hunters, men's and women's saddle classes; the harness, roadster classes and pony event for boys and girls.

In the military classes will be contests in the handling of escort wagons, batteries of field artillery and machine guns going into action, officers' charges, events for wives or daughters of army officers, enlisted men's jumping class, saddle mules and stick and ball contest.

The cash prizes range from $5 to $125, the latter being for the feature event, the five-gaited stake. Three hundred dollars will be distributed among the winners of this class—$125 to first, $100 to second, $50 to third and $25 to fourth.

Ample Stable Room.

Ample stable and tack room space will be provided to all exhibitors without charge at the barracks.

Certificates of entry are being made by arrangement with Lieut. E. P. Earle, at Jefferson Barracks.

PILES CURED WITHOUT OPERATION

By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

IF YOU are a sufferer from these dreadful Piles or Hemorrhoids, I feel certain that you will be intensely interested in my large folder: "FREE ADVICE ON CURING PILES." Please write for it and read every word of it and understand as you read, that it was written by one who KNOWS Piles and Rectal Diseases—knows them from every angle because he has devoted the greater part of his life to their study and the means of effecting a permanent and a safe cure.

In this folder you will find the signed testimonials of only a FEW of the hundreds of persons I have successfully treated. Read what they say. They have ALL been Cured by my MILD MEDICAL METHOD—the very same method I want to use on YOU to Cure You, not simply to give you temporary relief.

Perhaps you have tried many Patent Medicines for the cure of this annoying disease; you may have tried so-called Home Treatments, salves and suppositories of doubtful ingredients. You may have gotten temporary relief from the use of these remedies, but I want to call your attention to the fact that these are merely remedies, not permanent CURES. If there was any true HOME treatment I would have it, for I thoroughly understand the treatment of Piles, but there is no home treatment. Piles must be treated scientifically and this can only be done through a personal visit.

Come and see me. Let us talk the matter over confidentially, face to face, just as you would go to your family physician for the treatment of an ailment in HIS line, but unless he is a Pile Specialist, as I am, he cannot help you as I can help you. I will make a careful and conscientious examination of your condition and for this there will be no charge whatever. I will tell you whether or not you can be cured and how long it will take me to cure you. I will fully explain the method I will employ and give you full particulars concerning YOUR case. Think of a Specialist giving you personal consultation at about the fee you would ordinarily pay a common doctor. When we talk it over together, I know you will tell me, as so many hundreds of others have done, to go ahead and fix you up completely, and I WILL DO IT IF YOUR CASE IS CURABLE.

Now don't doubt; don't hesitate. Decide right now that you will come to see me. I can then give you fuller details concerning your case than is possible for me to give in this advertisement. Then after you have had this free consultation with me, if you decide to go no further in the matter, you are perfectly at liberty to make your own choice. I will leave the decision to you entirely, but come anyway. The trip money is little and the results may be tremendous to you. Investigate, surely, but for the sake of preventing future suffering, do not hesitate too long.

SPIRITUALIST LECTURE BY DOYLE HERE MAY 3

Creator of "Sherlock Holmes" to Relate His Experiences With Other World.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle will relate his experiences and experiments with the spirit world in St. Louis on Thursday night, May 3, in the American Theater.

It will be his first appearance in St. Louis. During his American tour last year Sir Arthur went no further west than Chicago.

As has been told in telegraphic accounts of his lectures, Sir Conan asserts that he has communicated with his mother; his son, who was killed in the war, and with 11 friends who have passed into the beyond. "I believe," he has said, "that God gives consolation of this kind to the human race and that it is right to pass it on."

The present American tour of the creator of "Sherlock Holmes" began last week in New York. It will carry him to the Pacific Coast.

ANNUAL REWARD FOR VIRTUE

French Woman, In Will, Provides Bequest of 5,000 Francs.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 14.—Virtue is to be rewarded in Thonon-Les-Bairs, a town on Lake Geneva in the department Haute-Savoie. A clause in the will of Mme. Caroline Geoffrey, who died there last week, provides that 5000 francs shall be paid annually to the young man and young woman, 20 or 21 years of age, whom the Mayor shall deem most virtuous.

"My object," wrote Mme. Geoffroy, "is to join in marriage a plain venus and an ugly hercules, who will rear healthy, strong children, to the greater glory of France.

17,500 TREES PLANTED IN WINNEBAGO COUNTY, ILLINOIS

Banner Territory for U. S. in Which All Records Have Been Broken in First Half of April.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Tree planters during the first half of April have broken all records. The last half of the month promises even greater activity in "celebrating the centennial of Arbor Day in 1972, 50 years before it happens."

To Winnebago County, Ill., goes the honor of being the banner tree-planting county of the United States. It has made 17,500 tree planters members of the American Tree Association. G. J. Boehland gave that number of trees to the schools of the county, directing his operations from Rockford, Ill. In that State Arbor Day was April 13, and the tree planting reached its height on that day. With every tree went a membership certificate in the association. Lake County, Ill., schools, under the direction of T. Arthur Simpson, the superintendent, reported 100 per cent tree planting, a tree having been placed by every school.

The City Council of Cortland, N. Y., is the first municipal body to vote money for trees to the graduating class of a high school. Park Commissioner G. A. Adsit reports that some 3000 trees are to be planted in that city also.

At Dallas, Tex., 270 members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have become members of the tree association following the planting of that number of trees along a higway.

Next week is National Garden Week and Tuesday has been set aside as a day for additional tree planting. Organizations belonging to the General Federation of Womens' Clubs are bending every effort on making it a big week.

DR. LOEB TO ADDRESS ALUMNI

Missouri U. Head to Speak at St. Louis Association Banquet.

Dr. Isidor Loeb, acting president of the University of Missouri, will address members of the St. Louis Alumni Association at a banquet Thursday at 7 p. m. in Dorr & Zoeller's Tea Room at Waterman and DeBaliviere avenues. The occasion is the eighty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the State institution. There are about 400 alumni living in St. Louis.

Dr. Loeb, dean of the School of Business and Public Administration, was recently appointed to fill the position to be left vacant by President J. C. Jones' resignation, effective with the close of the present school year, April 25.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

Complete Re-distribution of Waves Expected by May 15

Each District Radio Inspector to Confer With Local Operators Before Official Assignment Is Made.

Interference, the bugaboo of both radio operators and fans, will be greatly reduced, if not eliminated, by May 15. On that date the assignment of about 35 exclusive wave lengths to some 30 localities, where Class B, the high-powered broadcasting stations, are situated, will go into effect. Wave lengths for Class A stations will also be assigned by districts by May 15, it is hoped.

Although Secretary Hoover is understood to have approved of the tentative allocation of the specific wave lengths to broadcasting stations, it is pointed out that each district radio inspector must now confer with the local operators and owners before the wave lengths are definitely assigned. For this reason the list is not yet made public.

All elements of the radio industry and public promised voluntary co-operation in an effort to eliminate interference, especially in broadcasting, and officials of the Department of Commerce point out that it is now literally "up to them" to do so.

The tentative distribution of broadcasting waves is based on the recommendations of the Second National Radio Conference and is the first step in the application of the wave band allocations made recently. It will mean that anyone in the United States with a good receiving set will soon be able to pick up each and every high-powered radio broadcasting station and most of his local stations without experiencing the interference which has been prevalent for many months.

Practically every "B" station will have a national exclusive wave length, between 300 and 345 or 375 and 545, except where there are two or more in a locality, but the waves are assigned to localities rather than stations and will have to be shared in some cities. In four instances, in New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and San Francisco, two or three additional wave lengths will also be assigned, but they will not be exclusive nationally. Those waves allocated on the Atlantic Coast will be repeated in the Pacific Coast cities. While not exclusive, these additional waves will aid in supplying additional facilities, and will scarcely cause interference as the stations will be about 3000 miles apart. The difference in time of 3 hours will also tend to eliminate any interference.

As soon as the nine radio inspectors can arrange with the Class B station owners in their districts, authority to broadcast will be issued on the specified wave lengths and stations will be required to use them only. Where two or more stations exist, a time schedule will be arranged. Until the assignments are made definitely, B stations will continue to operate on 400 meters, and C stations on 360, but by the middle of May it is hoped that all readjustments will be completed and the transfers made.

A few radio wave lengths in each district have been reserved because of anticipated interference with other lines of communication or held for new stations.

Class A Wave Lengths.

By May 15, the nine radio inspectors of the department will also un- waves to old Class A or new Class C stations in his district now operating on 360 meters. These wave lengths, between 222 and 300 meters, will not be exclusive nationally, but will be exclusive in each radio district, giving practically every station a selective wave. Along the borders of adjacent districts, inspectors plan to arrange the allocation of wave lengths so that no material interference will be created due to the assignment of waves in close proximity.

Class C stations now licensed on 360 meters will be permitted to continue the use of this wave length if they so desire, but they will not be permitted to vary the wave length.

A great amount of additional work will fall upon the shoulders of the radio inspectors and unless the receiving public, operators and other interests co-operate in staying on the wave lengths assigned, the work will be delayed and interference will not be overcome for some time to come.

No new licenses were issued to broadcasters during the past week, on account of the reallocation of wave lengths, but following the completion of the specific assignments of waves to the localities, it is understood that new applications will be considered.

SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE, BUT RADIO DOES IT

Words of Speaker Heard by Californian Before Some of Auditors in Schenectady.

Words spoken in a public hall in Schenectady reached a radio listener in San Francisco, Cal., 2550 Miles away, before they were heard by a listener 150 feet from the speaker.

Although the statement looks a bit fantastic, it is mathematically true. The apparent absurdity becomes reasonable when it is realized that the speed of sound is 1126 feet per second at a temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit and the speed of electrical vibrations or radio waves is 186,000 miles per second.

The listener in the back of the hall in Schenectady, 150 feet from the speaker, heard the words in 0.1332 seconds.

A microphone connected to the radio transmitting equipment of W G Y the General Electric Co. station, was two feet in front of the speaker and picked up the words in 0.002 seconds.

Time required to transform sound waves into electrical energy, 0.002 seconds.

Time required for electrical vibrations or waves to pass from Schenectady to San Francisco—0.0137 seconds.

Time required at receiving end to convert electrical vibrations into sound vibrations—0.001 seconds.

Total elapsed time from the speaker in Schenectady to the radio listener in San Francisco—0.0187 seconds.

Listeners in the hall heard words in 0.1332 seconds.

San Francisco man heard words 0.1145 seconds sooner.

CHICAGO CLEARS AIR FOR THE BROADCASTERS

Amateurs Will Not Be Permitted to Use Their Transmitters Between Hours of 7:30 and 10:30 P. M.

The following news item was published by the Chicago Daily News last Thursday:

The first step in the process of clearing up the air with its myriad of telegraph signals was taken today when Radio Inspector E. A. Beane announced that the Government is going to enforce silence among all amateurs between the hours of 7:30 and 10:30 o'clock. All new licenses issued will specify the hours when the amateur may operate his set. Notice will be sent to all other amateurs, and unless they comply with the order their licenses will be revoked.

Special amateur licenses, which heretofore had authorized transmission on 375 meters wave length, will soon be brought down to 220 meters. At present, Mr. Beane stated, the special amateur licensed stations had had their waves cut to 275 meters.

COMMERCIAL BROADCASTING NOW IN PROGRESS IN GERMANY

Subscribers Getting News From America Through the High Power Station at Nauen.

After four months of experimenting, the Express Service Co. (Eildienst Gesellschaft) Berlin, has begun a daily service of financial and commercial news broadcasting to subscribers in various parts of Germany, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Consul E. V. Richardson, Berlin. The company is financed by German capital and is purely a private undertaking. Having arranged with the National Government for the use of the radio station at Koenigswusterhausen on a limited basis for a definite period, a regular service of financial news is received from the United States, Switzerland, Sweden, and other countries, via the high-power station at Nauen, Germany.

This information is broadcast immediately by radio telephone to subscribers of the company. These number at present about 800 and are mostly banks and industrial institutions located in some 200 towns and cities. It is expected that New York quotations handled by this service will be available generally to subscribers within 10 minutes of their dispatch from New York.

Each subscriber rents from the company the necessary receiving apparatus, paying for the service itself an annual fee of 300,000 marks, and for the apparatus an annual rental of approximately 200,000 marks. There are 2½ hour schedules daily, beginning at 9:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. The Express Service Co. is represented in New York by a large American news agency.

HIGH SPEED TRANSMISSION AND RECEPTION FOR ARMY MESSAGES

Method Similar to That Used by Commercial Companies Will Probably Be Adopted.

Successful experiments in high-speed radio transmission between Army Message Center in the Munitions Building at Washington have just been completed. With new commercial apparatus, capable of sending mechanically from a perforated tape up to a speed of 100 words a minute and recording the messages in a saw-toothed inkline on a tape, reception at a speed of 65 words a minute has been achieved. After a little practice, Signal Corps experts say, their operators will be able to mechanically copy the received messages visually as well as by ear, and in this way a great saving of time will be made in clearing traffic.

The Signal Corps is planning to adopt high-speed systems such as commercial companies are using in transatlantic work for transcontinetal messages, and may order new mechanical radio equipment capable of operation at the rate of 200 words a minute.

The practical value lies in the fact that when static interferes and only a few clear hours a day are available, a great number of prepared high-speed messages can be sent through in a short time. The transcribing on message blanks can be done after reception by several operators.

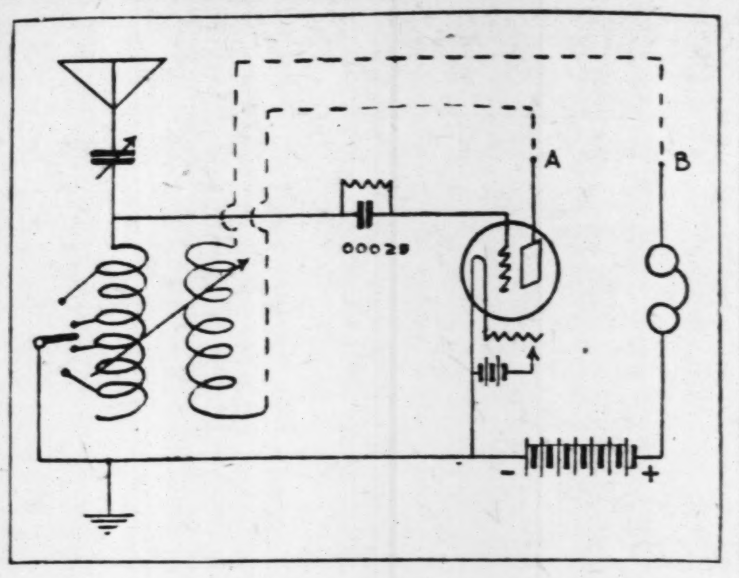
Elementary Combinations.

There are five fundamental combinations in making radio sets: (1) The single-circuit crystal type; (2) The two-circuit crystal type; (3) The single-circuit vacuum-tube type; (4) the two-circuit vacuum-tube type, and (5) the three-circuit vacuum-tube type.

Antennae Compared.

A receiving set connected to a short, low antenna will tune sharper than if connected to a long, high antenna, although the latter will give stronger signals. Tuning on a loop antenna is sharper than on an outdoor antenna, which is the case with all closed oscillatory circuits.

A Single-Circuit Regenerative Set



Simple, Inexpensive and Easily Constructed Set Which Makes a Desirable Portable Outfit for Camping or Home Use.

The above hookup shows how a "plain" vacuum tube set may be changed to a single-circuit regenerative. This adaption may easily be made when a loose-coupler or a vario-coupler is used for tuning. It is believed by many enthusiasts that this hookup is, without exception, the most simple and easily operated of any which have yet made their appearance. Simplicity and ease of tuning are its salient features. When used with a comparatively short antenna, the efficient single-circuit set is also highly selective.

The short aerial is mentioned because sharp tuning is exceedingly difficult, in fact, almost impossible to obtain, when a large antenna is used. The short type is limited in its wave-length range, but for many this is made up by the sharper tuning possible.

The change is made at "A" and "B," which, in the straight single-circuit set, are connected together, there being no rotor or secondary to the tuner in the set of the type just referred to. In the regenerative, however, the two leads from the rotor or secondary are connected at "A" and "B," as indicated by dotted lines in the diagram.

Tuning is accomplished by means of the tapped coil inductance and a variable condenser in the aerial circuit. The latter may be either of the 23 or 43 plate type. Regeneration is controlled by the relation of the ("tickler") rotor to the stator. (It may be added here that the "rotor" is the ball or movable part of a vario-coupler, while the "stator" is the outside or stationary winding.)

The set may be used with either a six-volt or a "peanut" tube. When the latter is used it makes an ideal portable set, although it will not work over any great distance in connection with a loop aerial.

Shielding is quite necessary for satisfactory results. This may easily be done, however, by placing tinfoil or metal sheeting directly behind and next to the panel on which the instruments are mounted. This is then connected to the "ground" binding post of the set and results in complete elimination of all capacity effect.

Shock Absorber for Crystal Sets

A simple jar absorber for the crystal detector set can be made by using a block of wood a foot square, placing four posts or large nails at the four corners and stretching rubber bands from one post to the other. These bands, which act as a swing, support the detector stand. The rubber should be only heavy enough to keep the stand from touching the block, so that there is plenty of flexibility to absorb all vibration. Use a flexible cord for connecting the detector into the circuit, so that it can be taken off the shock absorber and adjusted on the table. When a good adjustment is obtained, carefully replace the detector on the shock absorber, and it will stay in adjustment almost indefinitely unless, of course, if disturbed by the heavy signals or static.

For the Notebook.

A meter is equal to 39.37 inches.

A lightning arrester is not needed with an indoor aerial.

Use water piping, and not gas piping, for grouding the radio equipment.

Beware of the "radio bootleggers" who sell imitations of patented articles.

At least 50 per cent of the efficiency of a radio receiving set depends on the skill of the operator who is tuning it.

LECTURE FROM K S D BRINGS MOST INQUIRIES

Public Health Service Credits Post-Dispatch Station With Making New Records.

K S D, the Post-Dispatch radio broadcasting station which came to the attention of Government officials three months ago by inspiring a record number of replies to a Department of Agriculture inquiry, was credited with another notable achievement last week by the United States Public Health Service, Washington.

L. J. Heath, in charge of the broadcasting activities of the Health Service, informed the Post-Dispatch Bureau that the health lecture, "How to Reduce Your Weight," broadcast by K S D brought more letters than the service had ever received as a result of any one piece of broadcasting from a single station. The first mail from the Middle West after the lecture contained letters from K S D listeners in Missouri, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Ohio, and Iowa. The writers commended the service for giving health hints by radio and asked for more information on the subject matter of the weight reduction talk

The lecture was the first of a semiweekly series arranged by the Public Health Service in cooperation with K S D.

CUBA LOSES FREEDOM IN RADIO ACTIVITIES

Registration of All Sending and Receiving Sets Required Under Presidential Decree.

"Cuba Libre" may agin become a national slogan, if the restrictions placed on public radio operation interfere too much with the independence and pleasure of Cuban radio fans.

There have been no laws or regulations covering either the construction or operation of radio stations in Cuba, until a recent presidential decree divided non-governmental radio stations into five classes, assigning wave lengths and power maxima. All classes of stations——including private receiving sets—were required to be registered prior to March 16; operators' licenses are now necessary and inefficient apparatus is banned.

The decree which will serve until a pending radio law is enacted, provides for the classification of all except commercial and governmental sets as follows:

CLASS.	Wave length. (meters)	Max. Power (kilowatts)
A—Amateurs, including all receiving sets*	200	½
B—Educational institutions & experimenters	225-275	½
C—Colleges & State institutions	300-360	½
D—State institutions only	400	¼ to 1
E—Meteorological stations only	486	¼ to 1

*All receiving sets are rated Class A, regardless of type or size.

Rules for Registration.

All owners of stations within these five classes were ordered to register with the Director-General of Communication. After March 16, no station may be used unless the proper permit has been issued. The permits are for a term of one year in the case of classes A, B and C, and for five years in the other two classes. Applicants must pass an elementary examination, but it is not believed that this requirement will hamper the issuance of licenses. The Government may, under specified circumstances, require transmitting stations of any of the five classes to cease operation without claiming indemnity. Transmitting stations of all classes are subject to regulations of the International Radio Convention signed in London in 1912. The decree prohibits the transmitting of the international distress call "S. O. S."

Penalties are provided for the disclosure of any public or Government message intercepted by station. Only apparatus capable of transmitting a pure, continuous wave may be used, and the frequency must be constant so as to avoid oscillation.

RADIO ENGINEER FOR GOVERNMENT BUREAU OF STANDARDS APPONITED

Dr. August Hund of Berkeley, Cal., Will Join Radio Staff in Washington.

Dr. August Hund of Berkeley, Cal., has been appointed as electrical engineer in the radio section of the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce. Dr. Hund is a Doctor of Engineering, having graduated from the Technische Hochschule, Carlsruhe, in 1913. He served two years under Steinmetz in the General Electric Co., and is author of a technical book on frequency measurements. For the past several years he has been doing graduate work at the University of California.

Importance of Perfect Connections.

A comon source of trouble in homemade receiving sets is in the fixed condenser, where the terminal wires connect with the tinfoil. Care should be exercised in making these connections, or an open circuit will probably result.

Be Careful When Soldering.

When soldering connections it is well to use a piece of cardboard or sheet asbestos to prevent dropping solder from injuring insulation and the surface of panels.

500,000 MARKS ANNUAL RADIO TAX IN GERMANY

Cost in American Money Is Approximately 11c — American Broadcasting Picked Up and Relayed.

In Germany it is different. Radio fans, most of whom are bankers and business men, have to pay 500,000 marks annually for their radio broadcast service.

A financial and commercial news service has been arranged for broadcasting by the Express Service Co. of Berlin, according to information reaching Washington. This private company, financed by Germans, has just secured partial use of the Koenigswusterhausen radio station from the Government for broadcasting international news received via Nauen from the United States, Switzerland, Sweden and other countries.

The news is rebroadcasted over a radio phone circuit for about 800 subscribers, principally banks and industrial institutions, in about 200 cities. The company plans to handle New York quotations within 10 minutes after their dispatch from this country.

Subscribers rent their receiving sets from the Express company, paying an annual rental charge of 200,000 marks and an annual service charge of 300,000 marks. Two and-a-half-hour schedules are maintained every morning and evening.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE RADIO INDUSTRY

Purpose Will Be to Ascertain Whether or Not Anti-Trust Laws are Being Violated.

An investigation to ascertain whether or not there is a radio trust will soon be launched by the Federal Trade Commission in compliance with the requirements of a House resolution. This resolution directing the commission to investigate the status of the radio industry to ascertain whether anti-trust statutes were being violated, was received by the commission on Friday. It is understood that a conference of the officials and probably a preliminary investigation will be held before formal action of any sort is taken or witnesses are called. A complete survey of the radio patent field will be undertaken and contracts and agreements will be examined to learn if exclusive rights or special privileges for transmission or reception have been made. No announcement has as yet been made by the commission.

Wave Lengths.

Connecting coils or inductance in series increases the wave length, while connecting condensers in series decreases it.

Reduces Sound Waves.

Metal roofs, fire escapes and other masses of metal absorb some of the radio waves that otherwise would increase the current flowing in the antenna.

For the Notebook.

Always ground the set when leaving it unattended.

Never place the lead-in tube so that the rain or snow can fall directly into it. This will cause leakage.

A single wire antenna is just as good as a four-wire or cage antenna.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer

Q. Why are signals louder at night than in the daytime? M. S.

A. Scientists attribute the cause of this phenomenon to the ionfization of the atmosphere by the sun's rays.

Q. I have difficulty in tuning my set to stations which use wave lengths below 400. Would a series condenser help? S. R.

A. Yes.

Q. When is the capacity of a variable condenser maximum? H. LaG.

A. In the type which employs rotary movable plates, the capacity is greatest when the rotating plates are completely covered by the stationary plates. In the book type, which opens and closes, the capacity is greatest when the plates are closest together. With the roller type, in which the element rolls from one spool on to another, maximum capacity is obtained when all the flexible metallic strip is rolled on to the spool which serves as one plate of the condenser.

Q. My aerial consists of four 100-foot wires, spaced three feet apart and 15 feet above a gravel roof. Would I get better results by raising it 20 feet higher? I have been told that a single wire antenna would give better results and less noise than the four wires. Would you advise raising or making these suggested changes? J. T. C.

A. There is no doubt but what raising it would increase the efficiency of the aerial, and for receiving one wire is as good as several.

Q. What make of lightning arrester would you recommend as being the most safe? O. A. M.

A. The Post-Dispatch does not make any recommendations as to the "best" apparatus. Get one approved by fire underwriters.

Q. When using only 18 volts of a 22½ or 45-volt "B" battery, do the cells for the higher voltage taps feed current into the 18-volt cells, or will the 18-volt section become dead without affecting the life of the other part of the battery? D. W. T.

A. Only the part of the battery actually connected and supplying current to the set is consumed.

Q. Will adding more wire to my aerial (I now have 100 feet) increase the wave-length range of my receiving set? H. L. E.

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any difference which end of the wire of the grid variometer is connected to the plate? G. M.

A. No.

Q. (1) Are all variable condensers having the same number of plates of the same capacity? (2) Is there a definite ratio between the primary and secondary coils of a variometer; if so, what is it? (3) Will a radio-frequency transformer designed to receive wave lengths up to 550 meters, receive from stations transmitting on longer waves? T. W. C.

A. (1) No, the capacity of a condenser is dependent upon the effective area of its plates, and there seems to be no standard size for all condensers. (2) A variometer does not have a primary and secondary, there being a continuous metallic circuit through the stator and rotor. (3) No, not efficiently.

Q. How can a storage battery be kept from deteriorating when not in use? I do not intend to use the battery this summer. W. J. M.

A. Batteries should be kept charged and the plates covered with water at all times. Unless this is done, rapid deterioration takes place The battery may also be ruined in a short time by remaining idle in a discharged condition. The safest way is to leave the battery with a reliable, established battery dealer for "live storage." For a minimum charge they will keep it on a line-charge with other batteries through which is flowing continuously, a small current. In this way a battery may be kept almost indefinitely. They also see to it that water is supplied at frequent intervals.

Q. Will you please give more details regarding the lightning-rod type of aerial mentioned in your paper last Sunday? How much of it must be underground, and how long should the braided ribbon be? W. J. M.

A. It was not because a "lightning-rod" was used that one of our readers obtained such excellent results, but because it so happened that his particular type of lightning-rod was made up of a braided conductor. It is well known that high-frequency currents travel on the surface and, therefore, a braided copper cable is the most perfect means of obtaining a "grip" on the ether. It is unlikely that its being underground had anything to do with the results obtained. In all probability the same cable suspended high into the air and 100 feet long would have given even better results.

Q. (1) Is it unlawful to transmit on a wave length of 10 meters with a spark set which has a radius of two miles? (2) What is required of an amateur before the Government will issue a license? F. R.

A. (1) It is against the law to send signals of any kind into the air or to operate any kind of a transmitting set before formal application has been made to the radio inspector of the district in which the set is located. (2) The station must comply with certain requirements and the operator must be able to receive at a speed of 10 words (five letters to the word) per minute, as well as be familiar with laws regarding interference and the secrecy of messages.

Q. Is there any way to ascertain whether a tube is functioning properly? I have a detector and two-stage audio-frequency amplifier set. For several nights I have not been able to get distant stations at all and nearby ones only very faintly. All the tubes light up, yet the signals are barely audible. What is my difficulty? J. V.

A. There is no doubt but what recharging your "A" battery will end your trouble, as many times tubes will light, but not burn brightly enough to operate in the set. Bear in mind also, that as the summer season progresses less and less distance can be heard satisfactorily due to "bad atmospherics" and electrical storms with their accompanying static.

Q. Please tell me how to stop the "frying, sizzling noise" in my set. R. E.

A. It may be static, or it may be caused by weak "B" batteries.

Q. Where can "soft" tubes be obtained? F. L.

A. All detector tubes are "soft" and are obtainable from any radio dealer.

Q. Is it possible to get rid of the whistling sounds in the Flewelling set? If so, how? E. H. K.

A. Try placing a sheet of metal or tinfoil directly behind, and next to the front panel of the set. Connect this "shield" to one of the terminals of the "A" battery. In a number of cases, this has entirely eliminated the "howl."

FOURTH FIRESTONE CONTEST ANNOUNCED

"The Influence of Highway Transport Upon the Religious Life of My Community," has been assigned by the Highway Education Board as the subject for essays to be written by high school students of the nation in competition for the H. S. Firestone four years' university scholarship, according to W. A. Sabine, manager of the Firestone branch in St. Louis. This is to be teh fourth successive year that high school students have competed by writing good roads essays to win the largest single educational award offered in the country.

Announcement of the fourth contest is being made to superintendents of schools, high school principals and students as rapidly as possible. All available literature is being listed and tabulated for the information of prospective contestants. All that is necessary for the contestants is to comply with the simple rules of essay writing in preparing a 700-word essay.

The contest is known to thousands of students as the "annual good roads essay contest." It was inaugurated in 1920 and has provided college education for one boy and two girl students. The scholarship is valued at approximately $4000, and is intended to provide tuition, room, board, books and special fees.

Additional prizes are being offered in several states. The Kiwanis Clubs of Virginia offer a prize of $100 for the best essay from that State and the Bureau of Extension of the University of Virginia offers $25 as a second prize. The University of North Dakota scholarship offered by Jamestown College last year will be repeated this year for prize-winning essays, it is reported. Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, Arkansas, Oklahoma and other States are making similar offers.

USED CARS MENACE TO AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS

In spite of the fact more than 2,500,000 cars were sold during 1922—the record-breaking year of the industry—and in spite of the fact that 3,000,000 or more are to be built during 1923, the chaotic conditions that exist in the manufacturing and selling is deplorable, says C. E. Eads, president Cole-Eads Motor Co., Cole distributer.

"The question is often asked—'What is the matter with the automobile business?' and invariably the reply comes back, 'The used car,' which is another way of saying the way automobiles are merchandised is very inefficient and uneconomical. The greatest problem that is now faced by both the manufacturer and the dealer is the readjusting of their merchandising policies so as to eliminate the vicious trading practice that has crept into their business.

"The Cole Motor Car Co. operating under the Cole merchandising plan is very successful in the solution of this selling problem for its dealers," says Eads. "The Cole plan divorces the used car business from the new car business, and thereby they eliminate from their dealers' overhead more than 60 per cent of the cost of operation. This reduced overhead operating expense permits Cole dealers to accept smaller factory discounts and still operate profitably. The difference in operating costs will average about 20 per cent of the list price of the car being sold.

N. A. D. A. CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN CHICAGO

Four hundred automobile trade association secretaries and managers are expected to attend the first national conference in Chicago, July 23 and 24. The definite dates for the conference were announced today by the National Automobile Dealers' Association, which is arranging the conference.

KISSEL

The Custom Built Car

Custom-Built at a Quantity Price

When the model "Fifty-five" Phaeton was announced at $1485, the Kissel Motor Car company achieved an end for which it has been striving for seventeen years—to produce a truly custom-built car at a price comparing favorably with that of many cars far less finely made.

To preserve Kissel standards of custom-building has been the least difficult feature of this task—for Kissel designers, engineers and craftsmen know no other standards.

But such a price for such a car could be achieved only by a company of long experience, exceptionally situated as regards manufacturing facilities, and able to produce on a large scale a car that until now has been built only for the few.

The Kissel of 1923 retains all the exclusive features of former models; and is driven by the new Kissel motor, capable of acceleration from 5 to 60 miles an hour in 30 seconds, without the usual vibration.

Judge the car from a demonstration.

SPECIAL-SIX TOURING $1275

Wherever motor cars are discussed, and that's nearly everywhere, somebody is sure to remark—"That Studebaker Special-Six is a regular automobile."

The Studebaker Special-Six has been on the market for four years. Each year has seen added to it such refinements and improvements as time has made possible. Today there are more than one hundred and twenty-five thousand in everyday service and we don't believe there's a dissatisfied owner.

The name was selected because comparative tests against all kinds of cars made this car stand out as something special and apart from the ordinary run of automobiles. It requires special merit to warrant calling any car a special—and if the value isn't special the car quickly fades away.

Count the "Special-Sixes" that have appeared since the arrival of the Studebaker Special-Six. That's the proof of the value of the original Special-Six.

One-piece, rain-proof windshield with automatic windshield cleaner and glare-proof visor. Quick-action cowl ventilator of cast aluminum. Rear-view mirror. Combination stop-and-tail light, cowl lights and tonneau lamp with long extension cord. Running board step pads and aluminum kick plates. Walnut steering wheel with new type of spark and throttle control. Eight-day clock. Thief-proof transmission lock.

Use this to Stop Neuritis Pain

No matter where your pain is located—in the back, shoulders, arms, legs or loins—you can get relief without taking anything to deaden the nerves.

Most people do not know that sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, bad teeth, colds and other ailments often end up in neuritis or nerve inflammation.

The quickest way to reach the diseased nerves is by absorption. That's where Tysmol gets in its work. Tysmol is applied over the spot where you feel the pain, and is taken up through the pores of the skin. It soothes and heals the inflamed nerves, helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Tysmol contains no dope—no poison. Absolutely harmless.

A Woman's Power and Fascination—

A Secret That Every Woman Wants to Know About.

A woman's power and fascination is increased ten-fold, no matter what her age—when she has glowing, youthful beauty, a sparkling spirit, a keen alert mind, graceful strength, and supreme buoyant health. Everyone admires such a woman. It is a tonic just to be near her.

How Do You Compare?

Have you got the beauty, the love, the health, strength and happiness that you long for? Did you have them once, but lost them as age, worries and cares made their mark? Then take stock of yourself! Is your appetite feeble and do you suffer with indigestion? Are your nights restless and do you get up in the mornings all tired-out? Are you listless—devoid of ambition—do you have a feeling of "what's the use" as you grind through the long weary day? Do your feet feel heavy and tired and does 15 minutes of work make you seek rest, trembling, weak and nervous? Do you feel like you want to scream sometimes when things get on your nerves?

Your mirror will tell you the rest. Have those cheeks lost the tinted bloom of youth? Have your eyes lost their old-time sparkle? Has your once beautiful hair become thin, flat and lifeless? Then—

Take Cadomene—The Tonic Supreme!

Cadomene is not just an ordinary stimulant like many so-called tonics. Cadomene goes to the very source of your trouble and builds you up in a permanent way. By aiding nutrition and by building up the blood until it is vibrant, rich and red, Cadomene aids in the complete revitalization of every nerve, cell and tissue of the entire body. Just a week or two after you start taking Cadomene you should notice the wonderful change for the better. You should notice the sparkle returning to your eyes; the healthy bloom to your cheeks; the sunshine and life in your hair. You should notice that you don't tire so quickly; that your work seems lots easier than it did; that people and noises don't get on your nerves any more; that you eat better; sleep better; feel better. Everyone will be amazed at the remarkable change. Within two weeks they will remark how much better you are looking. And that's just the start. For when those nerves, those tissues, those cells are completely revitalized and made healthy, active and strong—then you'll know what life was meant to be—what beauty, health and happiness really mean! Cadomene Tablets are sold and highly recommended by all good druggists—everywhere.

For sale by Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores and all druggists.

from Radiator to Rear Axle —a car of proven construction

Built throughout from specialized units of established merit—Columbia Six delivers an unfailing service at a great saving. Never before has such a car been offered at less than $1000.

You are quickly attracted to these fine cars by their distinctive beauty; the graceful effect and fine finish of their roomy, low-hung bodies. But it is when you begin to study the details of the pedigreed chassis that you get a real idea of the value there is in the Columbia Six.

The 50 horse power Red Seal Continental Motor gives you more power than you will ever need; rapid acceleration; speed and plenty of it.

A finger touch control makes it delightfully easy to handle and the light, well-balanced weight insures unusual economy of gas, oil and tires. And at the prices listed below there is no other value like the Columbia.

CLOSED CAR PRODUCTION RAPIDLY INCREASING

Among the marked tendencies in the automobile industry of the past five year has been the steady growth of the closed car. In 1916 only slightly more than 1 per cent of all the cars manufactured in the country were closed. This percentage has steadily risen until today more than 25 per cent of all cars manufactured are closed models.

R. C. Frampton, president Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson and Essex distributer, has just received figures in regard to closed car production. The Hudson Motor Car Co., which manufactures both Hudson and Essex cars, has for the past two years, it is claimed, led all manufacturers in the production of closed models. Their output is now 75 per cent closed cars.

Early in 1922 the Hudson Co. announced the Hudson and the Essex coach models. The coach was the embodiment of two ideas; first, a closed car of sound value; second, a closed car at not greatly more than the price of the open model.

The first of these was obtained by putting a coach body on the regular Hudson and Essex chassis. The second was obtained by building a closed body substantial and serviceable in every respect, but omitting many of the unnecessary extras which tended to make closed bodies as a whole so expensive.

AUTO CLUB NOW HAS OVER 26,700 MEMBEPS

In the first quarter of 1923 the gain in membership of the Automobile Club of Missouri was so great as to make an automobile club as large as this club was in 1920 at the same period.

With the Chicago club only reporting 26,000 paid members at the end of 1922, it is more than likely that the Automobile Club of Missouri has now reached a size which makes it the second largest automobile club in the world.

To appreciate the enormity of its membership, which is more than 26,700, says William King, manager of the club, it is only necessary to remind that five years ago there were not this number of automobiles in the city of St. Louis.

Preparations are being made at this time for the greatest touring season that the club has ever experienced, and with its forces all marshaled to deliver to members as well as visitor tourists, it confidently predicts that this year its several bureaus in the State will no doubt handle about 100,000 tourists, furnishing them with road information, not only covering Missouri, but on through routes, ending in Michigan, Canada, the Atlantic Coast or the Pacific Coast.

RAY-HARROUN JOINS LINCOLN PRODUCTS CO.

The Lincoln Products Co. of Chicago—manufacturers of Lincoln Shock Absorbers—has announced the appointment of Ray Harroun as manager of their factory equipment division with headquarters at Detroit, Mich.

Harroun is widely known in the automotive industry both as an engineer and as a former racing driver. Back in 1911 he leaped into fame by winning the Indianapolis Sweepstakes with his Marmon "Wasp."

His victory was the more notable because he drove the entire race alone; the first time that one man had triumphed in this great classic, without a mechanic on the seat beside him.

It is interesting to note that Tommy Milton has declared his intention of entering the Indianapolis event this year in a single-seated Miller, and that other drivers have intimated they will follow the example set by Harroun 12 years ago.

The Marmon "Wasp," which Harroun piloted, was also the first racing car to be equipped with shock absorbers, two sets being used.

"I have always been interested in shock absorber equipment," said Mr. Harroun in an interview, "and I have always felt that it has been neglected for touring use. Everything else has been done to make driving comfortable, but shock absorbers, essential to smooth, easy travel, have been too often overlooked.

DEALERS DISCUSS PLANS AT VELIE FACTORY

Automobile dealers from all over the United States gathered at Moline, Ill., this month in what might be termed a national conference on motoring opinion. Men from the Far West compared their analyses of that district's "motor mind" with representatives from the North, South and East. Out of their discussions came a definite picture of the 1923 motor market in the United States.

"Public preference differs but little in various localities," says H. S. Lord, sales director of the Velle Motors Corporation, which arranged the convention of its representatives. "The increasing demand for a moderate-priced six-cylinder car is noted everywhere. Many persons who went into the higher priced class several years ago are returning to the six, having discovered that it is now possible to obtain everything desired in the way of performance, comfort and appearance with the added advantage of unusual economy, in a six-cylinder car.

OLDS PRICES HAVE NOT BEEN INCREASED

G. H. Peasley, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, Mich., last week denied reports now in circulation that any increase in prices of Oldsmobile cars had been made.

During the last few days, Mrs. Peasley says, unfounded rumors have been printed in many sections of the country, stating that a price increase had been made in the four and eight cylinder open models. This, he says, is an absolute untruth and no such announcement has been sponsored by his company.

DRAGGING AUTOMOBILE BRAKES START FIRES

Even though a brake-lining is made of asbestos, which is virtually incombustible, a dragging brake is fully capable of setting fire to rear wheels, says J. W. Perry, general manager of the automobile department of Johns-Manville, Inc., in urging upon automobile drivers the importance of periodic examinations of brakes and their mechanisms.

"If brakes are permitted to drag," said Mr. Perry, "the brake-lining and brake drums will be worn down unnecessarily. If the drag is pronounced, sufficient frictional heat may be generated when the car is on the road to burn the paint off the brake drums, and surrounding parts and in certain cases, we have found, actually starting a fire. Trying out the brakes, with the rear wheels jacked up, will reveal such dragging, and will also show whether the right and left wheel brakes are operating alike.

"Automobile owners are taking a chance if they fail to see that their brakes are well inspected every 500 miles or 30 days, depending on the use to which the car is put."

346,383 AUTOMOBILES PRODUCED IN MARCH

Sets New Record in History of Business, 867,628 Output First Quarter.

During March, 346,383 motor cars and motor trucks were manufactured. This is the largest month's production in the history of the business as it exceeds by 57,000 the record of 289,011 made in June, 1922.

Reports of shipments made to the directors' meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce yesterday also showed that the production for the first three months of this year, reaching 867,628, is more than double the same period in 1922.

3,000,000 Probable Limit.

This confirms the belief that 1923 will be a 3,000,000 year. It is not expected, however, that production will go ahead as rapidly during the remainder of the year. It is believed that 3,000,000 is an outside figure for the 1923 output and this will depend on favorable conditions of the materials market. Production facilities for the manufacture of closed bodies are inadequate to the demand and this is likely to prove a limiting factor.

Ford.

Retail deliveries of Ford cars and trucks for the month of March reached the record-breaking total of 179,764, was announced by the Ford Motor Co.

This marks the greatest selling month in the history of the company. The March sales record exceeds by 50,000 the highest previous month, which was June, 1922, when 129,338 cars and trucks were sold at retail and tops by 50 per cent the February sales of 116,080.

Further, March completed a whole year in which sales exceeded 100,000 every month and which since April 1, 1922, brought into use in the United States alone 1,429,979 Ford cars and trucks.

Oldsmobile.

While the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, Mich., has been producing passenger cars for nearly 26 years, last month was the biggest March the company has ever had in point of passenger car shipments.

A comparison of the figures of January, February and March of this year with those of last show that production is several hundred per cent above that of a year ago.

Jordan.

Nearly 10 times as many Jordans were shipped in the first quarter of this year as were shipped the same period last year.

Jordan has twice as many dealers selling the line as this company had a year ago, and the production for the year of 1923 will give this company a position among the top notchers in the industry.

The Jordan Playboy and Blue Boy have never yet been produced in sufficient quantity to meet the demand.

Cleveland.

"Cleveland Six sales have always been good, year after year, but never as big as they are going to be this year, if present sales can be used as a criterion," says Sid Black, vice president of the Cleveland Automobile Co.

"Factory production records indicate that February sales were 40 per cent greater than were recorded for the same month last year. March shows a large gain. It was fully anticipated that Cleveland Six sales would show a marked advance, but the way orders are now being received surpasses the factory's fondest expectations."

Peerless.

New Peerless sales records, which began to be made shortly after the acquisition of the Peerless Motor Car Co. by R. H. Collins and his associates 15 months ago, are continuing to be set up, due to the great popularity of the new line of nine models.

First quarter business in 1922, under Mr. Collins' guidance, showed a substantial increase over that of 1921, the last year under the previous Peerless management.

Notwithstanding this increase of last year, the first three months of 1923 reveal that more than twice as many new Peerless cars were sold in January, February and March as during the same months in 1922.

Oakland.

Reports from all sections of the country to the Oakland Motor Car Co. indicate an "oversold" condition. There has been a large increase in sales over the same period last year.

Officials of the company attribute this large increase in sales to the fact that the "mileage basis" plan is in line with the thoughts of motorists in wanting to know just how many trouble-free miles they may expect of a car before purchasing it and to the fact that records on hand have shown that the figures in the "mileage basis" plan are conservative.

Hupmobile.

Sales of Hupmobiles the country over for the first three months of 1923 were nearly double those for the best previous first quarter; materially exceeded those for the record three months' business of April, May and June, 1922; and March sales were the greatest of any single month in the 15 years of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation's history.

Hupmobile sales for the first quarter of 1923 totaled 12,034 cars of the 40,000 scheduled to be produced in 1923, compared with 6399 for the first three months of 1922, and 11,290 for April, May and June, 1922. March sales were 5024, eclipsing the former record of June, 1922, by more than 1000 cars. Export sales for the first quarter were the greatest since the latter part of 1920, the best export period in Hupp's history.

Cadillac.

Sales of Cadillac cars during the week ending March 24 surpassed sales for any preceding week since the introduction of the Type 61, according to Jay W. Dunivan, Cadillac manager of distribution.

Shipments from the factory also largely surpassed shipments for any previous week during the same period. Mr. Dunivan's statement appears simultaneously with an announcement from the Cadillac factory that production for the first quarter of 1923 was exceeding by a large margin output for any previous first quarter in the history of the company.

Dort.

Production figures just received from the Dort Motor Car Co. of Flint by the Wilson Motor Car Co., local distributer, for the month of March show a substantial increase over the preceding month of February.

A steady increase in the shipment of cars, which has been maintained month by month during the present fiscal year of the company, indicates that the popularity of the six has been firmly established. Orders on hand for delivery in April evidence a strong demand for cars from every section of the country.

Federal.

Some indication of the increased demand for motor trucks and the present country-wide dearth of adequate transportation facilities is seen in the announcement by M. L. Pulcher, vice president and general manager of the Federal Motor Truck Co., that March was the second biggest month in the history of the Federal company and the occasion of the largest single truck shipment ever cleared from Detroit.

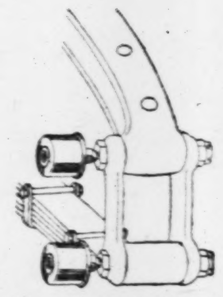
Hidden Values Keep Essex Young in Long Service

After fifty, sixty and seventy thousand miles, Essex cars keep the dash and action of new cars. They stay tight and quiet. They keep their economy of operation and maintenance.

Service like that is not accidental. It results from hidden values which are fully revealed only in long hard service. Attention to detail extends to parts you never see. Finest roller bearings are used where commonly plain bushings are used. For the weight carried the Essex frame is the sturdiest built, save one.

Qualities like these make Essex cost less in the long run than the lowest priced cars, because of the difference in repair, maintenance and replacement costs.



Chassis oil cups are lubricated with an oil-can—clean, simple, effective. Large size, require infrequent attention. Patented and exclusive to Hudson-Essex. Also compare shackle adjustment with average type, which require insertion of metal washers or shims. Only costly cars share this Essex feature.

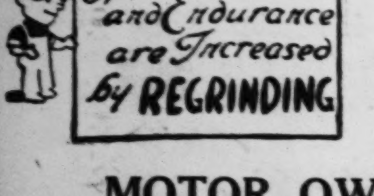
Cylinder Grinding Efficiency



Speed, Power and Endurance are Increased by REGRINDING

LEADING Engineers all over the country, as well as in Europe, find that a motor with the bores finished by grinding gives the greatest efficiency. They also have proven that this efficiency lasts longer than when the bores are finished by any other method.

Over 90 per cent of all the "Pleasure and Commercial Car Manufacturers" grind their cylinders, for they realize it is not only a QUALITY proposition, but one of "Economy."

MOTOR OWNERS ARE INSISTING ON CYLINDERS FINISHED BY GRINDING

Among the Automobile owners themselves, perhaps nothing proves their recognition of the value of grinding more than the fact that they have spent over twenty-five million dollars in the thirteen hundred cylinder-grinding shops during 1922.

Experience has proven to the drivers of these cars, as well as all others who have studied the proposition, that only by regrinding the bores, fitting new oversize pistons and rings, can you eliminate those inevitable motor troubles—lack of power, waste of gas and oil, excessive smoking and foul spark plugs, all of which are eventually bound to come, due to a natural wear after the machine has been driven 15,000 to 20,000 miles.

TATE INTRODUCES NEW DODGE DEMONSTRATOR

A special Dodge Brothers' car used for demonstrating to new and prospective owners the proper way to drive and handle a car in traffic has been introduced by the Tate Motor Co., Inc., Dodge distributers. The car is equipped with two steering wheels, two sets of clutch and foot brake pedals, two foot accelerators and one shifting lever for gear changes.

With this equipment, says Frank R. Tate, president of the Tate Motor Co., Inc., a new owner can be safely taught to drive the car in about one-third of the usual time it would take with an ordinary car, and all fear and doubt of his ability to learn to drive is removed on the first lesson.

"There are thousands of people who desire to buy a motor car, but the fear of their inability to learn to operate it has kept them from purchasing a car of their own.

"In instructing the beginner, the teacher has the car in his control at all times and in all emergencies, although he allows the beginner, according to their aptitude and ability, to immediately do all of the driving from almost the very start.

"The knowledge that the car is under the control of an expert instructor eliminates the fear that always accompanies a beginner, which makes the process of teaching much simpler and easier. With a car thus equipped there is no possibility of a beginner losing his head and causing any damage to the car or to other drivers on the street."

"They can be given the thrill and experience of driving downtown in the heaviest traffic on their first lesson, with absolute safety, which is the quickest way of inspiring confidence in their ability to handle a car under these trying conditions, and is a great stimulant to their courage and confidence.

"We are almost daily told by prospects that if they were sure they could learn to operate a car themselves that they would buy one immediately, so this method is employed to prove to them that they can learn to drive a car and that it is really not as intricate or difficult as they imagine.

"The idea of this equipment was originated by the Dodge Brothers' dealer in Brooklyn, N. Y., who has same covered by a series of patents."

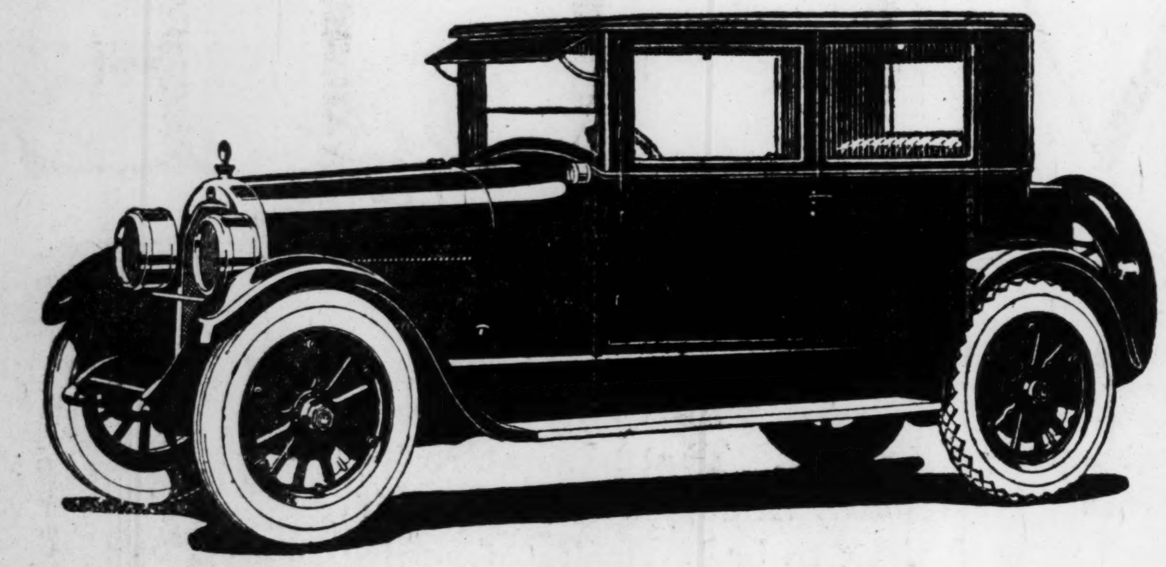
been established in Italy.



"AS surely as a magnet attracts steel," we said in these announcements many months ago, "a really fine motor car attracts an eager market in America."

Your most casual observation must have revealed to you how thoroughly this conviction has been verified by the augmented reputation of Peerless since that time.

What has happened is that Peerless has imposed upon the public consciousness a new conception of the term, 'really fine motor car.'

Building upon the fine practices which have always prevailed in Peerless manufacture, it has demonstrated improvement and advancement in points of performance where improvement and advancement were hardly expected.

In a score of ways, it has shown how far it excels, registering a superiority distinct, definite and discernible.

It is not as though this were true of the Peerless merely in a broad and general sense.

It is true of the individual Peerless, in the hands of the individual owner, because the principals of this business consider the single owner's satisfaction and friendship as things to be attained and held above all else.

Peerless today is widely recognized as a truly great eight-cylinder car—a recognition which is constantly swelling in volume—because the end for which we work is that each and every Peerless we build shall measure up to true greatness.

MAXWELL ADOPTS FLAT RATE ON REPAIRING

The "flat rate guaranted system" for repairs on Maxwell automobiles has been announced by the Ward Motor Co., Maxwell distributer in St. Louis. S. B. Ward, president of the company, states that the system was decided upon after a year's investigation to determine the exact time required to perform every repair.

"The Ward Motor Co. pays its mechanics for each operation on the flat rate schedule. If more than the scheduled time is occupied, the mechanic bears the loss. If less than this time is occupied, the mechanic gains. However, if the job is not done satisfactorily, as shown by an inspection or by the owner's complaint, the mechanic must do the work over on his own time."

E. R. Rumford, director of service of the Ward Co., the official with whom the owner comes in contact, gives the owner a typewritten estimate of the cost when the car is left. All repair work is on a cash basis.

The Maxwell Motor Co. has also provided an elaborate "Sales Manual," a small, loose-leaf, limp-leather booklet, containing a complete array of data of use in selling the Maxwell.

NEW FEATURE FOUND IN WESTCOTT CLOSURE

Elimination of the rumbling sound which is heard in some closed automobiles is made in the Westcott closure, a closed model recently added to the Westcott line.

This rumble gets on a passenger's nerves when his attention is fixed upon it," says H. L. Schnure, president of the Velie Automobile Co., local Westcott distributer. Mr. Schnure states that the noise appears sometimes in some of the most carefully constructed closed cars.

One theory has been advanced that the sounding-board effect of the roof amplifies even slight noises arising in the chassis which are transmitted to the roof through the heavy supporting center pillars. The Westcott closure has no such center pillars and to this the absence of the rumbling sound is attributed by many engineers.

NEW BATTERY SOLUTION INTRODUCED HERE

A new battery solution which, it is claimed, will charge run-down batteries instantly has been introduced in St. Louis by the Lightning Company of St. Paul, who have opened a branch office at 2714 Locust street.

The solution, known as "Lightning," is substituted for the acid solution, which is poured out. C. A. Griesedieck, who is in charge of the local branch, describes the new solution as a milder electrolyte made of chemicals dissolved in distilled water which utilize the sulphation. It is also claimed that the solution will prevent overcharging, will not freeze and will neither damage lead or rubber.

Running a Battery Dry

Your automobile battery runs dry because the water above the plates evaporates. When the plates are exposed, the damage begins.

The water space above the plates in the GENERAL Battery is larger than usual. This added space is designed for the owner who forgets to put water in the battery regularly.

This acts as a "shock absorber" against one of the most common forms of Battery abuse, and gives the GENERAL Battery longer life.

It will pay you to get acquainted with the GENERAL Battery service station in your neighborhood for service on any make of battery.

After All It's the Motor!

That's the big thing. That's what really counts. Particularly in closed cars. For, if a motor is subject to bad attacks of acute vibration, one is robbed of all the pleasure of driving.

What a delightful difference with the Rickenbacker Six! The unique tandem flywheel eliminates all vibration. Smooth! Why it's the sweetest and quietest car on wheels.

DODGE BROTHERS
TYPE-A SEDAN

Its dependability is taken for granted—its economy of operation is proverbial.

Comment, as a rule, is directed to the richness of its fittings, and the dignified beauty of its coach work.

This beauty is not a superficial thing. It goes much deeper than mere external adornments.

Like all creations of genuine excellence, it emanates from the honest value which Dodge Brothers have built into the car.

You sense it in the depth and comfort of the seats—richly upholstered in genuine mohair velvet. It makes itself known the instant you close the doors—which snap solidly shut, like the doors of a safe. It emanates unmistakably from every line and curve of the sturdy body.

It becomes most evident when you discover that in smart company, where a car of less distinction would appear at its worst, Dodge Brothers Type-A Sedan appears at its best.

MARCH BIGGEST MONTH IN WILLARD'S HISTORY

March proved the biggest month in point of production that the Willard Storage Battery Co. of Cleveland has ever had, according to an announcement just made by R. C. Norberg, vice president and general manager of the company.

"We had hardly expected to attain the volume of production now reached until later in the year," said Mr. Norberg, "but the growing popularity of radio and the increase of closed car sales permitting motoring in any kind of weather has increased our sales to an enormous extent and production must necessarily keep pace with the increased sales.

AUTOCAR COMPANY OPEN NEW SERVICE STATION

The formal opening of the new home of the Autocar Sales and Service Co. of Missouri, a direct factory branch of the Autocar Co., Ardmore, Pa., will be held this week in the large one-story building recently erected at the southeast corner of Locust street and Leffingwell avenues.

The new building which will be used for the sale and servicing of Autocar trucks on Locust street and contains approximately 21,000 square feet of floor space on one floor.

The building is of brick construction with a coping of Indiana limestone.

The salesroom is located at the northwest corner of the building, adjacent to it on the Locust street side is the accounting department, while the parts department is located at the east end of the building.

The entrance to the offices, salesrooms, accounting and parts department is in the center of the building on Locust street

Two entrances to the shop are provided on the Leffingwell avenue side. A special room has been built near the entrance to the shop, where a chassis may have all the oil and dirt removed from it by special cleaning devices before it reaches the overhauling department.

The new building and ground represents an investment of approximately $150,000 and is owned by the Autocar factory. The factory now conducts 39 similar branches throughout the United States.

J. H. Mack, manager of the local branch, arranged for the purchase of the ground and construction of the new building.

George Weber, president of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., Hupmobile distributers, and F. C. McDonald, president of the Southwest Nash Co., who were nominated as opposing candidates to Fahrenkrog and Ellis, withdrew their names before the election.

Six directors were also elected at the meeting. They were: A. E. Archer, McCarthy-Archer Automobile Co.; Philip H. Brockman, De Luxe Automobile Co.; George M. Berry, Berry Motor Car Co.; R. C. Frampton, Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co.; Joseph A. Schlecht, Mound City Auto Co., and F. W. A. Vesper, Vesper-Buick Auto Co. Brockman and Frampton were re-elected.

Ben Blow, manager of the Victory Highway, and F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co. and of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, who recently was appointed a director of the Victory Highway, outlined to the dealers attending the meeting of the benefits to be derived from the Victory Highway passing through St. Louis, and requested them to assist in every way to help raise the budget assigned to St. Louis.

BYRNE JOINS WEBER IMPLEMENT AND AUTO CO.

F. H. Byrne, who has been connected with the automobile industry in St. Louis for the past 15 years, has been appointed retail sales manager of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., Hupmobile distributers, according to announcement made last week by President George Weber.

Byrne for many years has been connected with the sales of several popular makes of automobiles distributed in St. Louis, and until recently was retail sales manager of the Packard Motor Car Co. of Missouri, which was recently purchased by the Berry Motor Co.

Following the change from a direct factory representation of the Packard line in St. Louis to a distributer, Byrne was retained by the Berry Motor Co. until a short time ago, when G. M. Berry, president of the company, added the sales managership to his duties.

ABOUT CHAINS.

Never attach them to a spoke.

Never fasten chains so tight that they cannot creep.

Do not repair a broken link with wire. It will ruin the tire.

Drape the chain over the tire with the clamps toward the rear of the car.

The chains should be placed so that the hooks of the cross links are outside.

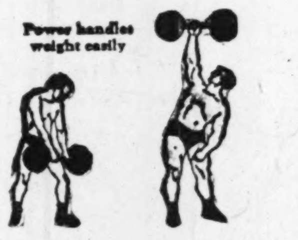
Why Jewett Six Wins Wise Buyers

Paige Engineering—Paige-built Quality—Big-Six Performance—at $1065!

JEWETT Six is the only car of its size and price built by a maker of high-grade sixes. Wise buyers have endorsed it to the tune of over 25,000 cars in its first year. For this amazing acceptance there must be reasons all can appreciate! To many, the mere fact that Paige reputation, engineering and workmanship are embodied in the Jewett, is conclusive. To you, however, who have not yet verified them, we say: see these Paige-designed features in the Jewett for yourself before you buy any car!

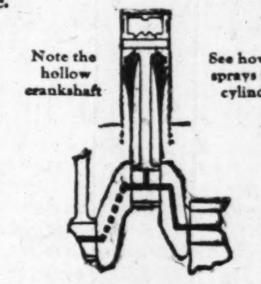
Fifty-Horsepower Motor Fills the Hood!

You don't have to be an engineer to appreciate Jewett's exceptional power. Just see how its motor fills the hood. Compare it with other cars in the same class. As a matter of engineering fact no car within $200 of the Jewett price has a motor of equal piston displacement —249 cubic inches. Its six cylinders, 3¼x5 inches, deliver full fifty horsepower. Running at a moderate speed insures longer life at lower upkeep than high-speed motors.



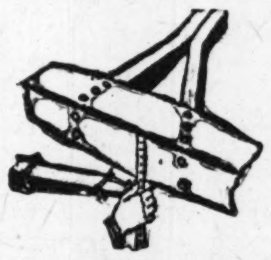
Ample Power for Weight Gives Amazing Performance

Power compared to weight determines car performance. Easily the strong man handles the hundred-pound weight which the weaker man can scarcely lift. Just so the underpowered car must strain to do that which the amply powered Jewett does easily. Accelerate, if you can, 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds with any other car of Jewett's size.



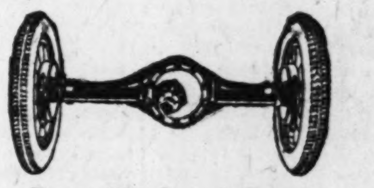
High-Pressure Oiling—2 Gallons a Minute

There's a big difference in oiling systems. Low pressure oiling to engine main bearings is not to be compared with Jewett high-pressure oiling. The Jewett high-pressure, hollow crankshaft system forces 2 gallons per minute through all main and connecting-rod bearings, then sprays the entire internal mechanism. Metal never rubs metal—always a thin film of oil between. Smoothness and silence are particularly noticeable results of this ideal lubrication. The continuous oil flow carries heat away from bearings. There is a remarkable absence of friction; and greater motor life at less upkeep expense is Jewett's advantage over cars equipped with the circulating and splash system.



Rugged Construction Gives Endurance and Comfort

Get it clearly in your mind that the Jewett is not a light-weight, lightly-built car. Mere "lightness" in itself is furthest from the Paige standard of sound engineering. Here is a frame full six inches deep, with correspondingly wide top flange. A unit of strength, reinforced by inbuilt corner braces in front and four sturdy cross members, which brace diagonally all points of strain. This staunch construction insures freedom from disalignment of mechanism, unlimited endurance, and substantial riding comfort. Jewett's solidity and steadiness of road motion do much to make the long drive unfatiguing. Women, especially, find their sense of cozy security in a really substantial car [the touring model weighs 2805 pounds] a source of continued satisfaction.



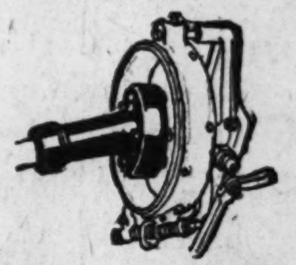
Paige-Timken Axles—99.8% Dependable!

It is important that a car of such power as the Jewett should have a thoroughly sound rear axle. Nothing but Paige-Timkens could possibly handle this power efficiently and enduringly. We checked up on the first 20,000 Jewetts in use and found that only two-tenths of 1% had had any axle trouble at all — even including those due to accidents. Extra tough steel and ample size give this Paige-Timken rear axle of the Jewett a great surplus of strength for safety.

New Gear-Shifting Ease from Paige-Type Clutch

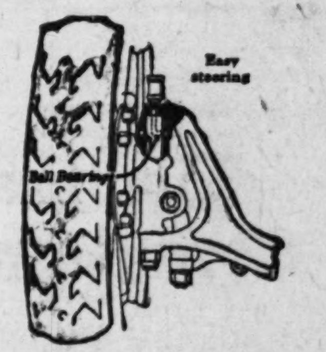
Jewett is the one car you literally do not learn to drive! Shift gears without pausing, or pause as long as you wish—you never "miss" nor is there any clash. The reason?—a light-weight driven clutch member weighing only 3½ pounds has one-third the usual weight, and with one-third the momentum quickly adjusts itself to speed changes. Jewett's remarkable gear-shifting ease gives it an irresistible appeal to women.

With the new Paige-type clutch, however fast you lift your foot you can neither stall the motor nor jerk the car. Twice the friction surface of the ordinary clutch—that's why.



All-Steel Universal Joints Oiled Once a Year

You know the trouble and annoyance of trying to grease the universal joint. Usually it isn't done—the mechanism suffers instead. Here is a new type universal joint built of the finest steel—oiled, not greased—with sealed-in lubrication that is good for 15,000 miles. Dust and dirt never enter; oil never escapes. Operates indefinitely without wear and therefore without the usual back-lash and rattles. Few features of the Paige-built Jewett are more practically useful to the owner who demands untroubled service.



Ball-Bearing Steering Spindles Give Touch Guidance

Easy steering is one of the most delightful features of Jewett performance. At each end of the Paige-Timken front axle are ball-bearing steering spindles that respond to the slightest touch on the wheel. The old tension and strain of a "stiff wheel" are forgotten, and the frailest woman finds Jewett a pleasure to handle.

Remember: the only car in its class built by makers of high-grade sixes! It gives you big-six performance, Paige-built quality, at $1065! Please come in and look, verify, try out this Jewett, or phone for demonstration now. (292-A)

BOOK TELLS OF PAVLOVA'S KISSING KAISERIN'S HAND

Left Imprint of Blood-red Heart; War Followed in Few Months.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—Miss Olga Racster has embodied in a book called "The Master of the Russian Ballet," the memoirs of Cav. E. Cecchetti, the famous dancer and teacher of famous dancers, including Pavlova, Lopokov and many others.

Among the stories told of Pavlova is that of a gala performance at Berlin not long before the war, when the Kaiser and Kaiserin came upon the stage and the latter complimented the Russian dancer. Palova bowed low and kissed the Kaiserin's hand. When she stood erect there was left from her lips upon the royal hand the imprint of a blood-red heart.

"A strange thrill," writes Miss Racster, "ran through those who were standing near and during the war (which broke out a few months later) how often it was recalled by the members of the company who had been present."

DISCUSS FAULTS OF PREMIERS

British Papers Tell of Successes, Despite Handicaps.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, March 20.—Certain characteristics of the new Premier, Bonar Law, have led to discussion in the prints of other Premiers who succeeded in spite of serious handicaps in winning popularity. Among them was Lord Salisbury, who was distinguished by his inability to recognize even those he met daily. One day, it is related, a country squire called at Hatfield for luncheon. Lord Salisbury immediately engaged his guest in homespun in lively talk. When he had left the Premier remarked to his wife:

"I was glad Lord Roberts dropped into luncheon today, but I fear he is not what he was intellectually. He appeared to me to be remarkably vague as to our military dispositions in Egypt, and his views on Indian questions seemed even more nebulous. But we all grow older."

STORY TOLD ON ERNEST RENAN

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, March 20.—In the observance of Ernest Renan's centenary, French periodicals have printed many stories about the peculiarities of the great writer, among them his desire to monopolize conversation and to gourmandize.

At a dinner given by Mme. Aubernon, a hostess who organized conversation and limited the speeches, Renan tried to interrupt a speaker of no importance, but was checked by the hostess. "Wait," she said, "you shall have your turn."

When the dessert was served she turned to Renan with: "What were you going to say when you interrupted M——?"

"It was quite unimportant," answered Renan. "I was merely going to ask you for more of those delicious green peas."

Gain in British Chemical Sales.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 14.—The chemical industry of England is rapidly developing owing to the restricted output and higher prices charged by her chief competitor, Germany, according to a recent report. The sales of the industry are more than three times the amount reported before the war and almost double that of two years ago.

Czar's Letters Scrape Tinsel Off Meeting Of Three Powerful Emperors in Berlin

Installment Brings Series Up to World War

Ruler of Russia Shown to Be the Same Uxorious Lightweight That He Was 20 Years Before — Defeated by Japanese in Battles on Land and Sea, His Letters Only Ask About the Children.

Czar Astounded at Warmth of His Reception by Masses in Berlin—Stage Fright in Speech Makes Him Forget What He Had Promised Russian Peasants.

By ISAAC DON LEVINE.

(Copyright, 1923. Reproduction of letters, facsimiles or type-matter absolutely forbidden.)

ELEVEN years more of Czar Nicholas' reign—the period from 1902 to 1913 during which his letters in this installment were written—brings him and the Russian Empire to the brink of the World War. These were the most eventful of the first 20 years from his accession to the throne. Russia was shaken from without by defeat in the war with Japan and torn from within by the revolution of 1905 and recurrent eruptions of revolt among the Russian masses. Yet the Czar's letters during these momentous 11 years demonstrate forcefully how little even these upheavals affected the mind of this imperial weakling.

New Historic Revelations.

Nicky's epistles, however, continue to express his blind devotion and impassioned constancy to the Czarina. He is still the adoring love-slave of other years and in one letter reiterates that he is hers "body and soul." But, above all, the letters provide amazing historic testimony as to what the rulers of Europe really thought about their jobs and each other and furnish important new proof of the hypocrisy and hollowness of "the King Business."

In the last installment Nichy was addressing Count von Bulow, the Kaiser's Prime Minister, in high flown, imperial phrases of felicitation and privately called him "a ridiculous idiot" in a letter to the Czarina. Now, he goes to greet the Shah of Persia amid the elaborate ceremonials of the Russian army maneuvers and writes Alix with equal frankness about what happened.

One of the significant revelations of today's installment is the Czar's veiled references to the forerunner of Rasputin, a French spiritualist by the name of Phillippe. During the great war the long Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaievitch, or Nikolasha, as he is called in the correspondence, was Rasputin's bitterest foe. And yet 12 years previous he was instrumental in presenting to the Czar and Czarina the man who paved the way for the rise of Rasputin and who is designated in the latters as "Friend," with a capital F, the same as applied to Rasputin later.

"Our Friend's" Promise.

About a month and a half after his meeting with the Kaiser at the naval maneuvers at Reval in 1902, Nicky left for the Russian army maneuvers near Ryshkovo in the province of Kursk. In this letter guarded reference to "Friend" first appears. During the journey of the imperial train he wrote:

"RYSHKOVO, Aug. 29, 1902.

"My own beloved wify:

"I begin this letter a few hours before Kursk, so as to finish it this evening. The train shakes a little, so you must excuse my bad writing

"I don't know but I feel so quiet before arriving today there, that in the fulfillment of our "Friend's" promise, I tried to pray very fervently last night and this morning and that has also brought comfort to the soul.

"After dinner it rained yesterday, but now it is lovely, quite warm and sunny. If it is so for the maneuvers it will be simply delicious. There has been no talk yet. I sat much with Misha (Grand Duke Michael, his brother) or read in my cabin. We walked at several stations."

Nicky's Stage Fright.

When the train reached Kursk the Czar was met by a delegation of the nobility and a deputation from the local Zemstov who were anxious to know from "The Little Father" what relief the peasants might expect from the disordered misgovernment of the agricultural administration from which they were suffering. The London Times the next day refers to the Czar's speeches on that occasion as "important" How important they seemed to him is indicated in Nicky's letter to Alix finished that evening, in which he confesses that he had stage fright and could not remember half of one of these "important" utterances. He wrote:

"It is now 11 o'clock of the evening—the first part of the program is finished. The first speech went off very well, but in beginning the second one I stuck and could not for the life of me remember what I wanted to say. But in the end, after a desperate attempt to speak I succeeded in producing the second half of my speech, which was perhaps quite enough, after all."

At the Army Maneuvers.

The opposing Russian armies in the Ryshkovo "war game" were commanded by General Kuropatkin who was destined two years later to meet defeat by the Japanese in Manchuria, and Grank Duke Serge, an uncle of the Czar. The next day Nicky wrote Alix:

"My Sweet Little Wify—How happy I was to find a letter from you when we came back from the maneuvers this afternoon. The day was a very successful one and the weather also. We left at 9 this morning. Misha and I drove together in Konkov troika. We had to drive an hour and a half to get to our horses. We passed through large villages where the good peasants presented simple bread and salt and all went down on their knees, showing such a touching childish joy!

"At first we looked at the movements of troops from a high place, then we crossed a river and rode on to an enormous plain. There we got right into the midst of the battle between Serge's and Kuropatkin's troops. I saw them both, of course, at different places. It was funny to hear them talk about each other's action. But I must say both sides did their work cleverly and quietly. At 3 o'clock the action stopped: Kuropatkin retreated.

"The visit of the Shah is settled, he arrives here on the fourth of September, in the afternoon, will be present at the review and leaves at the same time as me.

"I just received a telegram from mama telling me that poor Lomen is seriously ill at Bernstorff. I cannot imagine what has happened to him. Good-by you sweet one. God bless and protect you. I am so happy you feel quiet morally, that is a blessing of His. Kiss the dear children many times. Love to Ella. Your tenderly devoted

"NICKY."

CZAR'S LETTER REMINDING WIFE OF "POOR OFFICERS" WHO HAD TO GO TO WAR

AT the time of the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese War when troops were leaving for the front in Manchuria, the following letter was written by the Czar, deploring the fact that the "poor officers" had to leave their families and fight for the "glory of our army."

May 2, 1904.

"Lovy mine:

"I have to leave in a few hours. Though I feel I am doing my duty by going to see the troops, my heart is sore to leave you. That pain you have got worries me. Please do take care of yourself; lie down as much as possible, walk little and cautiously, not to slip. God bless you, my sweet one, my own darling wify. I shall think of you and pray for you and the little ones day and night.

"Cheer up! Just think of those poor officers who have to go to war and leave their families behind. And yet how many do it with joy—for their country's sake and for the glory of our army.

"You know how I love you. Words cannot explain how deep it lies. He will pray for you and I will try to add my feeble prayers to His. Good night, my darline; sleep well and quietly. Your own NICKY.

Another cryptic reference to "Friend" occurs in Nicky's letter the next day:

"This evening between 11 and 12 I shall sit with Nikolasha (Grand Duke Nicholas) in his cabin and we shall think of the scattered 'family.' Oh! how good it is to know one has got such a Friend."

Ladies With "Fatal" Eyes.

Apparently there were plenty of pretty women in Kursk who couldn't make their eyes behave, even for an Emporor, for in his next letter Nicky dutifully reports to his "own precious darling:"

"We drove to the Nobleman's Club. In their magnificent hall the Bishop made the sanctification of Papa's bust; in a standing position the figure is rather good. We all felt extremely hungry and were very thankful to drink a cup of tea and eat a sandwich. We sat at a round table and the tall Marie Bariatinsky did the honors.

"There were any amount of ladies, some were rather good looking with fatal eyes and they kept looking steadily at Misha and me, smiling sweetly, when we turned our heads in their direction. At the end of the tea, there stood such a wall of them round us, that we could not bear it any longer and got up. Marie Bariatinsky asked very much about you. Our last visit was to the governor's house, where I spoke again. This time it was to the peasants of the five adjacent governments. That went off well because it is much easier to talk to simple people.

"Now good-by and God bless you, my sweet little Wify. I kiss you tenderly and the children. I love you and want you. Ever your loving and devoted. "NICKY."

The Shah's Visit.

The Shah of Persia and an elaborate suite arrived a few days later and a dispatch to the London Times' solemnly records an imperial banquet in honor of the visiting monarch, quoting the Czar as delivering this fervent toast to the Shah:

"I am glad to be able to congratulate you, by word of mouth, on the occasion of your birthday. I drink to the health of your majesty, to the glory of your reign, to the prosperity of Persia and the development of her relations with Russia."

If the Shah could have known what Nicky really was thinking about him and the endless formalities of royal etiquette on that historic occasion, the effect upon Persia's relations with Russia can only be conjectured. This is startlingly revealed in the following letter Nicky wrote to the Czarina that night:

"RYSHKOVO, Sept. 4, 1902.

"My own darling wify:

"This is my last letter to you, luckily. Tenderest thanks for your dear lines which always make me so happy. This morning it rained and there blew a strong, warm wind. We two had intended to ride, but as it was nasty and also Lamsdorff (the Czar's Foreign Minister) came from Petersburg I did not go. Tomorrow I shall have enough riding at the review. Luckily at 5:00 the rain ceased and sunny came out.

"At 5:00 the Shah arrived with a very numerous suite. It was funny to watch all the preparations for his reception; the red cloth put on our platform, flowers arranged near the tent prepared for him, the guard of honor standing there half an hour before, etc. His train is at the end of ours. I led him to his tent, after some refreshments there I left him, and then he paid me a visit in my tent, both of which stand quite near. All the others were gazing into them and laughing—it is true I must say those ceremonies are funny. Hendrikoff with two others walked the whole time in front like cocks! Now we are going to dine in the big tent, about 100 people. The evening is lovely, the moon shines like in the South.

"Sweety-mine, I get awfully impatient to see and hug you in my arms—I hope downstairs in your little room, with the tea table ready. Good-by and God bless you, my own precious one, and the dear children. Ever your own loving and deeply devoted "NICKY."

Wartime Love Notes.

Less than two years later Russia and Japan were at war. The Kuropatkin of the Ryshkovo army maneuvers was now leading the Czar's armies in a desperate effort to halt the onrush of the "little brown men" northward through Manchuria. In August, 1904, the Czarevitch Alexis, the only son of the Czar and heir to the throne of Russia, was born.

Marching Was "Exquisite."

More Russian reverses in Manchuria, yet a letter from Dvinsk, dated Oct. 28, 1904, has not a word of the war. But Nicky rejoices in the "exquisite" parading of some of his troops in review before two German Generals. He wrote:

"My Own Beloved One:

"Tender thanks for three dear letters which gave me unspeakable pleasure! At last I can answer you, as we stop the whole night. It was VERY hard saying good-by to you and the children and especially, I must add, to OUR sunbeam! I try to be fair, but . . . that little "angel" is something still more precious!

"We arrived this morning at Suvalk with a pretty sunshine. Here I was received by Gen. von der Goltz and Moltke (of the German General Staff); exactly like his brother. The Fifth Rifle Brigade and its artillery, with the 16th sapper battalion, marched past in the most exquisite manner possible. I felt proud of them, as foreigners were looking on. After the review Misha and I drove to the church of the town, which is some distance off, and then returned to our train. We took the Prussians with us. They lunched and got out at 5 in the afternoon.

"Now the half of my duty is over, two more reviews and I am back again. You sweet one, never do my thoughts leave you. Good-by, my darling Wify. Thousands of tender kisses to you and the children from your own Huzy. NICKY."

Owned "Soul and Body."

But the disastrous war with Japan, the revolution of 1905 and the other stirring events of the next few years of his reign do not seem to have diminished the impassioned tone of his letters to Alix, for, on Oct. 6, 1909, from the imperial yacht Standart he wrote:

"My Own Beloved Darling Wify:

"Once again we are separated. It was horrid saying good-bye in our own cabin, where we have lived so long together. It seemed so unnatural to see you being driven away while me remained on board.

"I followed you in the motor for a long time up the hill and later when we passed Livadia we saw you and all the children quite clearly. I made our crew cheer—did you hear it?

"Your dear cabins look so pretty and so empty, alas! Babykin's (the Czarevitch), too. His favorite sailor I saw just now in the corridor, him who used to tell him stories to send him to sleep and looked after him so touchingly when the ship rolled!

"When the heart is full it is difficult to write about one's feelings—but you know them, my treasure, you know also how I belong to you, soul and body! Now you are praying in Orianda church—so we are near each other.

"It is time also to leave the ship. God bless you, my own sweety dear, and all our children. Keep up, every day brings us nearer again. I kiss you tenderly, Alexei (the Czarevitch) and the girlies. Ever your own devoted and deeply loving "NICKY."

Willy Is Amiable.

The next year, the Czar visited the Kaiser in Germany and (the spelling is his own) wrote this to the Czarina:

"Oct. 22, 1910.

"My Own Beloved Wify:

"Only a few lines to thank you with all my heart for your letter that touched me deeply. It was horrid taking leave yesterday. There was a snowstorm after Frankfurt, but luckily this morning it was fine. Everything went off very well. Willy & Dona (the Kaiser and Kaiserin) are remarquably amiable and full of attentions. After lunch I payed visits in W. motor to both married sons, talked with him till 6, took tea with them and now must receive people before dinner. Tender love, "NICKY."

A Shy Conqueror.

Scarcely more than a year before the Great War, the Czar and his cousin, King George of England—"Georgie"—made their famous visit to the Kaiser, and Nicky wrote this letter describing his impressions of the historic event:

"BERLIN, SCHLOSS,
"May 9, 1913.

"My Own Precious Wifey:

"Here I am in this enormous town quickly scribbling a few lines in the night—after a long but successful day. From the morning it was fine but hot weather. Willy (the Kaiser) and Georgie (King George) met me which astonished me. All the troops lined the streets; there were crowds of people; we were escorted by a squadron of your dragoons. Dona and May (the Kaiserin and Queen Mary of England), with a handful of Princesses, met me at the top of the stairs and conducted me to my apartments. As usual everything in the rooms, on the table, etc., was carefully arranged with lots of attention. I had only just time to change and had to go to a family luncheon—we were 40 at table.

"I gave over all your messages. After smoking awhile we separated as everyone had to pay visits. I flew off in one of Willy's motors with Gen. von Moltke, and as no one was at home soon ended this business by calling at the Kaiserhof Hotel. * * * We had a very gay tea. Then I drove through the Thiergarten, produced a tremendous enthusiasm in the streets and arrived as a conqueror to the Schloss at 6, quite shy with what I had produced.

"Was ready before 8. Looked through all our decorations, presents for the Germans, and went off to the state dinner in the White Hall. I led the old Grand Duchesse Louise and sat near the charming bride. Both she and he made the best of impressions. Waldemar's boys please me very much—they laugh whenever I look at them. All the relations without exception asked me about your health and are extremely sorry not to see you here. May (Queen Mary) looks very well and in her way has become very like Aunt Alix (Queen Alexandra of England); I don't know why?

"It is getting late, so I must end. He misses you so awful and the children, too. Do feel better, lovy mine! I bless you and them and kiss all ever so tenderly. Good-night. Your ever loving Huzy, NICKY."

Yet, even then the Kaiser was nursing his ambition of "Deutschland uber Alles" and a year later Russia and Germany were plunged into bloody war.

NEXT SUNDAY'S INSTALLMENT—The Czar's letters now continue through the first months of the Great War. They were written from the Supreme Headquarters when the Russian armies were smashing into German territory and reveal an amazing and intimate picture of the historic events of those days, as they looked to the Emperor Nicholas.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN FROM 7 STATES TO ATTEND CLINIC

Widespread Response Is Being Received to Medical Society Offer of Free Treatment in Needy Cases.

CHECKING DEFORMITY, ONE AIM OF SERVICE

Care Offered to Children Best St. Louis Affords, With Leading Specialists Co-operating in Work.

Blank to Be Used in Reporting Crippled Children to Committee

PARENTS having crippled children not now receiving treatment and for whose medical and hospital care they cannot pay, are asked by the St. Louis Medical Society to fill out the following blank and mail it to the society.

The name of the medical society and its address is printed on the lower part of this coupon. It may be cut out and pasted on the outside of an envelope for mailing to the society.

Persons who have knowledge of crippled children, not their own, and who are not now receiving medical treatment are asked also to fill in the blank and mail it to the medical society.

No name obtained in this way will be published.

Name of Parents..

Is child now receiving medical treatment?..................

(DETACH AND PASTE THIS ADDRESS ON ENVELOPE)

The St. Louis Medical Society,
3525 Pine Street,
St. Louis, Mo.

Names of crippled children in seven states have come to the St. Louis Medical Society, 3525 Pine street, in response to the society's offer of free medical, surgical and hospital treatment for crippled children of parents unable to pay.

The largest number have come from Missouri, with scattering cases from Illinois, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and Nebraska.

Responses from St. Louis are considerably less than in the opening campaign last year. The society anticipated that such would be the case, because of large numbers of children treated during the last 18 months. However, the society, to correct any misunderstanding, is urging two things upon parents of children here: First, no child will be admitted to the clinic on April 23, 24 and 25 whose name has not first been presented to the society.

Second, the parents of children who, in the past, have received treatment, but are not now receiving treatment, are asked to bring in their children. In many cases the value of treatment is not in correcting deformity, but in preventing deformity from becoming greater. This is particularly true in the cases of children who are crippled as an aftermath of infantile paralysis. Frequently neglected children of this sort suffer an increase of helplessness which can be avoided by the application of proper braces.

Best Care City Affords.

The care offered to the children is the best the city affords. The examining physicians will be leading specialists in orthopedic surgery, general surgery, pediatrics and neurology from the society's membership. The clinics to which those children not requiring hospital care will be sent are orthopedic clinics of Washington and St. Louis University Schools of Medicine, the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium and the city hospital.

The hospitals available for the reception of children needing that care include Children's, Barnes, St. Luke's, St. John's, Mullanphy and the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. In addition, there is Ridge Farm, the country adjunct of Children's Hospital, where the cases of children suffering from tuberculosis of the joints will be sent.

The society is in possession of numerous records of cases brought in to its clinic last year, which it considers encouragement for parents of other crippled children.

Marked Improvement Shown.

Two little Italian girls, 8 and 5 years old, were suffering from such aggravated cases of bow legs that it affected their walk markedly. One of the little girls was sensitive to the jibes of other children and for this reason left school. Both children underwent comparatively simple operations in Children's Hospital and now are perfectly normal in appearance and walk.

Gladys F., 11 years old, had not walked since she was 5. Her mother brought her from a Texas town on a pass provided by a railroad. Gladys was passed from the clinic into Barnes Hospital and given care for six weeks. At the end of that time she was provided with braces and taught to walk.

Parents of children who report names to the Medical Society will be notified as to the day and hour at which they are to report to the clinic. It is probable that, as last year, arrangements will be made to transport the children and parents to the clinic in automobiles.

BRITAIN OFFERS $250,000 FOR BEST HELICOPTER MACHINE

Government Already Has Spent $300,000 in Experiments on Invention.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 14.—Great Britain is offering a prize of $250,000 for the best helicopter machine. This apparatus will be required to meet a certain test, the details of which will not be made known for several days.

All nationalities, including Americans, will be eligible to offer designs. The competition is expected to bring out models which will overcome the defects in the present helicopters, upon which the British Government has already expended $300,000 in experimental work.

The Government would welcome any invention enabling a flying machine to ascend from land in a confined space, but the prevailing opinion among aeronautical engineers is that even if helicopters became really practical, they would always be more or less dangerous as well as less efficient than airplanes of the same period.

It is argued among the experts that helicopters must be so devised as to land at an angle, not vertically. A vertical descent, unless a descending velocity of less than 10 miles an hour is possible, would call for a more elaborate shock absorbing apparatus than has yet been invented, these experts maintain.

EPIC OF STATE OF MISSOURI PORTRAYED IN FOUR MASTERLY EPISODES BY FAMOUS ARTIST

Inspiring Story Done on Canvas by Brangwyn, to Grace Imposing Central Dome of New Capitol at Jefferson City.

In the Rotogravure Section of today's Post-Dispatch the pictures referred to in the following story are reproduced.

By CROSSLEY DAVIES,
London Art Critic.

Within a few weeks the four great panels and the big ceiling piece which Frank Brangwyn, the English artist, has painted to represent in a glowing epic the inspiring story of the rise of the State of Missouri will reach Missouri and be placed in the imposing central dome of the new Capitol at Jefferson City.

Colossal in size, they are equally big in conception. So vast was the area of canvas needed for these historic documents in oils that the artist had the greatest difficulty to get pieces big enough for his purpose. The figures in the ceiling piece are 18 feet high and those in the lunettes are 12. Some idea of their size can be gained by looking at the photograph of the artist at work on one of these panels in his studio in Hammersmith, London, which, by the way, is the largest studio in the British capital. The lunette panels are 24 feet high and more than 40 feet wide.

"The building is of a beautiful gray stone," Brangwyn told me, "and so the one form of decoration that occurred to one was something very light and pure in color. That is why I have used a color scheme of light bright blue and gold, with splashes of rich, deep orange. The panels are painted in flat oils which will give to the canvases the appearance of tempera."

We were talking in the studio and from the high ceiling to floor the glowing canvas fell, held at the foot by a heavy roller, the roller upon which it will be wound for its transit to America.

When the whole scheme is finished Missouri will have from the brush of the greatest living master of mural decoration a wonderful memorial of the rise and progress of the State, told in rich color and stirring incident. Besides the work now finished, there are still to come eight more panels, which are to go round the lower dome.

Wide and Bold Interpretation.

The story is told in three parts. In the center piece, which will adorn the ceiling of the dome, are pictured the four mainsprings of Missouri's present prosperity—Education, Science, Commerce and Agriculture. These are represented by four groups, painted in soft shades of gold and blue. The artist has given a wide and bold interpretation. His Science is no abstract idea. The draped figure of the man of knowledge is surrounded by cog wheels and other symbols of mechanical progress. Agriculture, a woman, the natural symbol for Mother Earth, holds a sheaf in her hands while at her feet are the fruits of the earth and the implements of the husbandman. To Commerce, Brangwyn gives an original outlook. The figure of the man of trade holds up the model of a ship while on one side is an anchor and at his feet is the sea. Behind him is the globe over which ships can be seen sailing. This typifies in a happy design the fact that the trade of Missouri is world-wide. The figure of Education also has a globe in the background, partly a matter of balance of design and also of symbolism. At the feet are a church on one side and an organ and a lute on the other. So the artist shows that no state can do without culture, the inspiration of good achitecture and of great music. Each figure is supported by two boys, one on either side, symbol of the carrying on of a fine tradition. The signs of the Zodiac are represented in a golden circle set in a star-spangled blue sky.

Landing of Laclede Depicted.

The four panels for the lunettes to go in the upper dome tell the story of Missouri. The eight further panels to go in the lower dome will describe the main industries of the Missouri of today and they will be set against a background of the chief cities of the State. The landing of Laclede on the site of St. Louis, which he founded, is clearly the starting point of this poetic history. The composition is strong and balanced. The coloring is rich and glowing. The robes of the Indians are full of barbaric color. Set against the blue and gold backs ground of river, trees and sky they stand out with wonderful effect. The artist has imagined the approach of the daring party of whites. The foremost figure has jumped out of the boat and with arm outstretched in friendly appeal wades toward the watchful and curious Indians while one of the party in the boat stands, hand on trigger, ready for the first sign of treachery. Laclede was on a trading mission and as he decided to settle here it is to be assumed that he established happy relations with the local Indians.

As in the case wherever man has set up a new home, the State of Missouri began from the river bank. From that vantage point pioneers adventured out into the wilderness in the famous prairie schooners. They were hardy folk and they risked unknown perils with the grim courage which has had so much to do with the successful establishment of many of the United States.

Second Panel Devoted to Pioneer.

Brangwyn has taken the pioneer for the subject of his second panel. Behind him are the immemorial forests. Ahead—what? The central figure is the man. Roughly clad, resolute, blanket on shoulder, powder flask in belt, gun ready to meet any foe, savage or wild beast. With him is a friendly Indian guide. The artist has not overlooked the fact that there were friendly Indians, as well as hostile, in those early days and they, too, had their share in the founding of the mighty State for which these humble pioneers blazed the trail. The pioneer has taken his family with him out into the wilds. The women in those days shared the hardships with their men. Two boys and a baby in arms represent the hope of the future, the new generation which was to carry on the building of the State a step further. The woman sits on the front of the wagon. She is fearful and anxious. Clearly some alarm has been raised. The man faces it with fearless mien. The woman, unarmed, helpless because she has a child in her arms, lacks the sustaining tonic of a well-primed gun and the knowledge on an unerring aim. But she stays where she is. Hers is another kind of courage but it is just as high as the man's and it did as much to found a new land for the white race. The artist cleverly suggests that the little party has stopped, alarmed, by the grazing of the oxen.

Attractive Group in Homestead.

After the pioneer, the homestead. So this is naturally the subject of the third panel. It is an attractive group. The days of peril are over. The land has been won. Now come the activities of the husbandman and the house-builder. In the clearing Brangwyn shows us the carpenter, the lumberman, the goat herd, the fruit-gatherer and the friendly Indian. But right in the center he places a mother and child, the central secret of the enduring state. Here is the lyric of toil and its fruits.

The last panel of this series is a pean of modern progress. Brangwyn has chosen the building of the great iron bridge at St. Louis as the symbol of modern achievement. The erection of this fine bridge was a wonderful engineering feat and it opened up the whole of that part of America to commerce. Across the background of the picture the splendid span of the bridge stretches. Workmen are busy on it. Brawny smiths are seen in the foreground swinging great hammers. Porters are bringing up from the riverside bales and boxes of fruit and the many products of the State of today. And so through the 160 years of eventful story Brangwyn, in four masterly episodes, tells the people of Missouri for all time what a magnificent State is theirs. These panels form a fitting decoration to the capitol.

CLEARS COMPLEXION AS IF BY MAGIC

No Longer Necessary to Be a Victim of Unpopularity on Account of a Bad Complexion.

Very often a pimple, blackhead or irritation of the skin is simply nature's way of warning you that you are careless, and is reminding you that you must take care of your skin, clean it of the dust and grease which collect in the pores, so they can throw off impurities from the system, which otherwise collect and then fester, causing blackheads, pimples and other face ruiners.

Women who endured these distressing things for years and who never seemed to be able to find anything which would really get rid of them are now using Black and White Cleansing Cream because it really keeps every one of the little pores cleaned out, healthy and active in getting rid of the things which ordinarily cause pimples and sore skin.

By using Black and White Cleansing Cream regularly you make your skin soft, smooth and lovely. Then, instead of putting on just any face powder in the mornings, first use the Peroxide Cream, which keeps the skin clear, free from surface grease and makes your Black and White Face Powder stay on evenly instead of making your face look "pasty" and "over powdered."

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

A GRATIFYING increase in the number of visitors to the City Art Museum is shown in the attendance record of that institution. For the period covering April 1 to 8, inclusive, the record shows 14,269 visitors, which is an increase of 4795 over that of the corresponding period of last year. On the last Sunday of March this year the attendance was 5244; on the first Sunday in April 5308; on the second Sunday in April 5480. The total of these figures, 16,032, covering all three Sundays, shows an increase of 7030 over the total of the three corresponding Sundays of last year. The average attendance of the past three Sundays of 1923 has been 5400. A comparison of figures of the monthly attendances shows increases this season as follows: March, an increase of 1416; February, 1300; January, 1632; December, 5385; November, 2747.

Wider advertisng, a broader range of exhibitions, the growth of the importance of art in the schools, the recent additions to several of the rarer collections (as of laces, textiles, glassware, ancient metal, etc.) and the present universal interest in Egyptian art objects are a few of the reasons which may account for the advanced number of visitors to the museum.

At the present time but three of the paintings belonging to the collection of Mr. Kurt Bachstitz of The Hague remain on exhibition. During the past week the entire collection which was brought here by Mr. Bachstiz was on view in Gallery No. 1, but owing to the importance of the paintings and the consequent necessity of their rapid circulation among other large museums during their owner's visit in this country, only three can be spared for a longer period of display here. Those that remain are a Vnn Dyck, Tintoretto and Clouet.

Mr. Bachstitz's extremely remarkable collection of ancient gold jewels, and the assortment of antique Roman, Greek and Syrian glass bronze and pottery will continue on exhibition for an indefinite period.

Two Holbeins Exhibited.

IT is not only strangely coincidental but almost phenomenal that two Holbeins should be at our museum at the same time. Only seven are owned in America, five of these belonging to the Metropolitan Museum in New York and the other two belonging to great private collections, one in New York and the other in Philadelphia. Our museum might well be congratulated, therefore, on even being able to exhibit two examples. One of these is the property of the Bachstitz Galleries of The Hague, and is among those paintings which were exhibited for only one week. The other, however, which is lent by the Kleinberger Galleries of New York, is still on view in Gallery 32. It is 18¾x14½ inches in size, painted in 1517, and is a portrait of Jakob von Hertenstein. The painting is carefully and completely authenticated by Prof. Paul Gans, the Holbein authority, who writes an interesting history of the painting, and pronounces it "the most important portrait we know of Hans Holbein's early period." The picture, after having left the possession of the last member of the Von Hertenstein family early in the nineteenth century, was sold to Basle, after which its whereabouts were unknown for some time. Recently it appeared again in the Wynn Ellis collection, from which it now comes.

Four exceedingly rare and important rugs are on exhibition in the Sculpture Court of the museum. The first is an Ispahan carpet of the sixteenth century. It is 10 feet by 25 feet in size, and comes from the collection of James W. Ellsworth. The other three are Polish silk rugs all from the first half of the seventeenth century. Two of these, also, come from the Ellsworth collection, the third having been obtained from the collection of A. S. Drey of Munich. The three are very similar in character, the greater part of the colors being pale blue and tan on a background of tiny gold and silver wire threads woven like tapestry, although the background of the rug, which is almost square, is a Nile green, which contributes to its unique character.

The exact origin of these rugs is still a mystery. Some authorities pronounce them made by Persians in Poland, while others assert that they were made in Persia by Persians for contemporary Polish Ambassadors.

Very high values are placed on the four rugs.

Allied Arts Exposition.

APRIL 24, the date set for the Allied Arts Exposition, auction and ball to be held at the Hotel Chase, is being eagerly anticipated. The various art organizations, patrons and collectors in the city are combining to make this event highly successful in its purpose. The entire lower floor of the hotel will be at the disposal of this undertaking. An art auction and tea will be held from 2:30 to 5 and from 8 to 10, while the costume ball will be in progress from 8:30 to midnight. Beautiful and valuable prizes contributed by W. K. Bixby, Miss Nancy Coonsman Hahn, Mr. Berninghaus, the Kocian galleries and M. A. Newhouse & Son, will be awarded for attendance and costumes. Mr. Tom Barnett will add to this list a picture of his own which he is painting especially for the occasion; Mr. Charles Nagel contributes a Wuerple entitled "Beacon Lights," while the Healy gallery and Mrs. Lon Hocker each have donated a Dawson-Watson.

Arrangements and installation of the exhibits are in the capable hands of Mr. F. E. A. Curley of the Art League. The works of St. Louis artists which will be displayed are those which have been accepted into the Art League's traveling exhibition. Mr. Curley reports that in addition to the exhibits of fine arts, a panel of drawings bearing on the City Plan Commission, illustrating art in civic development, will have a place. The Advertising Club will also have an interesting exhibit of commercial or advertising art.

Art in Industry Discussed.

IN the April issue of the "American Magazine of Art" published by the American Federation of Arts, announcement has been made that among the subjects to be discussed at the convention of the federation to be held in St. Louis in May are "Art in Colleges" and "Art in Industry." It is quite plausible that the "Art in Industry" movement started here by the Art League some years back and which is soon to be revived again by that organization, has had something to do with making the discussion of this subject appropriate at the St. Louis convention. Action toward the "Art in Commerce and Industry" exposition of the Art League which was announced several weeks ago, will begin immediately after "Art Day," April 24.

Cleveland-Detroit Air Service.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, April 14.—The 90-minute passenger airplane service between Cleveland and Detroit, which began last summer, will be resumed May 1. Planes will leave both Cleveland and Detroit daily, except Sunday, at 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. An additional route is expected to be opened between Cleveland and Buffalo during the summer.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur receipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

Voice of Union Labor and the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of labor unions and the Communist and Socialist Parties, showing the trend of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

THE MICHIGAN TRIAL.

(From the New York Call, Socialist.)

The Call has a long record of defending the right of every individual and every movement to be heard. We may disagree with both, may believe them to be absurd, yet they should have a right to their own forum. If they are hounded by the police powers of a class society and deprived of their forum, we oppose the persecution. At the same time we reserve the right to mercilessly attack, if necessary, the program and views such men and organizations represent.

The trial in Michigan is part of that general reaction that is too cowardly to meet ideas in the arena of debate. This reaction is all the more glaring considering the particular movement that is on trial. In the history of the organized labor struggle of this country there has never appeared a more asinine or inept group than this collection of furtive communists. It cannot stand the withering light of publicity thrown upon its activities during the past four years. This is not a movement to persecute. It is something to laugh at.

There can be no compromise with this compound of childishness and fanaticism. Let it be heard, but laugh it out of existence. It has never made a move that was not a mistake. It is no more a part of the normal labor movement built by the working class than a feeble-minded janitor is a part of a literary society which he tries to enter.

MERGERS.

(From the Oklahoma Leader, Farmer-Labor.)

Steel, packing and copper mergers figure in the news. The customary howls are heard. Monopoly, monopoly, cry the trust busters.

It does tend to create monopoly. And a monopolized industry can do a great deal of damage. It can injure the producers of the products which it buys—and it can put up the prices of its own products and injure the consumers thereof.

But preventing mergers will not do any good. It is an inevitable tendency of industry to enlarge into bigger factors. The damage they might do in this way could be wholly avoided by making them public property, owned and operated by the public for the benefit of the public.

In other words, the remedy for monopoly is—not to bust the trusts—but to take all the people inside the trusts by making them the collective property of the people.

ANOTHER BUMP.

(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

The acting District Attorney of New York City tried to keep secret the fact that the man "Marshall," mixed up in the Dorothy Keenan case, was in reality J. Kearsley Mitchell, president of the Philadelphia Rubber Works and son-in-law of E. T. Stotesbury, millionaire partner of J. Pierpont Morgan. But the facts got out somehow.

If a poor man were involved in such a case, of course there would be no effort made to keep his identity secret. It would be given to the reporters without a qualm as to the laceration of the feelings of his family and himself. How many scrapes of the rich have been covered up will never be known. But, at that, never more than a short time is allowed to elapse without the world being startled by some sensation that involves a wealthy man or woman. The rich don't seem to have enough to do to keep them out of trouble.

Yet there are still a few idiots who charge that Socialism will break up the family and bring about free love. Capitalism is breaking up the family and bringing about free love so fast that Socialism would not have much chance to do so if it wanted to—which it doesn't.

On the contrary, the Socialists are offering the only possible method of establishing social conditions that will make for decency and cleanness in sex matters and in other respects. The mess capitalism has made cannot be cleaned up all of a sudden—but it can be cleaned up.

SECRETARY WALLACE'E LATEST

(From Labor Organ of Railway Unions.)

This from Wallace's Farmer, owned in part by the Secretary of Agriculture:

"The $7,000,000,000 of water in railroad valuation is not the central fact in high railroad rates at the present time. Roughly, 15 per cent of the high freight rate situation may be blamed on this $7,000,000,000 of water and the other 85 per cent must be blamed on the high wages of labor either working on the railroads or working in the shops of companies producing materials for railroads."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is reputed to be a millionaire. He did not make his money cultivating the soil of Iowa. Instead he has devoted himself to "advising" the farmers of Iowa and selling advertising space to the interests which exploit the farmers—the railroads, the packing trust, the fertilizing combine, the farm implement trust.

The Secretary has only one remedy for all the ills of the farmer—slash the wages of the industrial workers.

Of course, if the Secretary's advice were followed, the purchasing power of the industrial workers would be reduced, and that would mean a still further demoralization of the market for all the things the farmer produces.

No sensible man would attempt to expand his business by reducing the purchasing power of his best customer.

If the railroads are permitted to capitalize the $7,000,000,000 of water in their securities, the users of the railroads will be compelled to pay an interest charge of $420,000,000 a year on this inflated valuation. The money will go into the pockets of the very rich and will not in any way increase the demand for the things the farmer produces. The money paid to labor, on the other hand, is immediately invested in the necessaries of life and that means that the greater portion of it is paid out for the products of the farm.

The Secretary's position will undoubtedly make a strong appeal to the patrons of his advertising columns, but it will be rejected by the clear-thinking farmers of Iowa.

COAL VS. GOLF.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Labor.)

On one page of the Washington Post, official spokesman of the Harding administration at the capital, we read of a woman 72 years of age freezing to death in up-State New York for the lack of coal. On another page of the same paper we read that President Harding expects to play a game of golf with Attorney-General Daugherty the following week. In other issues of the official mouthpiece we read of the authorities at Saratoga Springs seizing nine carloads of coal on its way to Canada, and of the residents of Ballston, N. Y., taking 20 tons from a train before the police appeared.

These items, in proper juxtaposition, furnish their own comment on President Harding's neglect and failure to bring about a settlement of the coal strike last summer. As additional comment, it may be said that the Coal Fact Finding Commission is asking for $400,000 more to continue its work, and as there will be in all probability no session of Congress between March 4 and December, 1923, there will be no opportunity for legislation on the coal situation before the return of cold weather, with the prospects that next winter will be a repetition with respect to the coal shortage of the winter just passing.

Revenues from the Fordney-McCumber profiteers' tariff are greater than was expected and may reach $480,000,000 by the end of this year, it is joyfully announced by Republican newspapers. The American consumer will not experience any special delight in the news that taxes are growing that much greater, while articles of import as well as those of domestic manufacture are growing higher in price.

WORKERS' REPUBLIC STILL UNRECOGNIZED.

(From the Worker, Communist.)

Recognition has again been refused the Russian soviet republic by the United States Government. Secretary of State Hughes told a delegation of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom that it must not be.

The women found Mr. Hughes in mourning at the State Department. He was still lamenting the loss of $187,000,000 that he claims the United States Government loaned Mr. Alexander Kerensky, now a waiter in a London hotel, when he was heading a government in Moscow seeking to checkmate the soviet revolution. Mr. Hughes' voice grew husky as he told again, for the benefit of the women, how the Russian communists had repudiated this Kerensky debt, and that, therefore, the workers' republic must continue to be considered an outlaw among nations.

Te be sure Mr. Hughes pulled another antisoviet card out of his sleeve in the shape of a quotation, from one of Zinoviev's speeches, that, "the eternal in the Russian revolution is the fact that it is the beginning of the world revolution," and Mr. Hughes fears for American capitalism. * * *

If the United States would resume trade relations with Russia, factories here would receive large orders, and American workers could deposit many times that $187,000,000 in wages in their pockets, where they are now jobless and penniless. Poverty-stricken and bankrupt American farmers could take in many times that amount if they could ship their surplus crops, now allowed to rot in the fields, to the Russian market, still depleted by the Volga famine.

But the Hughes-Harding administration is interested in neither workers' wages nor farmers' crops. Its main concern is the stability of the profit system, and it sees that system menaced, in the words of Zinoviev, by the soviet republic. So in blind and futile rage they withhold recognition from it—a recognition that lessens in importance so far as soviet Rusia is concerned with the passage of each new day.

Will Rogers the Cowboy Humorist Says

I HAVE just come in from the train, where I was seeing my wife off for what I think is her eighth trip back West since last June. The children are in school in California. You see, when I promised Mr. Ziegfeld to come in the Follies and assist him in glorifying the American girl, from what I thought I knew of American girls I didn't think it would take over three months to get her properly glorified.

My wife used to bring one of the children back with her each trip, but we soon run out of children, so she has had to make it alone, but this time, going back, she conscripted one of Fred Stone's daughters to take out and join her father, who is playing out there.

She has traveled so much lately that every time she hears a locomotive whistle she grabs her hat, stuffs a kimona in her bag and starts running. When we go out to dinner here, she unconsciously asks, "How many cars ahead is the diner." She can look out of the train window any place and tell you what station you are at.

Now, all this is what I call true devotion, and I want to take this means of publicly expressing my appreciation, and also to register a hint that if R. R. fares keep getting higher, this devotion is either going to bring on bankruptcy or divorce.

I am negotiating now for a 10-trip ticket. Then, when she is through with that, like Ambassador Girard after his sojourn in Germany, she can write a book, "My Four Years on the Santa Fe Railroad," or "The Only Commuter From California to New York."

Among our notables who were in the show last night was that wonderful musician and march king, John Philip Sousa. The audience gave him a great welcome, and well they should, too, because the movies could not show a parade on the screen without his music. I didn't hardly recognize him, as he had shaved off his identifications. I told him he should either wear his whiskers or his medals. I think he will go down in history as being the greatest composer; he has the only music that even an amateur band can play and it still sounds like music.

Among the events of the week, where I, like a pet dog, had to bark for my dinner, was one last night at the Astor, given by the entire detective force of New York. Of course, I had to go, as in the business I am now in of telling the real truth on certain men, detectives may come in handy to me. All the city officials were there, including Mayor Hylan (who, by the way, I layed off of, as I have found out that when newspapers knock a man a lot there is sure to be a lot of real good in him). Then there was Gov. Edwards of New Jersey and Dr. Royal Copeland, both of whom are sentenced to the U. S. Senate, if it ever meets again. (And, not that I wish these two particular men any hard luck, but there is at least 90 million wouldn't care if it never met.) Well, they were trying to stand in with the detectives, too.

A good, conscientious Senator, when he goes to Washington, needs a detective to help him find out what they are doing. And even they couldn't find out.

The dinner was quite a success. It would have been bigger, but most of the detectives couldn't find the Astor Hotel.

A few months ago there was a N. Y. detective who had been going with a girl for two years and one night he found out she was married, and had been all the time. He killed her and himself. He was one of their best detectives. It's too bad he wasn't one of the ordinary ones or he never would have found it out.

Another one of my free feeds during the week was a big banquet at the Commodore Hotel, 1100 rug manufacturers and dealers. There was a fine den to go in amongst, but I was glad, as in building a home, I had encountered two troops of brigands. I thought when I had paid the plumbers, the height of highwaymanship had been reached. But, boy, when my wife commenced to try to get those floors covered to try and hide the dirt, I wanted to rush back and kiss the plumbers and apologize. So it was just my good fortune that I should be asked to speak to all of them. They couldn't find anyone else that would say even as much good about them as I did.

Now, it's all right to go out and skin a man—that's fair play, but when you take a poor woman who is already all in from perhaps having to chloroform her husband to even get enough to buy some floor polish, much less rugs, and those rug ruffians get hold of her and take an old wool fiber rug and make her believe it is a real antique, a Kabystand, or a Tabreeze, a Surrook, or any of those Bohunk names, that's going too far. Even Jesse James never robbed a woman.

I read, before I went over there, in one of their scandal sheets, or rug trade paper, a chart showing that over 50 per cent of all rugs and tapestries were bought by women and girls between the ages of 18 and 30. Now, any man knows that that is the boob age. A woman will do either one of two things between 18 and 30. She will either get married, or buy a rug; and, if she is extra feeble-minded, she may do both.

Over in Armenia the rugs are made by the wives and lady friends of all the men. Over here they are bought by all the wives and lady friends of the men. Over there, they sometimes take as long as five years to make one rug. Over here we sometimes take as long as 10 years to pay for one. Of course, all the foreign rugs, the older they are the more they are worth; but over here we have no old rugs. The minute the newness wears off it's gone; it never gets a chance to get old in this country. It don't last long enough.

The only way you can get an old American rug is to put the fuzz sweepings back together again out of some old garbage can.

Over there they make patterns like the Indians used to name their babies, after things that they see, and also the name of the rug is the town that it comes from. There is one very crooked river over there and you can trace in lots of them this winding river. Now you can imagine, if that custom was in vogue over here, and the weaver put in what he saw or thought of every day. You would see a man making his way into a mansion with a load of cases; that design would be the family bootlegger, wending his way into the home of the dry politician. Then murder scenes would be the predominant designs.

Then imagine naming them after towns and having to take a guest into your living room and point out: "Here is Shamokin, Pa.; it's very old: my grandmother bought it on a pilgrimage to Pittsburg six months ago. You can see it's aged—look at the holes in it."

Here is an exact ad that appeared in one of their papers: "Over half the customers who bought, six months ago have re-ordered."

The life of their rugs depends on the amount of sweepings. You will see a rug advertised to last a year—if you don't sweep it.

Each sweeping removes just so much of your rug into the ash can.

And these new vacuum cleaners, those strong ones that operate from a truck out in the street, they have removed at one sitting a cheap rug right out into the truck. They not only clean your rugs, but they clean your floor of rugs.

In investigating their business I found that there had never been a rug manufacturer that failed. If things looked bad, all he had to do was make another rug and sell it and open up a branch factory with the profits. It's the only business in the world that nobody knows anything about. You don't have to, because your customers don't know, either. Their big sales are done by auction, like some second-hand dealer. This was their fall meeting; their spring auction is in October. I told them and showed them their whole business was cross-eyed. Can you imagine any other merchant selling overcoats in April and straw hats in October?

And the funny thing about it was they were a fine lot of fellows, and there wasn't a one of them but what could have gone out and made a living in a legitimate business.

I want also to tell you ladies some time about going over to Philadelphia this week to talk to the wholesale silk stocking manufacturers at a big luncheon. I had a fellow with me that had a patent to prevent runs, or broken threads, in stockings. Well, do you know, they bought him off, so you will go on having runs in your stockings, and keep on buying them. Now, I did the best I could for you. I tried to get him not to sell, but those sox scoundrels got him. So don't trust them any more than you would a rug highwayman.

SULPHUR CLEARS A PIMPLY SKIN

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad for Washing Hair

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified cocoanut oil in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

INGROWN TOE NAILS

Nail Turns Out Itself if you Toughen Skin Underneath

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny botle containing directions.

10,000 PROFIT ON SEVEN-STORY BUILDING REFUSED

al Estate Company Puts Lease on Property at Eleventh and St. Charles for $15,000 a Year.

TEREST IN SITES WEST OF TWELFTH

ents Report Numerous Sales of Flats and Apartments — Demand for Downtown Buildings Exceeds Supply.

By Berry Moore.

Demonstrating the fact that there s been no reaction in prices in the l estate market, the George T. rdeau Real Estate Co. yesterday used a profit of $10,000 for the n-story and basement building he southwest corner of Eleventh St. Charles streets, occupied as warehouse by the Rice-Stix Dry ds Co.

The Burdeau company purchased building, including the site, a night ago from the Dray and n heirs, but did not get title to property until last Tuesday. The e was not announced.

That sentiment is undergoing a ded change as to values of imved property in the downtown ricts is shown from leases being rded.

The Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., as nstance, has renewed its lease of building acquired by the Bura company at a rental of $15,000 ar, as compared with $7000 a paid to the Dray and Kahn . The lease was made through re Cave & Co. The rental now 6½ per cent on a valuation of .000. From an investment standt the valuation of the property more than doubled.

The building acquired has a frontof 60 feet on Eleventh street and 00 feet on St. Charles, and is in trict in which there is an urgent and for warehouse space.

he demand for buildings in the ntown district far exceeds the ply, due to the halt in construc- of buildings of the commercial as a result of the advance in of material.

he Burdeau Co. recently bought Gay Building at the northeast er of Third and Pine streets, Mrs. Sophia M. Crow and othirs of the Gay estate.

eat interest is being evinced 'n erty on Olive street between ith and Eighteenth streets and downtown Franklin avenue, due mably to the passage of the issue which will mean the formation of these sections, acing to L. V. Cartan & Co.

les of flats and apartments are erous, according to James M. ciscus, president of the Fran- Realty Co., there apparently no limit to the demand. The ok for a broad market during ring and summer is reassuring.

CHICAGO BANK BUILDING COST TO TOP $13,000,000

S. J. T. Straus, of Investment Firm Which Will Erect Structure, Predicts Record-Breaking Construction Year.

MATERIAL AND LABOR COSTS GOING UPWARD

He Says That Capital Available for the Work Is Abundant, and That Money Rates Are Not Too High.

Present conditions are favorable to those wishing to build now on an extensive scale, according to S. J. T. Straus, senior vice president of S. W. Straus & Co., investment bankers. He predicted a record-breaking building construction year, despite the upward trend of building material and labor costs.

In keeping with his advice to the building interests, Straus said work would be rushed on the construction of the banking and office building at Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard, Chicago, which will be the new home of S. W. Straus & Co. The new building when completed will represent an investment of from $13,000,000 to $14,000,000.

Straus said: "The intention of our company to go ahead with this mammoth building project at this time may be taken as tangible proof of our belief that present conditions are favorable to those wishing to build now on an extensive scale. In our opinion, there is no reason large enterprises should not be launched at this time.

"We can see no reason for a let-up in the record-breaking building construction activities in this country. Aside from some temporary local obstacles, this work should proceed unhindered.

Expects Era of Development.

"As I look into the future, it is my belief that we are approaching an era of development in this country which far surpasses anything witnessed before. Our great American cities have in the last few years grown and developed to a remarkable degree, but I feel sure we are on the threshold of still more important developments.

"I believe there will be no abatement in the immediate demand for building material and labor and the building boom is going ahead in greater volume than ever," said Straus. He said that building material manufacturers are forcing production in view of the expected demand, but the transportation situation is giving the builders the most concern.

"There is an abundance of capital available for building loans and the money rates are not too high," added Straus, "and unless we have excessive building costs with the prices so high as to check construction, there is no reason to fear that prosperity now returning will be short lived.

"One of the factors conducive to building at this time is the labor situation. Spring wage adjustments are being carried to successful conclusions in practically all sections of the country and there is but a small crop of building trades strikes now in evidence.

"Wage Trend Upward."

"While the trend of wages generally continues upward, there are no indications that this upward tendency will result in a runaway labor market for 1923, unless builders bring it about by competing against one another for the available supply of labor. Supply and demand are the factors that will undoubtedly govern the wage rates during the next six months, regardless of contracts now being negotiated.

"Reports from various sections of the country show that building labor generally is nearly in full employment at present and the increase in construction demand during the spring months on the basis of contracts already let, indicates even greater shortages than those now existing."

SUBURBAN PROP'TY FOR SALE SUBURBAN PROP'TY FOR SALE

"Don't Be a Piker!"

—not said by us, but was said by a customer the other day to a friend who was looking at apartment house lots in Roth Grove.

> "Man, you should put $30,000 right now in Roth Grove. You have the money. You know these apartment house lots will double in value in twenty-four months."

And our customer was right. Nine hundred to fifteen hundred dollars will be made on these four-family flat and apartment house lots this year. They will double in a short time—no question about it.

Go Your Limit in

ROTH GROVE SUBDIVISION

—It's Delmar Garden's Next Door Neighbor

$350 to $500

Cash and monthly payments carries a lot. Or pay cash. Buy every lot you can carry. Don't let this great opportunity get away! It is an opportunity!

Most of us permitted lots in Delmar Garden to get away from us. And we saw apartment house lots on Delmar and Westgate go from $45 to $350 and $400 a front foot. Signboards begged us to buy these lots. Yet that big profit got away from most of us.

And so it goes! Apartment house lots in Roth Grove will positively double. They MUST! They CAN'T HELP IT!

But we can't wait. Every day these lots are selling. People are buying. We are getting telephone calls for plats and prices. People are coming to our office and investigating. No longer anyone doubts St. Louis. But we must do more—we must actually buy good lots if we are going to make profits out of this growth.

Buy location—pay for it. Then you will make money.

Drive to Roth Grove today. Out Delmar avenue to Delmar Garden, then north to Olive Street road, then one block west to Ferguson avenue.

SIDENER TO LAY ROSS CASE BEFORE THE GRAND JURY

Shortage of $70,279 or More in Night and Day Liquidation to Be Considered This Week.

The shortage of $70,279 or more in the liquidation accounts of the Night and Day Bank and the responsibility of Donald W. Ross, 31 years old, who as a special deputy State Finance Commissioner, had charge of the liquidation, will be considered by the Grand Jury beginning Tuesday.

Circuit Attorney Sidener said yesterday that he expected to have a "concrete case" to present by that time.

Meanwhile police have been unsuccessful in their search for Ross and attorneys who a week ago indicated that they knew his whereabouts have since been silent on his intention to surrender. A $25,000 bond will be required of him.

The Depositors' Committee of the bank yesterday conferred with State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh after his arrival from Washington. F. E. Turin of the committee said only that the conference had been "very satisfactory." Commissioner Millspaugh also declined to discuss any aspect of the case. He explained that he had been out of touch with the situation for a week during his absence on other business of his office.

However, he explained that the figure, $70,279, mentioned by him in his first announcement of the liquidation shortage on April 7, represented only the total of checks which were "glaringly" not for the benefit of the liquidation. He added that the audit of the liquidation was still in progress and that the total of the shortage would not be apparent until its completion.

Meanwhile the police have extended their search for Ross to Kansas City and Springfield, Ill., sending descriptions of his personal appearance to police of those cities.

MANY NAMED IN "HOODED MOB" CASES HAVE LEFT LOUISIANA

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, April 14.—A number of the principal figures in the Morehouse "hooded mob cases," who were said to have been named by the State in bills of information, have left the State and are now scattered in the East and Southwest. Whether they can be extradited to Louisiana after warrants have been issued based on the bills of information was a much discussed question here tonight.

A number of the defendants are living in the Rio Grande Valley. Their friends in Morehouse, however, assert they have no intention of crossing the border into Mexico, but will return to Louisiana for trial.

District Attorney Garrett, carrying 31 bills of information charging 71 separate offenses against about 18 persons, is expected to reach Monroe by Tuesday and is expected to file the bills in Bastrop and ask that warrants be issued for the immediate arrest of those named.

GARLAND FUND TRUSTEES DENY MINERS' CHARGES

Statement Cites Telegram From John L. Lewis on Sept. 28, 1922, Referring to Loan Plan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The American Fund for Public Service, which is administering the $800,000 that Charles Garland, youthful New England community farmer, inherited and then gave away, today issued a statement denying the assertion of officials of the United Mine Workers of America that a $2000 donation and a $25,000 loan made from the fund to District No. 2, United Mine Workers of America, was made without the knowledge or approval of the international union.

"Before the United Mine Workers climbed on Samuel Gompers' band wagon to denounce the American Fund for Public Service, Inc., they might have investigated the facts of their own accord," said the statement signed by Norman N. Thomas, persident, and Roger N. Baldwin, secretary, of the fund's trustees.

Telegram for Lewis Cited.

"The union's claim is interesting in view of the following telegram from John L. Lewis, dated Springfield, Ill., Sept. 28, 1922, replying to an inquiry whether the national organization would stand behind the loan and requesting his judgment.

"'Replying to your wire, while I would be very glad to have American Fund for Public Service loan District No. 2 $50,000 suggested, I have no personal authority to write a loan. Would have to be passed on by international executive board before international union could be obligated in any manner in connection therewith. International executive board convenes Indianapolis, Oct. 9. Would be glad to have you write me further on matter. John L. Lewis.'

The Nationalization Plan.

"The United Mine Workers' statement also charges us with making 'a desperate and vain attempt to dictate the policies of the coal miners' union.' Neither the fund nor any of its trustees have ever attempted to dictate the policies of the United Mine Workers and the officials know it. The nationalization plan, which we are charged with 'formulating,' was put before the public by Christ J. Golden, president of District No. 9 of the United Mine Workers, speaking as a member of the miners' Nationalization Committee, officially appointed by their national convention. Mr. Golden and his district have had no transactions with the American fund.

"The Washington office of the United Mine Workers is merely giving voice to a factional row inside their organization in attempting to hit their opponents in the organization by tying them up with us. We are not interested in labor union politics, and we do not propose to be drawn into them. This is childish business on the part of officers, and we are confident that it will be attended to in due time by the rank and file."

M'KELVEY'S REPORT INDICATES BUILDING RECORD FOR CITY

Estimated Cost of Structures Erected During Fiscal Year Was $30,962,922.

Director of Public Safety McKelvey, in a report to Mayor Kiel on the operation of his department for the fiscal year ending April 9, points out that, for the second year in the history of the department, the building and inspection division was self-sustaining, its receipts being $191,759.50 and expenditures $153,489.56, leaving a surplus of $38,279.74, which will revert to the municipal revenue account of the city.

During the year the estimated cost of buildings erected was $30,962,929, against $18,871,255 last year, an increase of $12,091,694. The building record is greater than ever before in the history of the city. The nearest approach to the record of the last year was in the year ending in April, 1907, when permits were issued to construct buildings estimated to cost $30,910,101. The number of permits issued last year were 13,252, an increase of 2455 over the previous year.

The weights and measures division of the department made a total of 45,266 inspections and caused 95 arrests, obtaining 86 convictions. Inspector Schlomann points out that the principal complaints have been against coal dealers in the winter and ice dealers in the summer. He asks consumers of ice to insist upon weighing of ice in their presence. An ordinance provides that ice must be weighed at the point of delivery.

ADVENTURES IN THE ARTS. By Marsden Hartley.

A collection of essays which help to make clear the idea of modernism in literature and art. Not in technical or professional language, they are like entertaining conversations—simple, direct and pleasant.

CONTEMPORARY SCIENCE. Edited by Benjamin Harrow.

One of the Modern Library series. Such articles as "What Are Enzymes?" "Conceptions and Misconceptions of Psycho-analysis," and "Einstein's Law of Gravitation," written by authorities in their particular sciences, make this a valuable little book for the layman.

COTSWOLD CHARACTERS. By John Drinkwater, with five engravings on wood by Paul Nash.

Prose sketches of people whom the author describes, 'as unoriginal and as new as an oak tree or a starry night." The woodcuts are modern in spirit and delightful patterns of black and white.

DEBATERS' MANUAL. By E. M. Phelps.

In Part I all the steps in the preparation and conducting of a debate are described briefly and concisely, Part II is devoted to the organization and management of the debating society. Helpful bibliographies and subject lists are appended.

ESSAYS. By Percy Stickney Grant.

Undoubtedly written for an audience. In lecture style and filled with stimulating allusions. Shaw, Browning, Dostcevsky and Shakspeare are considered, and the appeal is intellectual rather than popular.

PERSPECTIVE. By Ben J. Lubschez.

Third edition. Intended for the student who has no opportunity for directed courses. A chapter on the history of perspective drawing is included.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOR THE AMATEUR. By G. W. French.

Used as a supplementary text in the New York Institute of Photography. Contains directions, principles and formulas by which the beginner may achieve satisfactory results.

WOMEN I'M NOT MARRIED TO. By Franklin P. Adams.

An amusing book, with a juxtaposed and inverted article by Dorothy Parker on "Men I'm Not Married To." Each is filled with clever observations and prejudices concerning men and women. Originally appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

POST SAYS POLICE DUTY IS NOT TASK OF DRY LEAGUE

Successor to Dr. Shupp Proposes That Attorney Be Employed in Missouri to Advise Enforcement Officers.

HIS FUNCTION NOT THAT OF DETECTIVE

Thinks People of St. Louis Are Awakening to Obligation to Uphold Execution of Eighteenth Amendment

Employment by the Anti-Saloon League of Missouri of an attorney who will specialize in matters pertaining to procedure under prohibition enforcement laws, so he may advise with Federal and State enforcement officers, will be recommended to the headquarters committee of the national organization soon by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Post of Chicago, who arrived here Wednesday to become superintendent of the Missouri league.

He succeeds the Rev. W. C. Shupp, who resigned because of ill health following a breakdown after investigations were made of the New Year's Eve raid at Hotel Chase.

"My purpose in recommending that an attorney be employed to devote attention to procedure under enforcement laws is to provide means whereby Federal and State officers may obtain technical information," Dr. Post said yesterday. "It shall not be his function to act as a detective, who ferrets out information as to individual cases of law violation.

Watchful of Officials.

"It is not my idea that the Anti-Saloon League should exercise police powers. We have elected officials whose duty it is to see that laws are enforced. The prohibition laws come under their jurisdiction as much as does the law prohibiting murder. We are watchful to see that the officials enforce the laws with reasonable efficiency, but do not propose to help them do it."

Dr. Post said he has in mind no particular plan for checking up on officials to see whether they are performing to the satisfaction of the league. He said he would be able to speak more definitely on that subject after being in St. Louis longer.

Gus O. Nations, chief Federal prohibition enforcement officer in the St. Louis district, was in Dr. Post's office when a Post-Dispatch reporter called yesterday. Dr. Post said he had not known Nations before Wednesday, but met him soon after his arrival here. He declined to say whether he had talked over enforcement plans with Nations.

Thinks Public Awakening.

Dr. Post believes the people of St. Louis are awakening to a sense of their obligation under the Eighteenth Amendment.

"It is no longer a question of wet or dry," he said. "It is a question of law and order. People are beginning to realize that the Eighteenth amendment and the enforcement acts are as much a part of our Constitution and statute law as are any other sections and they are coming to realize it is their duty to uphold them. It should be more than a duty; it should be a pleasure.

"We should be glad of any opportunity to show that we are for the enforcement of all laws. The foundation of our Government rests upon such enforcement. I do not speak of the merits of the law itself. If there are bad laws, methods have been provided for repealing them. But while they are laws they should be obeyed."

Dr. Post does not propose to make material changes in the administration of the League's affairs in the State. He comes here with no malice towards men who may disagree with him in principle and will have no quarrel with men whose ideas are opposed to his, he said.

"But I will resent attacks upon me personally," he added. "It has been the history of our opponents that they attack persons and not ideas, but that will react on them."

ALLEN T. BURNS TO SPEAK

He Will Address Luncheon of Board of Religious Organizations.

Allen T. Burns, director of the National Information Bureau of New York will speak tomorrow afternoon at the fifth anniversary luncheon of the Board of Religious Organizations at Hotel Chase. Burns has recently returned from Russia and Greece where he studied the work of American relief organizations. For three years he was director of the Americanization study of the Carnegie Corporation.

He was president of the National Conference of Social Work in 1921, and at one time was director of the Cleveland Fuondation, the first community foundation in the United States.

Burns' subject will be, "Can the Immigrant Change His Loyalties?" One hundred and thirty women have taken tables and the luncheon will be one of the largest in the history of social service organizations in the city.

An election will be held. A ticket will be presented which was the result of balloting by units of the Protestant churches and Jewish congregations of the city.

ENGINEERS OF COUNTRY TO AID IN COAL STORAGE SURVEY

Committee Will Co-operate With U. S. Civil Commission and Department of Commerce.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Appointment of W. L. Abbott of Chicago, as chairman of a committee to make a nation-wide coal storage survey in co-operation with the United States Coal Commission and the Department of Commerce, was announced today by the Federated American Engineering Societies. Other members of the committee, which will include engineers representing all all sections of the country, will be named in the near future, said Mortimer E. Cooley, dean of the University of Michigan, president of the Federation.

Decision to undertake the survey was reached by the executive board of the American Engineering Council, executive body of the federation, at a recent meeting in Cincinnati. Chairman John Hays Hammond of the coal commission said that he and his associates were relying upon engineering methods, and asked the co-operation of the engineers of the country in the effort to solve the coal problem.

CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP COURSE

Two Meetings to Be Held in Richmond Heights.

Two mass meetings in Richmond Heights to discuss extension of the St. Louis city limits have been arranged in behalf of the Greater St. Louis Conference by Mayor J. N. Jensen of Richmond Heights. One will be in the Northern School next Thursday evening and the other in the Southern School the evening of April 26. Hugh K. Wagner, president of the Greater St. Louis Conference, and Lee Meriwether, an attorney, will be the speakers at both meetings. 1012 N. GRAND

A new small Grand Piano for $565.00
Your own terms
In business reason

The Grand Piano is the choice of musicians for the fullest expression of their art.
The public's taste is following closely the artist's preference for a "Grand"—and the Aeolian Company is fully aware of its most discriminating demands.

How this Great Sale was made possible

Quantity production lessens cost. Until now piano manufacturers have produced grand pianos in small quantities, while uprights have been made in hundreds. In order to effect this economy in price, pe have purchased from one of America's best-equipped factories as many grand pianos as we or other large piano concerns ordinarily sell in a year.

The Grand is the longed-for Instrument in every home

The Aeolian Company is now making it easy to supply that need.

Exquisitely cased in brown mahogany—this small Grand Piano is suited to the size of ninety-five per cent of the music rooms of Saint Louis homes — this instrument really takes up little more space than an upright.

When many hear of this exquisite little "Grand" and the low price we have placed upon it, they will say, "Impossible—it cannot be!" But the instruments are here. The price is made—$565. The selling begins in the morning!

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

J. F. E.—We do not attempt to answer puzzle questions.

WYOMING—You will find the information you desire in the city directory.

MISS ANXIOUS—We have never heard of a manufactured or synthetic egg.

LITTLE CHARLIE—Harry Kabakoff did not fight Battling Reddy in St. Louis, several years ago.

J. B. L. & C.—All modern ships are equipped with water-tight compartments.

A CONSTANT READER—Snow fell six different times in St. Louis in the month of March, 1923.

S. G. N.—In answering a fire alarm the Fire Department trucks make about 25 miles an hour.

O. R. L.—You will find a list of the dealers in medical books in the city or telephone directory.

HANK.—In order to secure a copyright for your song write to the Registrar of Copyrights, Washington, D. C.

J. B. T. J.—In the spring series of 1922 between the Cardinal and Browns Bottomley played first base for the Cardinals.

A CONSTANT READER.—If the letter which you intend writing is not a business letter then it would be perfectly proper to begin it "Dear Dr. ——."

J. T. W.—Nick Altrock, while at the height of his career, was with the Chicago White Sox. He has been on the Washington team for the past few years.

A. C. M.—To reach Cliff Cave by train take the Iron Mountain. If you want to hike, then follow the Le May Ferry road, it leads right to Cliff Cave, which is past the barracks.

SOLDIER.—Inquire at the Musicians' Union in the Central Trades Building for the information you desire concerning the names of companies who have a band composed of employes.

ROBT. C.—Write to the British Consul, G. E. P. Hertslet, in the Granite Building, St. Louis, for information concerning the names of preparatory schools and colleges in Ireland.

READER.—A tornado is a local storm within a radius of about 100 yards. The storm which occurred in St. Louis about March 12 covered all the central part of the country, so it cannot be termed a tornado.

A SUBSCRIBER.—The date of Easter is determined by the moon, according to an ancient custom. The rule is that Easter is always the first Sunday after the paschal full moon; i. e., the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21 (the beginning of the ecclesiastical year) and if the full moon happens upon Sunday, Easter day then is the Sunday after.

JACK J.—A continent is the largest natural land division; of greater area than an island or peninsula. Geographers usually recognize as continents, Eurasia (comprising Europe and Asia), Africa, Australia, North America and South America. The two Americas are sometimes grouped as a single continent although such a classification is hardly justifiable unless Africa is included with Eurasian continent. A sixth continent may be represented by land areas in the Antarctic region.

TOOTS.—A composition which is used for cleaning nickel and other metals is as follows: Wool grease 46 parts, by weight; fire clay, 30 parts, by weight; parafine, 5 parts, by weight; Canova wax 5 parts, by weight; cocoanut oil 10 parts, by weight; oil of mirbane, 1 part, by weight. After mixing these different ingredients, which constitute a paste, this is molded in order to give a cylindrical form, and introduced into a case so that it can be used like a stick of cosmetic.

MOON.—Following is a suggestion for a small child's birthday party: The room is decorated with quantities of gay chinese lanterns which delight the children. Under each plate place a white lace paper doily, a paper napkin, a place card and the names spelled out with alphabet crackers. Six tiny red candles with red shades are placed on the table besides a huge angel food cake, which holds four red candles. Cocoa is served in small "Buster Brown" mugs with a sandwich of whole wheat bread, then plain vanilla ice cream in ramakins. After this a Jack Horner pie is placed on the table and each child takes hold of a red ribbon which has a little metal animal on the end of it, and at a signal all pull and the peppermint patties came out. There is one for each child. When the invitations are sent out the birthday should not be mentioned.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

CONSTANT READER.—The deceased heir's share would have to go through the Probate Court. Consult a lawyer.

F. M. R.—Your question is not clear. Please write again, stating the facts, dates, etc., involved in the case which you have in mind.

G.—In our opinion you are entitled to one-half month's notice, or one-half month's pay, and should receive $75 on April 10.

IGNORAMUS.—A quitclaim deed of this kind would not affect your dower rights in his real estate. You would still have your dower rights in it.

J. E. J.—A license to sell real estate costs $25 per year from May to May. It can be obtained at the license collector's office, room 102, city hall.

WAST MARK.—If the party who sold you the note and second deed of trust made any false representations you can sue him for damages, but otherwise you have no remedy.

E. M. M.—It is not a crime to get a marriage license and not use it, but the license must be returned to the marriage license office where it was obtained within 90 days.

JUNIOR.—The note which you inclose would be a legal contract, but probably would not be a negotiable instrument in most states, including Missouri and Illinois.

ZIG ZAG.—The offer in the advertisement can be withdrawn at any time before it has been accepted. After it has been accepted it cannot be withdrawn or revoked, as the acceptance makes a binding contract.

THANK YOU.—In Missouri, Illinois and Virginia a man becomes of age at 21. In Missouri and Virginia a girl becomes of age at 21. In Illinois a girl becomes of age at 18.

DAILY READER.—In the absence of any agreement, the growing crops would belong to you, if you were compelled to vacate, subject to the landlord's lien upon them for any rent which may be due from you.

J. T.—You will have to pay her rent for the notice period, that is, for the month of April. You do not have to rent another place until May 1, and if you rent a place before that time, you cannot compel her to refund part of the rent.

FAIR AND SQUARE.—This fee of $25 is probably not exorbitant as the attorney had to prepare the petition, file it in court, and possibly do other work. However, you might ask the lawyer to reduce his fee. If he refuses to reduce it, our advice would be to pay it.

H. S.—You can sue him for damages for breach of warranty unless he sold the property to you under a quitclaim deed. Unless you sold the property by a quitclaim deed the party to whom you sold may have recourse against you. The title can be cleared by a quitclaim deed from the man's wife.

EQUAL.—1. The grounds for divorce in this State are too long to publish here, but you can read them at the Public Library. See "Revised Statutes of Missouri," volume III, section 1801. 2. The words of the marriage ceremonies are not fixed by the statutes, but are the ceremonies of various churches.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—The Blind Pension Bill was passed and appropriations to pay the pensions were made. It is expected that the pensions will be paid in July. You can obtain further information at the office of the Missouri Association for the Blind, Metropolitan Building, Grand and Olive.

A. B. C.—They cannot garnish your husband's wages or touch his tools, as this debt was contracted by you before your marriage. If you make no payments, suit will be barred in five years, that is, in June, 1924. They can claim interest on the unpaid balance at 6 per cent per year.

WIDOWER.—Report the facts to the police and ask them to put a stop to these annoyances.

H. C.—You do not have to pay the increased rent unless you agree to do so, but if you do not pay it the landlord can, if he wishes, give you one month's written notice to vacate. You could legally occupy the place at the old rent, until the end of the one month's notice to vacate.

Why not "tune-in" on our "broadcasting station, S A V E," we're on the Big Time Stuff" at the "little time" prices. All the world is a "stage." If you don't play your part you'll have no "show"; if you go around looking "down and out" you certainly won't have any "part" on any "show." Our store is a "show place" for values. For 12 years we have been fighting for the success of "the place you buy clothes"; gives you better "run for your dough"; 1923 will be the greatest in our history. Such prices: A suit or gabardine coat at $22.98 and $19.98; 25 to 35 per cent saving. What the drummers' sample shop means to you. These fine garments are made by manufacturers for display or modeling purposes; they are made better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount. This policy enables us to save you money. All we ask is to "go shopping around" first and come here last. Buy more, pay less. POOR reception on your radio set usually can be traced to some defect in the aerial, which may be too high or too low, or numerous other causes. The Aerialot is scientifically constructed to eliminate these troubles. Distant stations have been heard with an Aerialot when a seemingly well constructed aerial failed. It plugs in the lamp socket, provided with wire and lug, ready to connect with the set. Price $1.25; if your dealer does not sell them, send direct to the U. G. I. Co., Radio Engineers and Manufacturers, 1105 Pine st., St. Louis, Mo.

PANZER WOULD BAR AUTO PARKING IN DOWNTOWN AREAS

Recommends Ordinances to Relieve Congestion Along Certain Streets, Now Held Menace to Property.

FIRE CHIEF COMPLAINS OF TRAFFIC "RUSH"

Annual Report Shows Decrease of $1,456,614 in Fire Losses in St. Louis for Last Fiscal Year.

Passage of ordinances prohibiting parking of automobiles on certain streets in the downtown district, where present congestion is declared a menace to fire protection, is recommended by Fire Chief Panzer in his report for the fiscal year, submitted yesterday to the Director of Public Safety.

The report shows the fire loss during the fiscal year ending April 9 was $2,530,081, a decrease of $1,456,614 from the fire loss of $3,986,695 in the previous fiscal year.

Panzer stated the present congestion along Washington and Lucas avenue from Fourth street to Twelfth boulevard where many loft buildings are located, "is a menace to life and property." He said cars are parked in such close lines that it would be impossible for the Fire Department to utilize its aerial equipment for fire fighting and rescue work, if a fire occurred in a large loft building during business hours. Most of the machines are locked and cannot be moved, he said. Elimination of parking in that section was urged.

Sees Menace to Workers.

"Some day when there is a big fire in this section, with a heavy loss of life and large property damage, something will be done to remedy this," Chief Panzer said. "In some of the loft buildings there are 100 to 500 employes, most of them women. If a bad fire starts in a lower floor, cutting off the exits, what chance has the department to meet the situation, even with its modern equipment, when the streets are blocked through the parking conditions now existing."

A recent proposal by city officials to eliminate parking of automobiles in the congested district, from Fourth street to Twelfth boulevard, and Market street to Washington avenue, was abandoned after strong opposition was raised by merchants.

Auto Drivers Hinder Department.

Chief Panzer also urged the passage of an ordinance to prevent traffic movement or parking of cars within 1000 feet of a point where the department is fighting a fire. It would not apply to cars parked at the time the fire alarm was sounded. "People will rush to a fire and get themselves and their automobiles in the way," Chief Panzer said "and criticise the methods of the Fire Department, when they had better be at home eliminating the fire hazards they have in their own homes."

Stricter enforcement of ordinances requiring vehicles to draw up to the right-hand curb when fire trucks are approaching, and prohibiting the driving of vehicles across lines of hose laid in the street, was recommended in the report. Chief Panzer said the companies have great difficulty in answering alarms because vehicle drivers fail to stop.

During the fiscal year the various companies responded to 5655 alarms, an increase of 720 over the previous fiscal year. A total of 482 false alarms was received, an increase of 50.

Dwelling Fires in Majority.

Principal causes of fires during the year were enumerated by Chief Panzer as follows: Rubbish, 420; sparks from chimneys, 457; defective flue, 134; defective wiring, 155; defective wiring in automobiles, 112; hot ashes, 183; burning chimneys, 127; careless handling of matches, 74; cigars and cigarettes, 66; overheated furnaces and stoves, 138.

The report shows the cause of 913 fires was not determined. The most novel cause of an alarm listed was the recent mistake of a woman who pulled the hook on a fire alarm box when she wanted to mail a letter, thinking the box was a mail box.

Dwellings led in the classification of fires with 1271. Others included 69 apartments, 15 cleaning and dyeing shops, 184 garages, 162 rooming houses, 435 sheds, 297 tenements, 48 grocery stores, 39 restaurants. Fourteen alarms resulted from women's dresses being ignited.

Chief Panzer called attention to the passage of the $87,372,500 bond issue last February, providing $772,500 for completing motorization of the Fire Department, reconstruction of nine engine houses and building a new engine house in Southampton.

The department now is 75 per cent motorized, Chief Panzer said, and only 95 horses are being used. The bond issue will provide $487,000 for 30 pumping engines, six aerial trucks, three city service trucks and 10 district chiefs' cars.

FIRST OF LABOR BANKS IN NEW YORK OPENS

At Close of First Day's Business, 1300 Persons Had Deposited Total of $550,000.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14. — The Amalgamated Bank, the first of several labor banks projected for New York to open its doors, began business today at 103 East Fourteenth street. At the close of business approximately 1300 persons had made deposits of about $550,000, which with the paid in capital and surplus of $300,000, gave it, at the close of the first day's business, total resources of about $850,000.

The opening of the bank was a gala event for the 50,000 members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, in whom ownership of the bank rests, some 20,000 of this number visiting the banking offices during the day. Of this number about 500 made deposits, 800 accounts representing $284,000 having been placed on the books in advance of the formal opening.

First on the list of depositors was a little child, Miss Delia Potofsky, the 3½-year-old daughter of Jacob S. Potofsky, vice president of the bank and assistant secretary of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

The bank was formally opened in the afternoon by Sidney Hillman, president of the Clothing Workers, who dedicated the bank "to service and not to private profit," and Raymond L. Redheffer, president of the bank and of the Amalgamated Bank of Chicago as well, who predicted that by Jan. 1 it would have deposits in excess of $2,000,000.

As outlined in its prospectus to depositors, the bank will specialize in foreign exchange, steamship tickets and travelers' checks and letters of credit in addition to a general loaning business with individuals and organizations, assist its depositors in investments and in income tax matters.

The bank, chartered by the State of New York, has a paid up capital of $200,000 and a paid in surplus of $100,000. On this capital dividends are limited to 10 per cent, with a provision that profits in excess of that sum may be divided with depositors. On time deposits the bank agrees to pay 4 per cent.

The directors of the bank are: Herman Blumberg, manager of the New York Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers; August Bellanca, of the Unions' General Executive Board; Joseph Gold of the Children's Board, Sidney Hillman, president of the union; Representative F. H. Laguardia, Max Lowenthal of counsel, Jacob S. Potofsky, R. L. Redheffer, Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary of the union; Murray Weinstein, manager of the Clothing Cutters' Union, and Max Zaritzky, president of the Union Cloth, Hat and Cap Makers' Union.

MATHILDE M'CORMICK MARRIED SECRETLY

Wedding of Heiress and Riding Master Took Place Thursday in Dingy London Office.

By Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923.)

LONDON, April 14.—The marriage of Miss Mathilde McCormick, daughter of Harold McCormick of Chicago, to Max Oser took place secretly on Thursday and news of it was confirmed today.

The ceremony was performed in the dingy registry office at Lewisham, an unfashionable London suburb, before only the two witnesses required by law, a pair of minor officers requisitioned for the purpose. According to a hint Oser dropped, they left at once for Scotland for their honeymoon.

Oser, who described himself officially as a Major in the Swiss army and son of a deceased riding master, came to London three weeks ago and took lodgings at $5 a week with Mrs. Mary Martin in Ardgowan road, who says of him:

"He seemed a quiet, gentlemanly young man, with no more money than most of us. He used to come home every night in a tram car and never used taxis. He used to get up early, have breakfast, spend the day out and return about 11."

Miss McCormick arrived here in December and went to the Metropole Hotel, where she gave a fictitious name. An American recognized her from a photograph and asked her if she were not Miss McCormick. She denied it and that night left for a smaller hotel. Two days later she went to stay with her friend, Julia Mangold, in her flat at 3 Old Court Mansions, Kensington. She has since avoided places where she might have been recognized, even riding in the unfashionable suburban parks.

Tuesday Oser had fulfilled the legal requirements of 15 days' residence in a district before marriage. He went to the Lewisham Registry office and gave notice of his intention to marry, required a day before the ceremony.

Thursday Frank Belham, the registrar, married them in a few sentences, signed the register and left, the whole ceremony taking less than five minutes. Belham says Miss McCormick wore a brown traveling costume. Oser he describes as a small dapper man of military appearance, dressed in a light suit and overcoat and gray felt hat. The Post-Dispatch had obtained a certified copy of the marriage certificate, which describes the principals as follows:

"Name and surname, Guillaume Max Oser; age, 45; condition, bachelor; rank or profession, Major in the Swiss army; residence at time of marriage, 127 Ardgowan road, Hithergreen; father's name and surname, Johan Jakob Rudolph Oser, deceased; rank or profession of father, riding master.

"Name and surname, Mathilde M'Cormick; age, 18; condition, spinster of independent means; residence, 3 Old Court Mansions, Kensington; father, Harold Fowler McCormick, agricultural machinery manufacturer."

"BELVEDERE JOE" CONVERTS SHED ON PLACE INTO INN

Jazz Band Plays and Meats Are Barbecued 50 Feet From Garden Padlocked for Year.

Fifty feet away from his "Venetian Garden," on the Olive Street road, St. Louis County, which has been ordered closed for a year for violation of the Volstead law, "Belvedere Joe" Gonnella last night opened "Capri Inn" in a converted automobile shed.

Mrs. Gonnella presided at the cash register and was reminded from time to time by her considerate husband that she was the proprietor. "I'm only the cook," Joe himself, said, as he attended the cooking chickens and meats. "The wife's the proprietor. The injunction's against me; not against her."

Federal officials hold that Gonnella violated the injunction closing his place by opening the inn. Following a conference yesterday with Federal Judge Faris, Assistant Attorney-General Dyott, in charge here of prosecutions for violation of the national prohibition law, announced that the injunction declaring Gonnella's place a nuisance and ordering it closed for a year covered the entire grounds and would operate against Capri Inn.

The documents filed in court give the value of the estate as "over $10,000," all in personal property.

Boisaubin last night declined to discuss his legacy or tell who the testator was.

CORNERSTONE OF ST. LOUIS U. HIGH SCHOOL TO BE LAID TODAY

Archbishop Glennon Will Preside at Ceremonies and the Rev. P. P. Crane Will Speak.

The school will be ready for classes in the autumn. J. W. Caldewey, the contractor, estimates that 300 workmen will be employed on the building for the next six months. Approximately 1,500,000 bricks, 14 carloads of lumber and 22,000 bags of cement will be used.

GOLTRA'S RIGHT TO BRING SUIT AGAINST GOVERNMENT DENIED

Answer Filed by Col. Ashburn's Counsel in Fleet Seizure Challenges Court's Authority.

When Col. T. Q. Ashburn seized the Goltra river fleet on March [illegible], he was not acting as Col. Ashburn, but as the chief of inland and coastwise waterways of the War Department, upon order of an executive of the United States Government, the acting Secretary of War, Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis.

Hence the injunction proceeding brought by Edward F. Goltra against Col. Ashburn, was an action against an agent of the Government or, in reality, the Government itself. The Government is not subject to suit without its consent. It has not consented to Goltra's suit and hence the Federal Court here has no jurisdiction to give the relief Goltra prays—an injunction against the fleet's seizure.

This is the argument of an answer filed in the Federal Court yesterday by Lon O. Hocker, an attorney, in behalf of Col. Ashburn. He requested to be heard in oral argument upon the law points raised and Judge Faris tentatively set next Saturday for the argument.

HOLLYWOOD RE-VISITED

Number FIVE

By KARL K. KITCHEN

THE Fairbanks "lot" is very much like the Cafe de la Paix in this respect: If you hang around there long enough you will meet everyone worth meeting in Hollywood. For the "studio grounds" of Douglas Fairbanks' film factory is the one place in the capital of Moronia to which nearly all the celebrities of the gelatine drama gravitate sooner or later.

At noontime or late in the afternoon, if they have been working, the various stars of the celluloid firmament drop around to gossip and play with Doug. Since he has undertaken to champion the so-called independent stars against the Film Trust methods of Will H. Hays, his athletic field has been more like a convention field than a studio "lot." For it is a fact that Fairbanks is more interested in trying to "revolutionize" the picture industry than anything—except an athletic contest in which he can take part.

Doug will drop any business conversation with stars or bankers to put the shot a little further or jump a little higher than the last man. But that is another story. Having spent many afternoons on the Fairbanks "lot," it is not surprising that I met practically everyone in Moronia. In fact, the only celebrity of the celluloid circle I didn't encounter there was Joe Martin, the marvelous chimpanzee. Being kept in a cage at Universal City barred him, so to speak, from visiting Doug. But I made up for that deficiency by meeting Jackie Coogan.

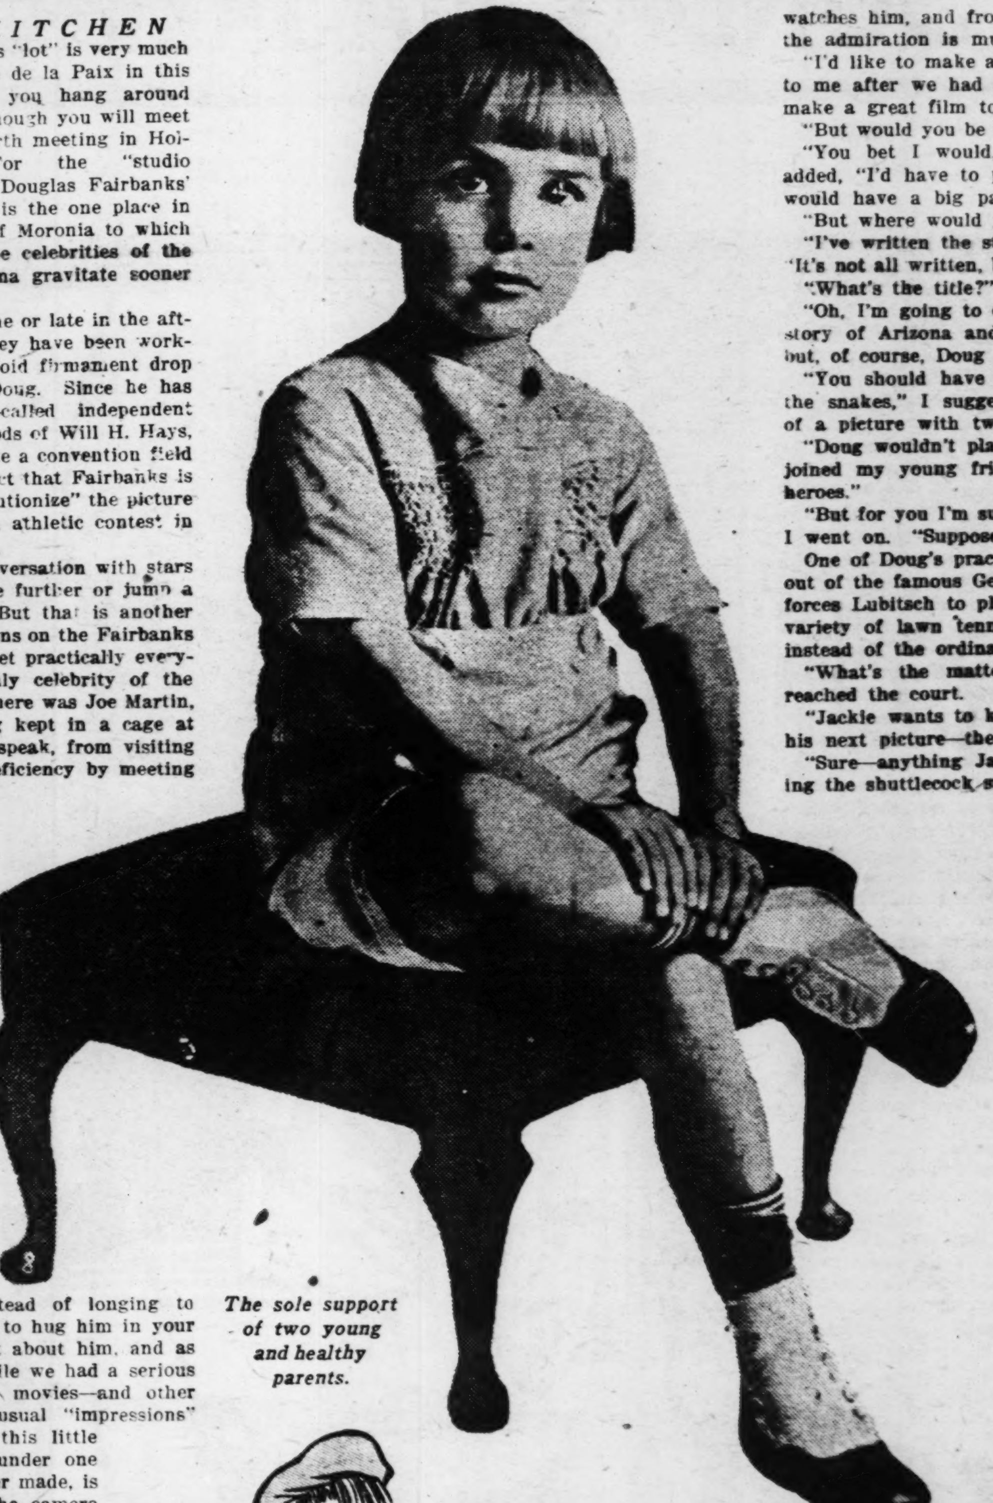
If I assert that Joe Martin is my favorite film actor, I have many reasons to justify my preference. One of these reasons is that I regard him as the most intelligent actor I have ever met. Another is that he is unquestionably the most modest. Still another—and the most important—is that I like him better than any of his rivals.

But next to Joe Martin I like Jackie Coogan. I don't think Jackie Coogan is a greater artist than either Strongheart or Teddy, but off the screen, or "in the flesh," as they say in Hollywood, he is decidedly more entertaining.

The difference between Jackie Coogan and the average child prodigy is that instead of longing to wring his neck you have a desire to hug him in your arms. At least that is how I felt about him, and as he sat in my lap for an hour, while we had a serious heart-to-heart talk about the movies—and other things—I have more than the usual "impressions" about him. In the first place, this little 8-year-old boy, who is working under one of the biggest movie contracts ever made, is living proof that acting before the camera is an intuitive art. And one only has to see him working before the camera to realize how ridiculous grownup film actors are when they assert that they have to "feel" their parts. Jackie never "feels" the emotion he portrays before the camera. Even in scenes in which he has to cry real tears, he is smiling and laughing the instant his director shouts "cut." And he doesn't have to have an orchestra play sad music for his emotional scenes—or any of the other bunk of the highly paid screen screams who talk about their "art" seriously. In short, Jackie is what a lot of film stars are not—a real person. This amazing child, who won world fame before he was 6, can do three things at the same time. In addition to acting before the camera (which is more than many film stars do) he can count the turns of the camera and carry on a conversation with a visitor. And his count of the turns is always accurate. On the occasion I saw him perform this feat the camera man tried to fool him, but without success. Every time he caught the count.

I have seen nearly all the great stars at work before the camera, from Pola Negri to "Bull" Montana, but Jackie is about the only one who doesn't "kid" himself about the art of acting. I say "about the only one," for Charlie Chaplin, who discovered Jackie, does not take himself seriously. As he himself told me, picture making is not so much a wedding of art and business as it is a divorce of art and common sense. So the fact that Charlie regards Jackie as one of the greatest personages on the film coast is not without significance.

Jackie and Chaplin are fast, or rather, as Charlie declares, fast and loose friends. But Doug is his real idol. Because of his athletic prowess Jackie adores Douglas Fairbanks, and whenever he can get away from his home or his work he motors over to the Fairbanks "lot" to pay homage to Doug. His great brown eyes fairly beam with admiration when he watches him, and from what I have seen of his idol, the admiration is mutual.



The sole support of two young and healthy parents.

"I'd like to make a picture with Doug," said Jackie to me after we had settled down for a talk. "We'd make a great film together."

"But would you be willing to star with Doug?"

"You bet I would," he replied. "Of course," he added, "I'd have to play the leading part, but Doug would have a big part, too."

"But where would you find a story?" I protested.

"I've written the story,' he came back immediately. 'It's not all written, but I've got it in my mind."

"What's the title?" I asked.

"Oh, I'm going to call it 'The Gila Monster'—it's a story of Arizona and lots of snakes. I'm the hero, but, of course, Doug would play a hero, too.

"You should have him play the villain or one of the snakes," I suggested, for I didn't like the idea of a picture with two heroes.

"Doug wouldn't play a villain—he's too smart," rejoined my young friend. "Doug only likes to play heroes."

"But for you I'm sure he'd play anything you wish," I went on. "Suppose we ask him."

One of Doug's practical jokes is to make an athlete out of the famous German director, and every day he forces Lubitsch to play several sets of Badminton, a variety of lawn tennis which employs a shuttlecock instead of the ordinary tennis ball.

"What's the matter, Jackie?" he called as we reached the court.

"Jackie wants to know if you'll play the villain in his next picture—the one he's writing?" I explained.

"Sure—anything Jackie says," he called back, giving the shuttlecock such a swat that Lubitsch had to chase it out of bounds.

"Of course, he says he will—but I know he wouldn't," said Jackie, as I turned to him, triumphantly. "It wouldn't be good business."

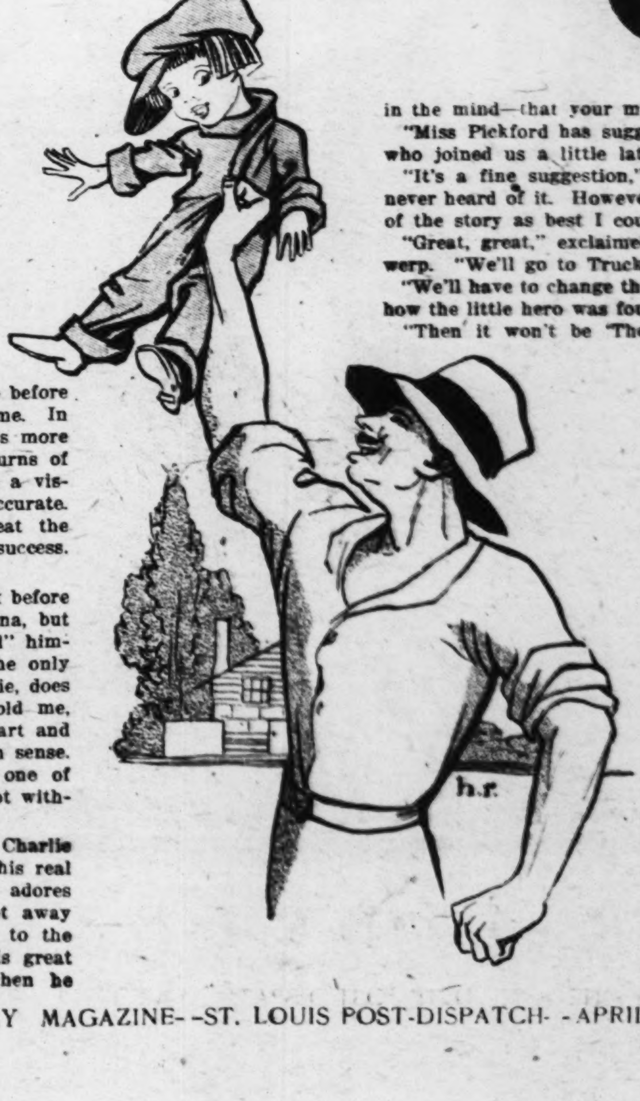
Which tempted me to remark, "Jackie, you've drooled a bibful." But I refrained—with an effort.

It was a sad blow to Jackie that his father didn't sign up with Fairbanks instead of the Metro company. Fairbanks offered him an enormous salary—$20,000 a week in fact—but the Metro company offered more and a bonus of half a million to boot. So Coogan pere signed with Marcus Loew.

"I'd rather work for Doug for 1 cent a week than for anyone else for all the money in the world," Jackie confided to me, when we found a secluded spot.

"But you would only have 52 cents at the end of the year," I pointed out.

"That's so—but think what a wonderful athlete I'd be," he answered. "Doug told me I can become an athlete if I'll only put my mind to it—he says it's all in the mind—that your muscles only do what your mind tells them to do."



"Miss Pickford has suggested that we make 'A Dog of Flanders,'" said Coogan, who joined us a little later. "What do you think of it?"

"It's a fine suggestion," I replied, for I saw by Jackie's troubled brow he had never heard of it. However, neither had the father, and so I explained the plot of the story as best I could.

"Great, great," exclaimed Coogan pere, when I told of the cold and ice in Antwerp. "We'll go to Truckee and get the snow scenes."

"We'll have to change the ending," said the practical Jackie, when I told him how the little hero was found dead beside his faithful dog.

"Then it won't be 'The Dog of Flanders,'" I protested. "The whole point of the story will be lost."

"Oh, we probably won't even use the title," said Coogan pere. Most people don't know what Flanders are—they'd get the idea it was a war picture. We'll put on a better title and we'll have a rich uncle adopt the kid, so the picture will have a happy ending."

"It's all right with me," I replied. "I won't have to see it. But I don't think you can improve on a classic like 'A Dog of Flanders.'"

This didn't make much of a hit with Coogan pere, but in justice to him it must be said that he didn't try to dance his way out of the situation, as many "hoofers" try to do when they are up against an argument. He frankly admitted that he had never heard of Ouida, the Cathedral at Antwerp or any of the other features of the famous story.

"It's a great hunch," he continued, blithely. "I'll cable the author for the picture rights tomorrow."

Of course, Coogan fils did not know that Ouida has been dead these many years, but he at least kept quiet.

From which it may be gathered why I esteem Joe Martin so highly. He does not try to rewrite the classics.

And Joe Martin has an edge on some of the other movie actors and actresses. After he has been out on the lot acting like a monkey for half a day he doesn't come back all puffed up to assure that what he has been doing is "art."

THE MARRIAGE BARGAIN.

PERFECT marriages may or may not be made in heaven, but I do know, after extended residence among them, that they are made in Palestine among the orthodox Hebrews. If we hope to attain perfect marriage, we may more wisely look back to their ancient ritual than to any radical theorizing of the future.

For fear this may sound too prejudiced or as though I were at the head of some Semitic movement, I must explain that I am half Jewish and half Scotch, born in Scotland, the daughter of a Presbyterian minister, educated in England, American resident by choice, member of the Episcopal Church and thoroughly imbued with the conviction that the Anglo-Saxons are the finest people on earth. But after living many years in the Near East for the purpose of studying the real meanings of the Old Testament, and learning while there the customs and ideals and language of Palestine, I again affirm that they know perfect marriage and that we do not.

Everyone knows that marriage in America is in an awful state. One out of every nine of our marriages reaches the divorce courts. This number includes only those alliances where conditions have become so bad that separation is necessary. I have been told that the average marriage where divorce is sought lasts about five years. Figuring from such statistics one can easily calculate that the number of marriages that are failures is so large that it is thoroughly alarming. In Palestine, divorce, while more easy to obtain than it is even in Nevada, is so rare that it is practically nonexistent. I believe the failure on our side and the success on theirs lies with very basic things.

English-speaking peoples, if among adults, regard marriage either as a joke or a commonplace; among their children as something to be glossed over with whispers, but never under any circumstances to be explained. In Palestine, the Hebrews, and in this instance I am not speaking of the city Hebrews, contaminated by contacts with industry and the worst of Eastern life, but the Hebrews of the country who still live close to the soil, guided in their daily life by the laws descended from Moses, have a radically different attitude. To them perfect marriage is the highest attainment of human life. It must be carefully planned for, arranged and carried through to success. In the mating of two of their people there is no haphazard, casual quality. It becomes, in fact, a very sacrament.

It begins with the mothers of the race. They have a saying, "A mother can only bear her son. It takes another woman to make a man of him." Consider the woman trained with this ideal in mind and contrast her with the average jealous mother-in-law of our civilization. This mother has recognized all her life that she must give her boy into another woman's keeping and when the time of his maturity and mating comes, instead of feeling any antagonism, she radiates only joy and gladness. She has a practical certainty that the union will succeed, for she knows that the girl selected for him has been educated all her life for this very relationship.

She trusts to the good judgment and wisdom of the matchmaker who has arranged the betrothal. These matchmakers, usually well known and sagacious women of the community, have talked to her son. They have asked him his ideal in womanly beauty, knowing in their ancient wisdom, in a way which we are only just beginning to understand, that these mental pictures of youth's adolescent dreams, have the greatest influence on his love life. He wants, perhaps, a slender little girl with black hair. The matchmaker searches her out and, presenting her to the boy, is able with a few skilled words to show him this is the very girl he has always visioned.

Before I lived in the Orient, this custom seemed wrong to me. I felt our own custom of letting the boy and girl find each other was wiser. But when one studies more deeply and realizes how many of our marriages are drifted into, how many are the results of propinquity, how many are products of boredom, I doubt if there is any more love manifest than in the Eastern one where at least the physical ideal is approximated. Also, the presence of the matchmaker does not mean that there are no love marriages in Palestine. Often the boy selects the girl he has known and adored since childhood. The matchmaker's greatest mission is where the boy knows no girls, or the girl is unknown to the young men.

Having been planning and working for his marriage since he was 13 or 14, the young Jewish boy has amassed quite a gift of money for his chosen bride. He sends a third of it to her father or brothers, so that if their marriage should not succeed, she would still be protected. It is, obviously, superior to our method of alimony, that money hatefully exchanged when love is long past. The rest of the money is his wedding gift to the bride.

Every girl in Palestine is trained to be a wife. She has a complete knowledge of and reverence of four things: her heart, mind, soul and body. So, on his part, has the boy. The young people of Western civilization have been trained to know a very little about the first three—nothing that they ought to know about the fourth. Where most of our girls are taught that sex is a thing to be endured, the Eastern girl regards it as a gift from God. She cares for her body with a sort of fine respect. It is to her a sacred blessing that someday she may bear her husband sons. Through the symbolism of the tabernacle, which represents the maternal aspect of the Deity and the motherhood of the nation, she has learned all that our most advanced teachers of heredity and eugenics could wish taught to their youth. All this has been given to her in the language which most readily appealed to her idealism. Briefly, she goes into marriage with her eyes wide open. She knows all about its pitfalls and its potentialities. She is happy and secure in the knowledge also, that her husband has been similarly trained.

We have in America one state that demands a doctor's certificate from the contracting parties before marriage. Other states are agitating the question. The Orient has, I think, a better way. At any rate, it is more beautiful.

The bride is taken by the mother and sisters of the bridegroom to the baths. Do not think that it is an occasion of prying eyes and harsh words. It is rather a ritual of mutual trust and love. The little bride is serene. She knows her betrothed is going through the same ceremony with her male relatives. The purity of both their lives has been protected by their knowledge. They have been taught in human terms.

In practically every case are these marriages perfect. In the one or two rare instances where it fails, however, the couple go to the rabbi who married them. If, after talking it over, he finds reconciliation is impossible between them, he cuts their wedding parchment in a certain way, and they are free, to marry again in a week's time, should they so wish.

I am convinced that it is their true and yet idealistic teaching of social hygiene that makes marriage in the Holy Land perfect. We, of the Christian world, have made a fiasco of teaching our manhood purity. The statistics of the war draft revealed that to be true. The report of the Lambeth Conference, an international gathering of churchmen, admitted that parents should be the teachers of their children, but that they did not know how; that clergymen should be the teachers of their congregations, but that they did not know how; that seminaries should teach the clergy, but that they did not know how. We have for many generations muddled along. The ethics of Christ were built upon the teaching of Moses and the prophets. There in their beauty and honesty as to the facts of human life we could find, as have these people of Palestine, the solution of our greatest social problem.

A Wife's Clothes and A Husband's Income; The Line

Lengths to which some women will go to indulge passion for dress—What a famous bachelor judge said of one wife's expenditures — Costly ambition to be the best gowned woman in London on credit—American fashion expert tells how a woman may be fashionably dressed for all seasons on $5000 a year—The change that comes when a husband's income reaches $4000 ::

By SARAH COMSTOCK.

"One must wear good clothes, you know, if one hopes to be entertained."

IS IT true, as a bachelor Judge of London has recently charged, that "woman's dress has been the calamity of the ages"?

Is it true, as Victor Hugo long ago said, that "fashions have wrought more mischief than revolutions"?

Is it true, as a teacher of economics recently observed, that "the American woman's reckless wasting on dress is at the bottom of hundreds, probably thousands, of shocking family situations of bankruptcy and debt"?

Is it true, as a social worker has stated, that "the working girl will go without her dinner any number of times rather than go without her new Egyptian silk jaquette blouse"?

Is it true, in short, that, whether rich or poor, haughty or humble, young or old, beautiful or plain, woman will have her glad rags, even if it keeps her starving and drives her husband to the poorhouse? That she wrecks her own health, if necessary, wrecks her domestic happiness, wrecks her husband's honor and fortune, wrecks everything in sight for the sake of these same glad rags? A bachelor Judge of London, a most eminent person and one to be heeded, has just given one woman such a raking over the coals for her lavish dressing that he has kept everybody busy discussing the matter on both sides of the ocean. The lecture which Sir Henry McCardie, this famous Judge, delivered to the wife of Capt. J. V. Nash, who aspired to be the best-dressed woman in London, has reverberated from shore to shore and supplied the text for breakfast table squabbles, curtain lectures and public wrangles. Does woman deserve it—or is it just another abuse heaped upon our long-suffering sex?

Mrs. Nash was an American woman of marrying tendencies, Capt. Nash being her third husband. His income, the evidence in the case showed, was about $4700 a year, so she could hardly be accused of marrying him for his money. Perhaps she married him for his credit—subsequent events might bear out this theory. At any rate, one must perforce admire the grit and gameness of any woman who sets out to be the best-dressed of a great metropolis when her husband draws only $4700 a year. It is of the nature of heroism, it is the spirit of battling against overwhelming odds, it is one with that of the youth-who-bore-mid-snow-and-ice-a-banner-with-this-strange-device. St. George slew the Dragon; Casabianca stuck to the burning deck; Mrs. Nash dressed better than any other woman in London on a $4700-a-year husband. One's hat comes off.

She might have gone on being the best dressed—ordering shoes by the dozen pairs, scorning hosiery at less than $6, and changing about among 50 evening gowns—had not some of those cruel-hearted dressmakers of Paris interrupted her glorious career. They are so selfish and hard. They were gradually growing less and less eager to fill her orders when she would arrive for a new invoice and lightly and pleasantly say: "Just charge it to Capt. Nash." Somehow, they didn't seem to relish charging it to Capt. Nash. And after awhile they began to ask for their money—rather peremptorily, too. And at last the Callot Soeurs of Paris brought suit against Capt. J. V. Nash for gowns furnished to his wife.

For a long time, it appeared, Capt. Nash had no idea how many gowns his wife possessed. He knew that she always looked very charming, and there were bills now and then, but at first they didn't become urgent, and he was said to be very much surprised when he learned about the 50 evening gowns. "But, my dear, that is almost one a week for the year," he is said to have exclaimed. "It isn't done in the best society. It is like an American shop girl."

Her reply to this is not recorded, but it is generally known that the Paris firm sued for 657 pounds, somewhat over $3000, and that the case came to court, and that when it was announced that Justice McCardie was to preside, lively times were looked for, for this Justice has a tongue that does not hesitate to say what it believes needs to be said. He it was who once gave a famous pronouncement on the monetary value of a wife; and discussed the difference between condonation and forgiveness in marriage, to set tongues wagging for many a day. It was a foregone conclusion that his remarks on Mrs. Nash's gowns would be worth hearing.

They were. Whether true or not, they were stimulating, to say the least. His verdict was in favor of Capt. Nash, who had forbidden his wife to pledge his credit after learning of her extravagance; the Judge deciding that a wife has no right to pledge a husband's credit except for necessaries. He did not, however, cleanse him of all blame in not restraining his wife more forcibly. But he decided that he need not be held responsible for the 657 pounds.

But when this bachelor Judge came to Mrs. Nash! First he read with dreadful deliberateness a list of the items:

Evening dress, 2450 francs; crystalline evening dress, 4600 francs; another evening dress, 3700 francs; another, 3800 francs; fur stole, 15,000 francs; [illegible] dress, 2800 francs.

"These," said the Judge, "are a mere fraction of the costume debts of Mrs. Nash. She was insatiable. She sought to shine in the less intellectual section of society, where a woman's worth is measured by the frequency with which she changes her gowns. Self-decoration was her vision, her aim and her creed.

"I observe no record of an act of beneficence," he went on, "no trace of unselfish aid to others. She computed her enjoyment of life by reckless indulgence of her extravagance. Her husband's income did not exceed 1000 pounds a year, but she annually spent from two to three thousand pounds on dress.

"The dress of woman has ever been a mystery; sometimes, too, it has been the calamity of the ages."

"There is no thought of that horrid old charge account when one is having a good time."

"On the dance floor, my dear, a woman is as young as she dresses."

The calamity of the ages! That's a rather overwhelming epithet to apply to a mere handful of silken gauze, a mere piffle of cloth of silver. And when it takes only a scrap of material and it's just whipped together in no time—made so simply—no trimming at all except some chiffon and that bunch of jeweled roses at the belt. Calamity of the ages, forsooth!

As for America—on what amount can a woman dress, assuming that she is to mingle in more or less fashionable society, to do a reasonable amount of entertaining and being entertained, to attend the opera each season, if she is a New Yorker (or whatever corresponds to it in other cities), to take a run, perhaps, to Palm Beach every winter, and to summer in some first-class resort? What must your clothes cost if you are to be "in it" and at the same time intend to make your income go as far as possible? Mrs. Nash, we are told, spent in round numbers from ten to fifteen thousand dollars, buying in Paris and London; the same amount is supposed to go farther there than here, and yet Harry Collins, who ought to be authority if anybody is on the dress extravagances of our American women, goes on record as saying that a woman in society here can be very well dressed on only $6000 a year; and that many such a woman does it.

"Of course, it can't be done if her taste is for the conspicuous," observed Mr. Collins, disdainfully. "The woman who chooses glaring patterns must be constantly changing or everybody will know her by that enormous red rose figure, or by the Egyptian motif in green and purple. But the well-dressed woman is always the conservatively dressed. She is always the one who lays more stress on personality than on clothes. And she can wear the same gown many times and always be charming in it, for her standard is not how many gowns, but how beautiful.

"How can it be done on five thousand a year? I'll show you. Start with the spring-and-summer outfit. She will want an excellent, plain, tailored suit made to measure, which can be had for $150—possibly $125. With this will be three blouses, at $25 or thereabouts. For street wear on warmer days she can have a silk gown, plainly made and of very good material—and the same hat, shoes and stockings can be worn with both of these costumes—say $185 for the lot. A woman does like a change of hats, though—no wonder, for it freshens any costume miraculously. Let her purchase three hats, then, for $100—or say $30 apiece.

"One lace evening gown, which is correctly worn in the afternoon for dressy occasions, will carry her through, with a few simple chiffon gowns to back it up. These latter can be had for about $85 each, and she may allow $150 for one dark chiffon—navy, brown or black—for handsomer wear. It will be suitable for either luncheon, dinner or the theater. Now, with a topcoat of either cloth or the popular silk matellasse, she is equipped for any probable spring occasion. Allow $200 for the topcoat.

"These same costumes will carry her through the summer with the addition of her sports wear. She should allow $500 for the complete sports outlay. She will need two or three sweaters at $20 or $30; two or three sports skirts at the same price, and two crocheted suits, one of silk and the other of wool, at $65.

"You have now carried a very well dressed woman through about a third of her year's outfit, and have spent, approximately, $1500. Figure it out for yourself

THE ONLY ONE IN CAPTIVITY

ONE of the latest discoveries, or rather disclosures, is that Barnum—P. T.—was the father of the reversed horse joke. Nowadays nearly everybody who knows a horse from a whatnot can call the turn on a practical joker who says:

"I've got a great natural curiosity in my stables. Come in and I'll show you a horse with his tail where his head ought to be."

Of course, you don't "bite." You merely say: "I'm on—you've turned your horse around in his stall, so that his tail's in the manger."

But, no matter how wise you are to jokes of that sort, it's 10 to 1 that you don't know who originated the reversed horse chestnut, so to call it. Well, from now on give due credit to P. T. Barnum, who was the world's champion practical joker for half a century. It was about 75 years ago that Barnum sprung that one on the innocent public. He was running Barnum's American Museum in New York City, opposite the old Astor House, long before he became a circus operator.

Barnum was a flamboyant advertiser. He origi-Connecticut Yankee, he had mixed much with humanity of all sorts and conditions in many states. He knew perhaps as much about human nature as did any man or woman then alive. He turned his knowledge of human nature to his own pecuniary profit by giving human nature what it sought by way of satisfying its curiosity.

Barnum was a flambuoyant advertiser. He originated the exaggerated type of advertising now employed largely by the movie industry. He was the father of the innumerable tribe of press agents. He was the originator of more humbugs than any other showman that ever lived; and he gloried in his reputation as such, for his humbugs never hurt anybody. To the contrary, they always gave pleasure of an innocent sort.

Barnum was highly religious! Perhaps that's another thing about him you didn't know. Now and then he preached "lay sermons." Frequently he lectured on temperance, urging nonuse of alcoholic beverages; and he was one of the pioneer prohibitionists, an out-and-outer. Having signed the pledge himself, he induced many other men to sign it. In religion he was a Universalist. In certain essentials his religion, like everything else about Barnum, was different from the ordinary. For one thing, he found a way of reconciling with his conscience his lifelong practice of fooling the people by putting over noninjurious humbugs for their pleasure.

"People like to be humbugged," said Barnum, and that he stated but a simple fact was proved by the prodigious success of his own long career in humbuggery.

There was, for instance, that horse joke. Barnum was always thinking up new and startling ideas for his American Museum. He thought up the idea of advertising that he had acquired a horse with its tail where its head ought to be. In those days physical "freaks" attracted more attention than they do now. The New York public rushed to the museum at Broadway and Ann street to see this extraordinary horse. Country people visiting the city rushed thither also. Thousands paid the fee and enjoyed the fun. They told their friends, as Barnum knew they would, that the horse was well worth seeing. Their friends rushed to see it. Barnum made a lot of money out of his practical joke and nobody was hurt—everybody, in fact, save perhaps a hopeless grouch here and there, enjoyed a laugh that was good for the soul.

This revelation is but an incident in the book just published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., entitled simply and sufficiently, "Barnum," and written by M. R. Warner. The big book is crowded with stories that show how Barnum put himself over, sold Barnum to the public, made Barnum a sort of national institution.

Born in 1810, in a small town in Connecticut, Phineas Taylor Barnum knew what it was to be poor, long before he got rich. He was 15 when his father died insolvent. The boy had to work in a store for money to buy shoes to attend the funeral. When he was [illegible] he got married, Charity Hallett being the bride's name. Already he had been in business for himself, running a store, founding and editing a newspaper, The Herald of Freedom, and doing other things "callated," as they still say in Connecticut, to make ends meet.

But Barnum had to serve a long apprenticeship to business before he achieved financial success. He went broke several times, was on his uppers, worked for $4 a week writing advertisements in New York when he was past 30, and it was not until he managed to buy the American Museum on credit, when he was [illegible], and give it his name and his peculiar ability of initiative, that he finally got his feet solidly set on the road of prosperity. For the next 50 years, until he died in 1891, he was increasingly prosperous save for one period of bankruptcy.

Perhaps the first humbug Barnum put over on the public was Joice Heth, the 161-year-old negress, who had been present at the birth of George Washington, had put the first clothes on the future Father of his Country and had, as she claimed, "raised little George up." Barnum read about this aged black mammy, who was being exhibited in Philadelphia. He was 25 years old and already had developed a passion to be a showman. He bought the old darky, a wrinkled, blind, crippled creature. The man from whom he bought the helpless slave had a paper purporting to be a certificate of her sale to Augustine Washington, father of George, when she was about 60 years old.

Barnum exhibited Joice Heth in New York and took her on a tour of the "provinces." People flocked to see her and to hear her tell about how she had "raised up little George." In New York the receipts averaged $1500 a week, which was big money in those days. The old negress died in February, 1836, and her body was dissected before a large and distinguished company of doctors, clergymen and editors, and the operating surgeon found an absence of ossification of the arteries in the region of the heart, leading him to the opinion, he told Barnum privately, that Joice Heth probably was not more than 80 years old."

In the last edition of his autobiography, which he revised and republished several times, Barnum wrote that the Joice Heth incident "was the least deserving of all my efforts in the show line." The controversy that had raged around the deception, both before and after the death of the negress—for the dissecting surgeon seems to have given the result of his operation to the public—merely served to add to the notoriety of Barnum and consequently to his earning powers.

A little later Barnum hitched up with one Aaron Turner, who had a small traveling circus. Barnum became ticket seller, secretary and treasurer at a salary of $30 a month and 20 per cent of the net receipts. Turner was another practical joker. At Annapolis, Md., he played a joke on Barnum which came near costing the future great showman his life.

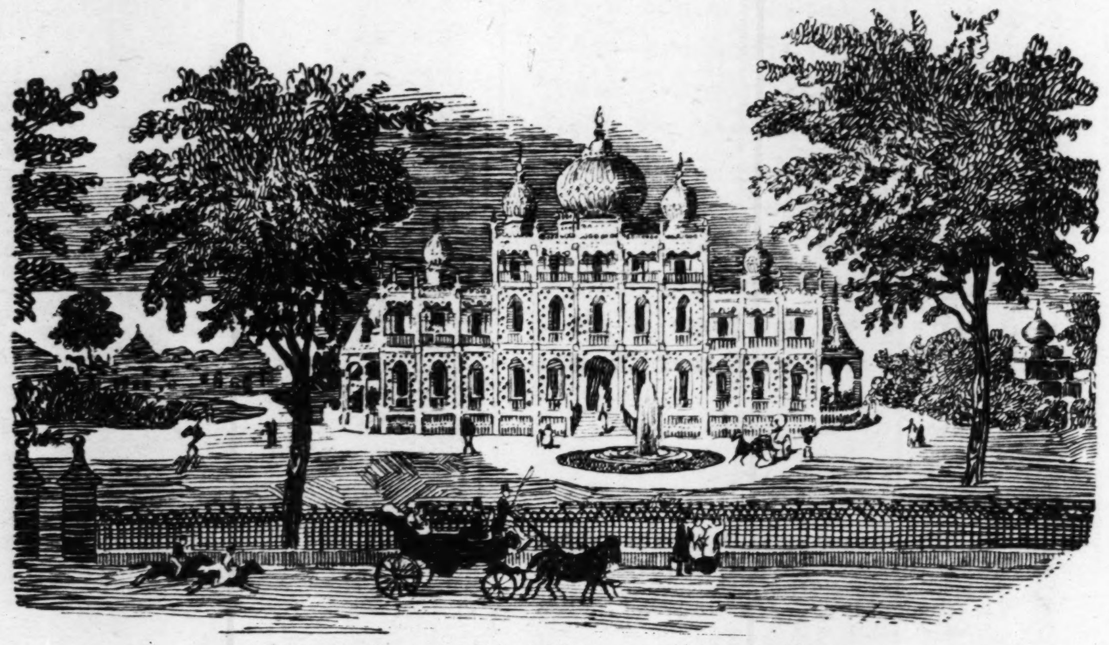
In Rhode Island a preacher, the Rev. Ephraim K. Avery, had been acquitted of the murder of a young woman, though the public appeared to be convinced that he was guilty. Turner gave it out in a barroom at Annapolis that Barnum was the Rev. Mr. Avery, disguised. A mob seized Barnum, told him that he was to be tarred and feathered, then hanged. They handled him very roughly, and it was by but a narrow squeak that he got off with his life, after prevailing upon the mob to take him to Turner before they hanged him.

"My dear Barnum," said the other practical joker, "it was all for our good. Remember, all we need to insure success is notoriety."

Barnum took that lesson to heart and shaped his career from it. If ever thereafter he let slip an opportunity to make himself additionally notorious his biographer has failed to find it in a monumental mass of documentary evidence. He saw to it that the newspapers connected the magic name, Barnum, with everything that happened in connection with his career. When he got hold of the American Museum in 1842 he determined to make the museum the talk of New York, with the name of Barnum always uppermost. One day a man came to the box office and begged for a little money. Barnum bought him a breakfast and set him to work at $1.50 a day. Mr. Werner thus tells it:

"The man's job was to place a brick at the corner of Broadway and Ann street, another brick at the corner of Broadway and Vesey street, another in front of the Astor House, and another in front of St. Paul's Church. This bricklayer was to hold a fifth brick in his hands, and he was to continue from brick to brick, exchanging the brick in his hand for the brick on the walk, without talking to anyone en route. At the end of every hour of this work, he was to present a ticket at the museum, walk through the building and pass out to continue solemnly his brick work.

"Half an hour after the man began his rounds 500 men and women were watching him, and trying by conjecture and questions to solve the mystery of his purpose. Solemn and taciturn, he went from brick to brick, ignoring the comments and questions of the crowd, and at the end of the first hour the streets surrounding the museum were filled with people. Whenever he entered the museum, people bought tickets and followed him, hoping that inside was the solution of his strange actions.



Barnum's fantastic Oriental home at Bridgeport, Conn.

"After several days of this walking advertisement, the police interfered and insisted that Barnum must withdraw his man because of the congestion of traffic he caused, for the crowds practically closed all streets near the museum. But Barnum's bricks were discussed for several weeks and received due newspaper notice."

One of Barnum's biggest humbugs, though it was but three feet long, was "The Fejee Mermaid." This was advertised as the body of a real mermaid, the only one ever found. It was supposed to have been picked up in the waters of the Fiji Islands. Before he put the "mermaid" on exhibition Barnum created wide interest in the marvel by having confederates posing as scientists write letters to the press from various points, vouching for the thing as a real mermaid. The chief "scientist" was one Levi Lyman, who helped Barnum exhibit and promote the shriveled black mammy, who, though she was born when George Washington was about 25 years old, had been present at the birth of the future first President. Lyman, posing as Dr. Griffin of the London Museum of Natural History, brought the mermaid to New York, wrote a pamphlet describing her and did other promotion work.

Barnum shrewdly kept his own name out of the project until he was good and ready. The mermaid was exhibited first in a Broadway hall which Barnum hired through an agent. Her picture was printed in the New York dailies. When she had become a great sensation, Barnum took her to his museum and she drew the curious by the thousands, trebling the receipts of the place. One of the visitors said to Barnum:

"I lived two years on the Fiji Islands, and I never heard of any such thing as a mermaid."

"There's no accounting for some men's ignorance," replied Barnum.

The Fejee Mermaid seems to have been the salvation of the museum, enabling Barnum to pay for the institution and putting him on prosperity's path. According to Mr. Werner's researches, the Fejee Mermaid was a combination of the tail end of a fish and the head end of a monkey. The job of taxidermy had been done most skillfully by a Japanese who connected the two parts so that no seam could be seen in the skin and nobody could tell where the backbone sections had been joined. The mermaid was a hideous object, but it served Barnum's purpose.

Barnum's brother ran a hotel at Bridgeport, Conn. One day when P. T. was stopping there his brother told him about a remarkable child dwarf, named Charles S. Stratton, that was attracting attention around town. Barnum immediately hunted up little Charles, who became famous throughout the world not long afterward as Gen. Tom Thumb, after being thoroughly Barnumized. Charles was only 5 years old when Barnum induced the boy's mother to take him to New York and enter into a contract for his exhibition at the museum. The child was only 2 feet 1 inch tall, but he had quit growing. He was the actual boy who never grew up. Barnum added six years to his age at one fell swoop of advertising. Mrs. Stratton, we learn, was "astonished and somewhat annoyed when she noticed that her son was announced in large handbills as 'Gen. Tom Thumb, a dwarf 11 years of age, just arrived from England.' The 'just arrived from England' was the first instance of a method Barnum often repeated.

The world knows the story of Tom Thumb, how Barnum took him to England and exhibited him before Queen Victoria, to the Continent and let other monarchs have a look, and thereby made fortunes for himself and the dwarf. The "General" died in 1883, never having grown up, and the only humbug that Barnum put over in his case was the deception as to the boy's age when first exhibited and the Tom Thumb name and the English importation. Tom Thumb was a native of Bridgeport, where Barnum himself established a home and lived the remainder of his life.

The Woolly Horse was one of Barnum's humbugs that may be said to have a slight Missouri interest. When Barnum was touring with Gen. Tom Thumb in 1848, he found in Cincinnati a small horse with no mane and very little hair on his tail, but with body and legs covered completely with a natural growth of curly hair, similar to a sheep's wool. Barnum bought the beast, seeing Barnumistic possibilities. He sent the animal to Bridgeport, to be kept in strict seclusion until publicity got in its work.

About that time John C. Fremont, son-in-law of Senator Thomas H. Benton of Missouri, got lost in the Rocky Mountains, where he was on an expedition of exploration. The press had much to say about the missing Lieut. Fremont. Barnum advertised his woolly horse as having been captured by Fremont near the Gila River. Fremont, the story ran, had sent the extraordinary beast to the U. S. Quartermaster as a token of esteem.

After exhibiting the horse in New York, Barnum took him on tour. At Washington Senator Benton went to see the animal. He denied publicly and with emphasis that his son-in-law ever had seen the woolly horse, and the wrathy and matter-of-fact old Senator instituted suit against Barnum's agent for obtaining 25 cents from him under false pretenses. The court dismissed the case for lack of sufficient evidence to substantiate Benton's contention. Publicity attending the trial increased Barnum's receipts considerably.

But for Barnum, America never would have had opportunity to hear Jenny Lind, the "Swedish nightingale," illustrious singer of the middle period of the nineteenth century. It was Barnum who brought Jenny Lind over and managed her triumphal tour, which opened Sept. 11, 1850, in the old Castle Garden at New York. Barnum stirred up such a prodigious propaganda of boosting for Jenny Lind, prior to her coming from Europe, that the success of his experiment was inevitable.

"Jenny Lind is the most popular woman in the world at present—perhaps the most popular that ever was in it," sang the New York Herald. In this book Mr. Werner reveals the fact that Barnum deliberately played up the philanthropic side of the Swedish singer to attract audiences. She was a deeply religious young woman and was noted for her charities. She had come to America to raise money for the benefit of orphans in her own country. Barnum made the most of all this. Without accenting the "goodness" side of Miss Lind, the theory is that her tour would have been a failure, for Americans in those days knew little about highbrow music and cared less. Barnum Barnumized Jenny Lind's reputation for superior moral goodness and got away with it.

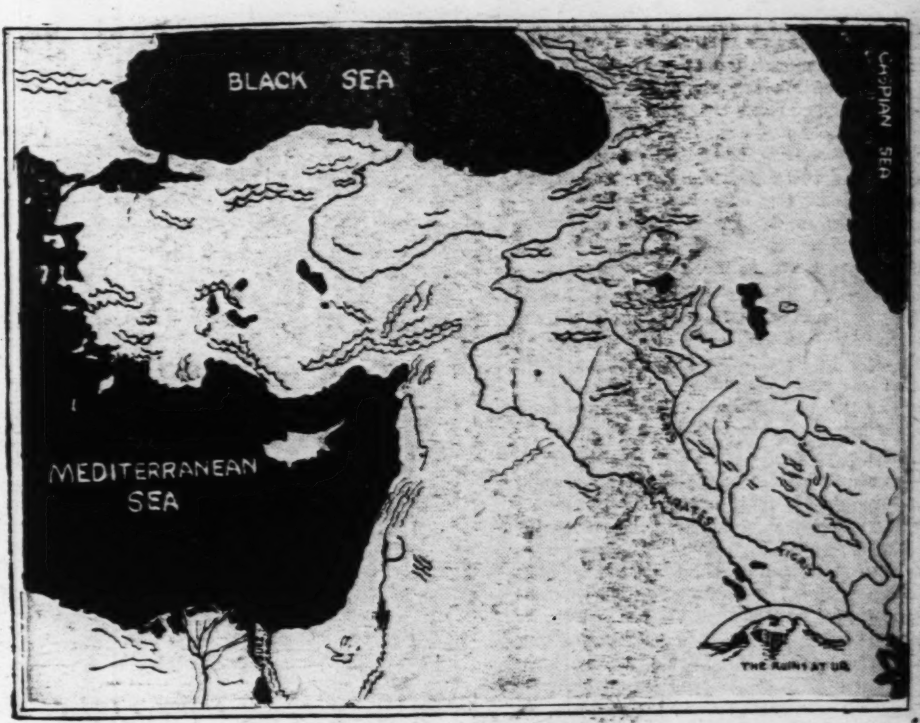
TEMPLE ANTEDATING "KING TUT" BY 800 YE UNEARTHE

Brick walls of ancient shrine of the moon god, Sin, rebuilt about 4000 years ago by King Dungi, who left his name embossed on the bricks, found by Anglo-American expedition—Nebuchadnezzar, Babylonian monarch of Biblical history, restored this structure about 600 years B. C., and some of his jewelry has been recovered there

> And he said unto him, I am Jehovah that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.—Genesis, 15, vii.



Map showing location of Ur, at lower right-hand corner.

JEHOVAH was speaking to Abraham in a vision. Ur was Abraham's birthplace. It was one of the most ancient cities of Babylonia.

Babylon is fallen, Ur is a perished city, Abraham is gathered to his fathers. But the Kingdom of Irak, the land known modernly as Mesopotamia, now a British protectorate through a semi-settlement growing out of the World War, includes the site of the ancient city of Ur.

And there, within the present year of our Lord, the spades of American and English archeologists have revealed to human view the brick walls of a temple that was one of the glories of Ur, the Ur of the Chaldees, the Ur of Abraham and the Hebrew Bible.

Back to ancient Egypt went the spades of American and English archeologists but a few months ago, when Howard Carter and Lord Carnarvon discovered the tomb of the Pharaoh Tutankhamen, who was buried about 3250 years ago. Back to ancient Babylonia, and far back of the ancient Egypt of the Carnarvon-Carter achievement, have gone the spades of excavators for the University of Pennsylvania Museum and the British Museum.

This joint expedition has unearthed indubitable records and substantial works of a civilization antedating that of King Tutankhamen by many centuries. "King Tut" was almost a modern in comparison with Dungi, King of Ur, whose name has been found embossed on some of the bricks discovered in the temple of the moon god, Sin, at Ur.

Incidentally, it may be wise to point out that the name Sin is not to be identified with the little word spelt the same way in the English tongue. While there may have been goings-on in the temple of the moon god at Ur which modern moralists would regard as sinful, it is perhaps a good thing to know that Mount Sinai, whereon Moses found the tablets of stone carrying the Ten Commandments, is a name derived from that of the god whose long-forgotten temple has yielded just now a considerable portion of its story to the American and English excavators, and through them to the world.

More of the same story, very much more, is expected from the same source. As in the Tutankhamen instance, not all the story may be told as yet. For the present it is sufficiently interesting to know that the walls of the temple recently excavated were built about 4000 years ago, and that the building is itself a restoration of one which stood there perhaps thousands of years earlier and was used in those prehistoric days for the worship of the moon god of Ur, he of the now repellent name. Readings from the bricks and other solid material found prove this fact. These readings prove also, it is said, that King Dungi was the restorer of the still more ancient temple.

The ancient city was Ur of the Chaldees to the Jews of the captivity, but in the dawn of recorded history the place became Ur of the Sumerians. That race, in the era around 3500 B. C., was dominant in Southern, or Lower, Mesopotamia, where Ur was situated. Historians tell us that the great days of Ur began about 2300 B. C. For about 120 years the city was the capital of a great kingdom, including Babylonia and Elam, otherwise the southwestern section of Persia. Ur-Engur was the name of the King who instituted the job of conquest and consolidation. Dungi, his son, was the great man of the dynasty. Dungi ruled over the kingdom for 58 years—almost as long as the late Queen Victoria was monarch of Great Britain.

Dungi seems to have been an aggressive ruler. He extended his rule on every side; and he was a skillful politician, making it a point to keep the priesthood of the city gods in his own family, thus aiding in the unification of his realm. Because of this, he became a mighty builder of temples, which he endowed with magnificent fittings.

The vast temple of the moon god, the chief deity of Ur, was falling into decay when King Dungi was on the throne. The King not only restored it, but enlarged it; and it is the walls built under Dungi's direction that are being excavated now by the joint expedition mentioned. Two royal palaces also were built at Ur by King Dungi.

This brick of Dungi, King of Ur, records the building of the temple in that city about 2500 B. C.

It is shown by certain ancient remains that the city fathers of Ur had developed not only waterworks, but a system for the carrying off of sewage. Asphalt was in use, as also was lead. There were irrigation schemes and, obviously, fortifications. Fighting, either in defense or aggression, was the favorite outdoor pastime of those days. We are told, for instance:

"Down to the end of his long reign Dungi was a conqueror. In his last years his armies were attacking hostile neighbors. His empire extended far into Persia. His military skill is shown by the fact that he organized regiments of archers to support the heavy, slow-moving phalanxes of pikemen and axmen. To Babylon, a Semitic city, he was hostile, and he sacked E-Sagila, the temple of Marduk.

"Sixteen centuries later Nebuchadnezzar, the last great Emperor of Babylon, returned good for evil, for he restored the venerable temple of Nannar at Ur."

In an inner room of the temple now being excavated has been discovered some jewelry of the period of Nebuchadnezzar, who is said to have rebuilt or restored the shrine of the moon god about 600 years before the Christian era opened. Sir Frederick Kenyon, director of the British Museum, is quoted as saying that Nebuchadnezzar's name was found on some of the jewelry.

"One inner chamber," he stated, "contained a mass of jewelry of immense value. There was much pottery and bricks with the date of the temple inscribed. Large quantities of cuneiform clay tablets also are expected to be dug up, and from these we believe much light will be thrown on the origin of Babylon's civilization."

History, supplemented by certain archeological findings, has given us the names of several of the rulers who held sway at Ur. They are remarkable names, as these samples will show: L

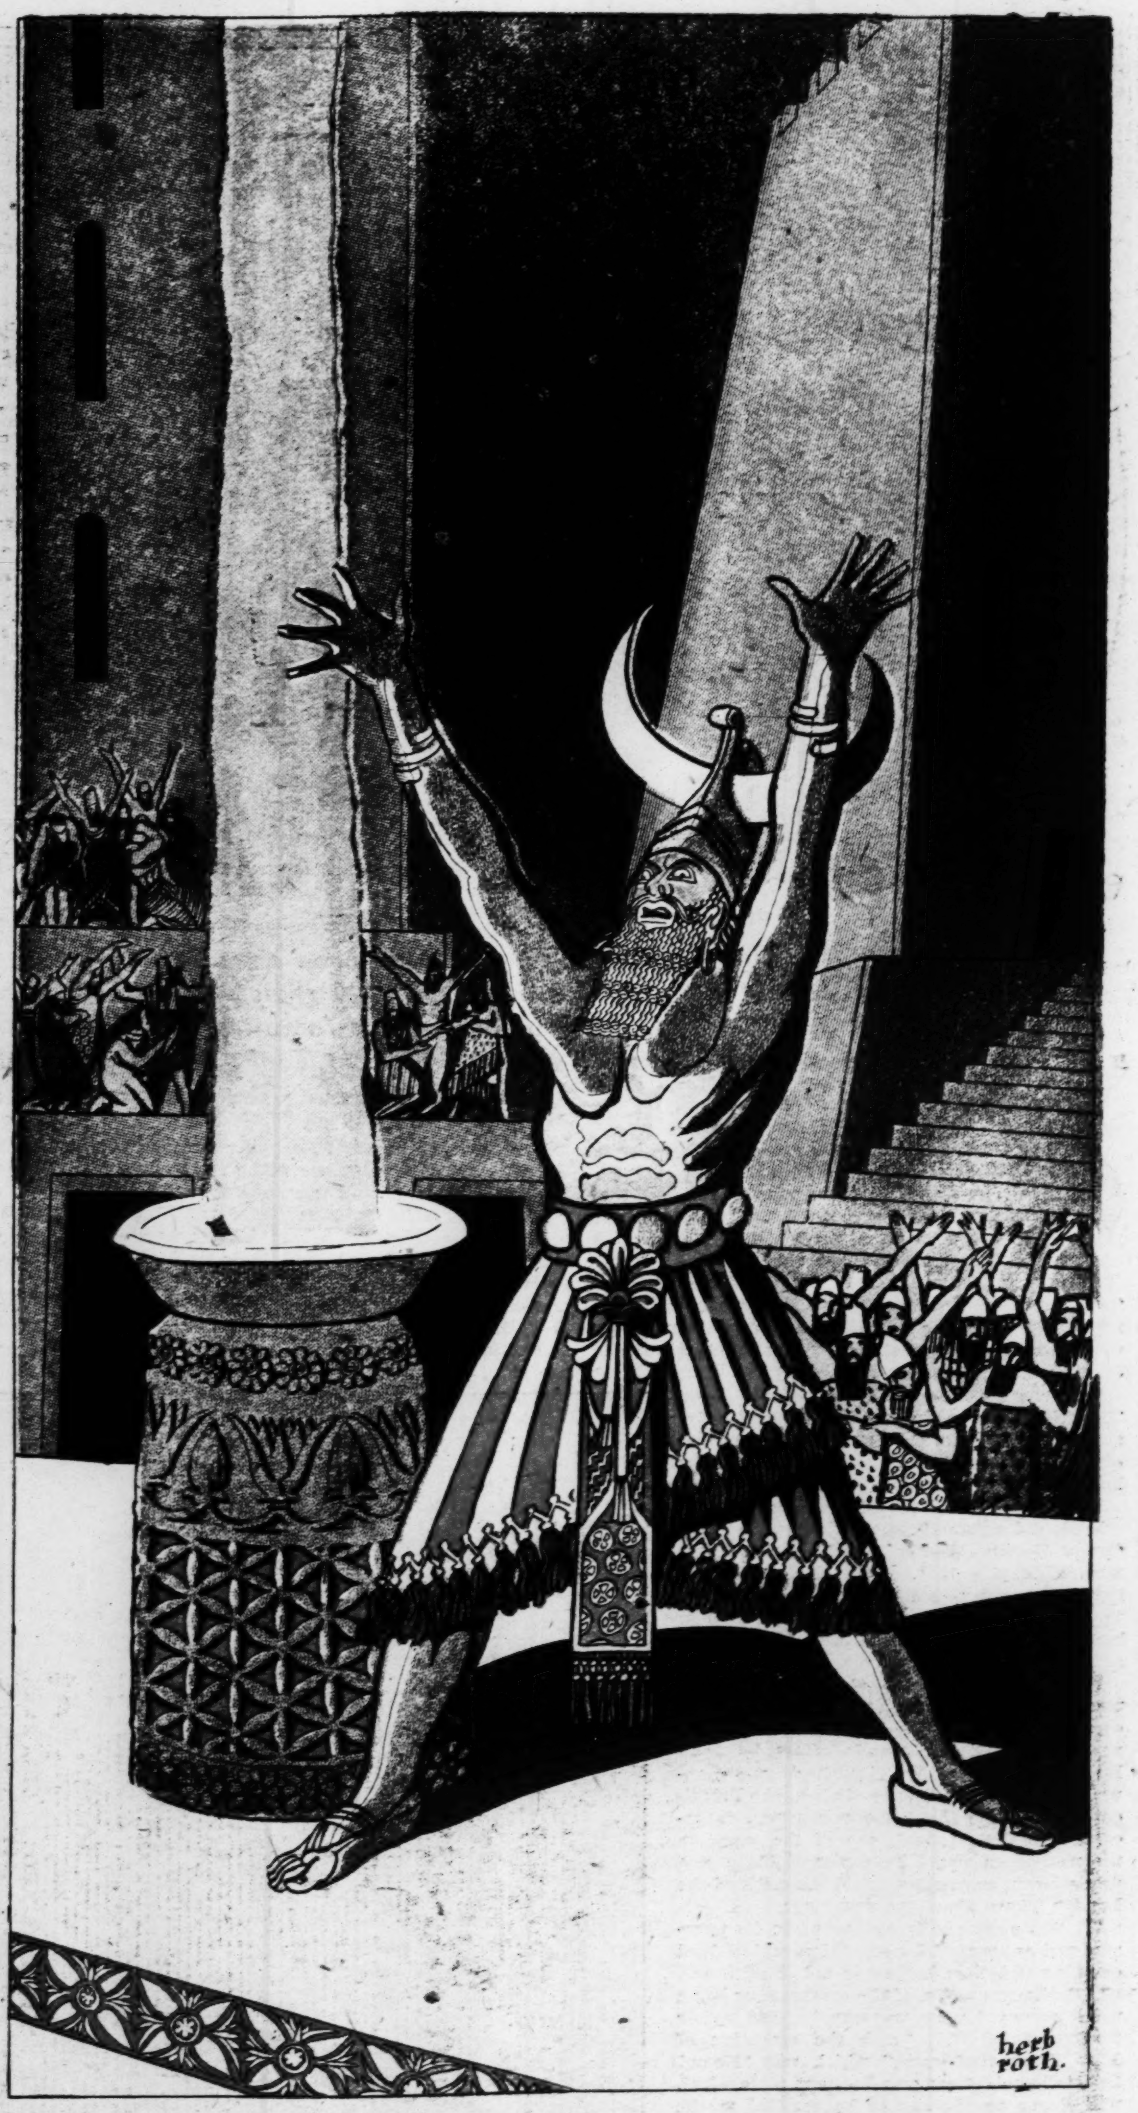
Devotees from many with the building of the original temple flocked to Ur, where in the great temple rebuilt and Nebuchadnezzar restored. Ar now has been rediscovered after about 2500 years—the time of Nebuchadnezzar—they worshiped the kindly, benignant and highly respectable Sin.



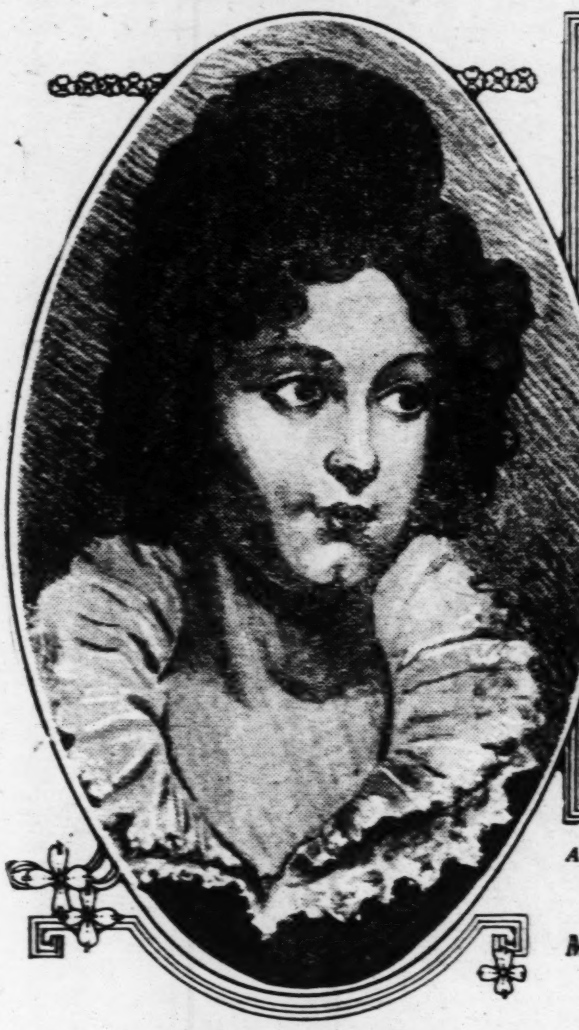
Now, what part did Abraham of the book of Genesis play in the moon temple of Ur, if any? That fascinating question is yet to be answered. Will the discoveries in the excavated ruins answer it? Well, there is always such a possibility; and that makes the matter one of interest throughout Christendom.

The writer Eupolemus, who lived nearly two centuries before Christ, is quoted as saying that in the city of Ur there once lived a man of noble race, superior in wisdom, named Abraham. In the Old Testament we read that after the Lord had scattered the builders of the Tower of Babel over the face of the earth, Terah, a native of Ur of the Chaldees, took Abram (Abraham), his son, and Lot, the son of Haran, his son's son, and Sarah, Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from Ur to go into the land of Canaan; and they came unto Haran and dwelt there.

It is interesting to note that Haran, the destination of Abraham's family, was also a center of moon-god worship. Is it possible that the founders of the Hebrew religion developed their idea of a single just and powerful God out of the Chaldean city god of Ur?

Although no scholar has doubted the importance of the remains at Ur, it is but recently that excavations have been carried on extensively. Physical difficulties have stood in the way.

The Real Story of "Home! Sweet Home!



Miss Ann Maria Tree, a popular English singer of her day and the first person to sing "Home! Sweet Home!" on May 8, 1823.

A recent photograph of Payne's boyhood home at Easthampton, L. I., which may have been in his when he wrote about the "lowly, thatch'd cottage."

Many legends have arisen about origin of this widely beloved song, first in London 100 years ago—John Howard Payne, once a famous actor playwright, is forgotten now but as "the homeless bard of home"— lonely death at Tunis, Africa, where as U. S. Consul he had triumphed the insolent ruling Bey

ONCE upon a time—just 100 years ago, to be exact—there was a beautiful stage heroine named "Clari," who eloped with a Duke. Together they reached the Duke's castle of painted canvas, after safely eluding all their pursuers.

There "Clari's" home and parents were forgotten until a band of strolling players emerged into the glow of the footlights and struck up an air which the young woman had heard often when she dwelt beneath the ancestral roof.

Memories came thronging back upon "Clari," and, moved by a sudden heart-sick desire to behold again the beloved faces and the old familiar scenes, she sang a song of wistful longing.

The song was "Home! Sweet Home!"

Little did anyone in the big audience at the Covent Garden Theater, London, on the evening of May 8, 1823, dream that they were listening to a song which was to spread across the face of the earth, wherever the English language is spoken, and which, after a century, still has millions of admirers.

Not even the critics suspected what an interesting event the future would prove that evening to be. To them it was but the first performance of an operatic effort by John Howard Payne, the American actor and playwright, and Henry Rowley Bishop, the British composer. That these two names were to become immortal through one of the songs in the new opera would have seemed to them a preposterous suggestion. Said the critic of the London Times about the new play:

"It was occasionally applauded in its progress and announced for repetition amidst loud clapping of hands; but we do not think it will add to the reputation of the composer or bring much money to the treasury." This writer further stated that "with the exception of Miss Tree's first song," which was "Home! Sweet Home!" there was "not one piece which will linger on the ear or be recalled to the memory. The overture is loud and startling; but we can say little else in its favor. The songs are commonplace, and there is no concerted piece making any pretensions to novelty."

James Kenney, who collaborated with Payne in writing another play, was present on that opening night at Covent Garden and said in a letter to Payne: "As early as the first act I saw handkerchiefs employed upon the bright eyes in the dress boxes," mentions an actress in the audience who "wept torrents," and says the prospect is "fair for a run."

Although "Clari, the Maid of Milan," was fairly well received, it was not a great success. It was given again the following night, also one night three weeks later and one night at the beginning of the next season. At all these performances the part of "Clari" was taken by Miss Ann Maria Tree, sister of the famous actress, Ellen Tree. There were a few performances in 1825, 1826 and 1829, at Covent Garden, besides a few later productions at other London theaters. In this country "Clari" was first given in New York in November, 1823.

But however moderate the success of the opera, the song of "Home! Sweet Home!" quickly attained popularity. It is reported that 300,000 copies of the song were sold the first year, bringing great the publisher but not to the author, who had copyright of the whole opera for 50 pounds.

Such, in brief, was the episode which keeps the of John Howard Payne alive today. Once a youthful prodigy on the stage in this and in England, then as a prolific and ful playwright and in his later years the Consul at Tunis, Africa, who brought the Bey to terms, Payne is forgotten now the author of "Home! THE GRAY GHOST RETURNS

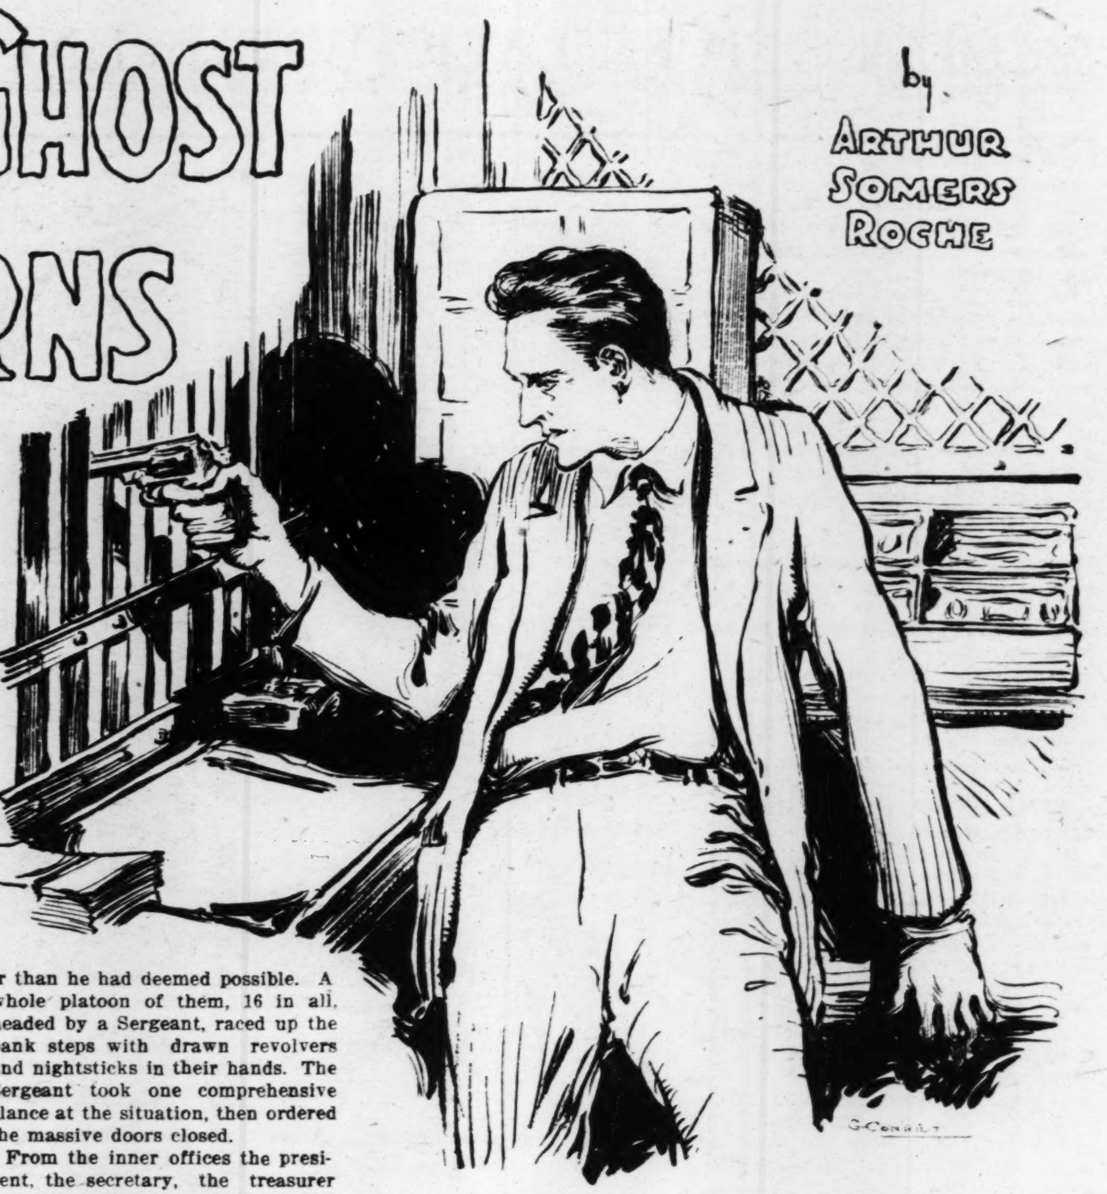
by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE



Through the bars he aimed the weapon.

KEELER, paying teller of the Ore and Metals National Bank, cast a last glance around his cage. The pay rolls of a dozen concerns were all neatly arranged, awaiting the arrival of messengers with their firm checks.

Keeler was a methodical young man. Always cool and calm, he was clocklike in his punctuality. His firm chin, his strong nose, his steady blue eyes were, to the discerning, sufficient indication of his integrity. Also, one felt that there could be no question of his courage. And his ability in his chosen career seemed proved by the fact that at 29 he had achieved so responsible a position in one of the largest banks in the world.

He saw the uniformed porter unlock and open the huge steel doors of the bank, and Turner, the young messenger of the Caraway Co., entered. Almost simultaneously emissaries arrived from the Wilton Co., the MacEnany concern and the other big clients of the bank. Each one, Keeler noted, was accompanied by a husky guard.

Keeler reached automatically for the bundles of bills labeled "Caraway." Then, almost as automatically, his hand swept below the counter and touched the switch that dropped, with a jarring crash, the steel grating whose interlaced bars would protect him from assault and robbery. His other hand gripped his ready pistol, and through the bars he aimed the weapon. For half a dozen men had entered the bank after the messenger from the Elspeth store.

Keeler had heard a cry from the uniformed porter. He had seen the porter struggling with one of the late arrivals. He had acted with instant decision; the bank's money was protected against marauders. For Keeler had only to dodge down behind his counter to be out of range of any possible bullet, and the steel grating could be raised only by the switch inside the cage. No threat could make Keeler touch that switch again.

But he did not hide behind the counter. Instead, he pointed his revolver at a man struggling with the Wilton guard. The man heard his hoarse cry and immediately ceased his struggle. The uniformed porter had backed the man, whose attack upon him had caused his outcry, into a corner, and blew upon a shrill police whistle.

Within three minutes after the attempted robbery had begun, the bandits were lined up against one wall, were disarmed, and were penned in by a dozen bank detectives and employes. Keeler pressed the switch that caused the heavy steel grating to ascend into the ceiling. He laughed as he did so. In a moment the police, summoned by the porter's whistle, would arrive and take away the ridiculous bandits.

Indeed, the police arrived sooner than he had deemed possible. A whole platoon of them, 16 in all, headed by a Sergeant, raced up the bank steps with drawn revolvers and nightsticks in their hands. The Sergeant took one comprehensive glance at the situation, then ordered the massive doors closed.

From the inner offices the president, the secretary, the treasurer and other officials of the bank had come. The Sergeant seemed to recognize the president. He called him by name. "Get everybody in here, Mr. Dana," he commanded brusquely. "Everybody! Looks like an inside job to me."

"That's absurd," said Dana. His heavy jowls shook with indignation. "Every man in this bank—every woman, too—is absolutely trustworthy. "Why"—and he pointed at the six cowering figures against the wall—"they're all outsiders."

"How'd they know all these pay-roll people were to be here at a certain hour, with the cash ready for them? Get everyone here; I want to look at them."

Dana felt the justice of the Sergeant's attitude, even though he could have informed the police officer that information as to the time of sending for pay rolls could be easily picked up by any client of the bank who kept his eyes open. He ordered an underling to summon the rest of the employes.

While they were coming the Sergeant and five of his men advanced to the prisoners. They slipped handcuffs on each of them and hustled them roughly into the center of the bank lobby. The Sergeant looked at the other customers of the bank.

"Any of these mixed up in this?" he demanded of Keeler.

The paying teller peered through his cage. He pointed as he spoke: "That's Mr. Kelly, an old client; that's Mr. Wynans, another old customer; that is Mr. Bennett, who's all right; and that is Mr. Pelham. They're all known to me, and I can vouch for them."

"All right," grunted the Sergeant. He turned to the president. "Everyone here?" demanded the Sergeant.

"Even the telephone girls," Dana replied.

Over the face of the Sergeant spread a grin. Pelham, the dapper young-old man with the gray hair, who had been last indicated by Keeler, seemed to sense something odd in that grin. He took a step toward the Sergeant; a policeman standing beside him lifted his nightstick, and Pelham crashed to the floor.

Dana cried out in astonishment. The cry died in his throat. For the Sergeant thrust a revolver against his stomach. The banker was suddenly sick.

"Hands up, and don't move, every last one of you," cried the Sergeant.

His 16 policemen wheeled suddenly upon the armed guards who had accompanied the messengers. Nightsticks knocked them down, and their revolvers were taken as they sprawled upon the floor.

Keeler, dazed, uncomprehending, reached for the switch that should lower the grating again. Too late he remembered that the mechanism of the thing had got out of order a week before. A temporary repair had fixed the mechanism so that the grating could be lowered and raised once. After that had been done it was necessary to adjust certain parts of the machinery again. And, of course, there had been no time to do this now.

Sick with apprehension, he reached for the revolver which, upon the arrival of the police, he had placed again upon the shelf below the counter. But before his fingers closed upon it a bullet from one of the policemen's revolvers struck his shoulder and whirled him dizzily to the floor. A tap upon the head from one of those heavy nightsticks rendered the teller hors de combat.

And almost before the dazed bank employes could think of offering resistance they were disarmed, beaten unconscious or shot.

Sacks appeared from beneath the blouses of two of the invaders. These two stepped into Keeler's cage. His assistant, covered by a revolver, had no opportunity to resist. More than $800,000 in bills were swept, in less than 30 seconds, into the sacks carried by the counterfeit policemen.

Seventeen of them, including their leader, and reinforced by the six handcuffed men in business clothes, herded those of the bank employes and customers who still were conscious into an inner room, the private office of President Dana. A telephone in the room was ripped from its fastenings. Dana was seized and searched. From his pockets were removed keys; one of them fitted the lock of his private office, and the door was fastened upon them. From the uniformed porter the key to the outer door had been taken. The great doors swung open on to Broadway.

Attracted by the closing of the doors, the porter's police whistle and the noise of the shots was a great crowd of excited people. They set up a yell of exultant fury as the policemen descended the bank steps, hustling the handcuffed men toward empty taxicabs that happened to be standing at the curb. The spectators could guess that a robbery had been attempted, and that the bandits had been captured. After all that the papers had been saying about the incompetence of the Police Department, it was good to see with your own eyes proofs of the falsity of the newspaper charges.

That is, it was good until you happened to read the afternoon papers.

"I tell you, Jerry," said Jimmy Pelham, positively, "it's the Gray Ghost."

Jerry Tryon shook his round, bald head. Also, his shoulders moved with mirth.

"Mr. Pelham, you're as crazy as I was 10 years ago."

"Were you crazy, Jerry?" asked Pelham, mildly.

The red face of the ex-policeman, now one of the most successful private detectives in New York—took on a deeper shade.

"You know what I mean; everything that happened I said 'Gray Ghost' and I got the raspberry from headquarters, the papers, the public, and everyone."

"Except me," insinuated Pelham.

Tryon's eyes lowered in embarrassment. "Don't think I've ever forgotten it, the way you encouraged me, backed me—everything. Only, Mr. Pelham, the Gray Ghost is dead."

"And 10 years ago everyone said that he had never been alive," smiled Pelham.

The square blue chin of Tryon set stubbornly; his lower lip protruded pugnaciously. "But, Mr. Pelham, we cornered the Gray Ghost aboard your yacht 10 years ago. He jumped overboard a couple of hundred miles from land. You can't get behind that, Mr. Pelham."

"I never saw his dead body; did you?" asked Pelham.

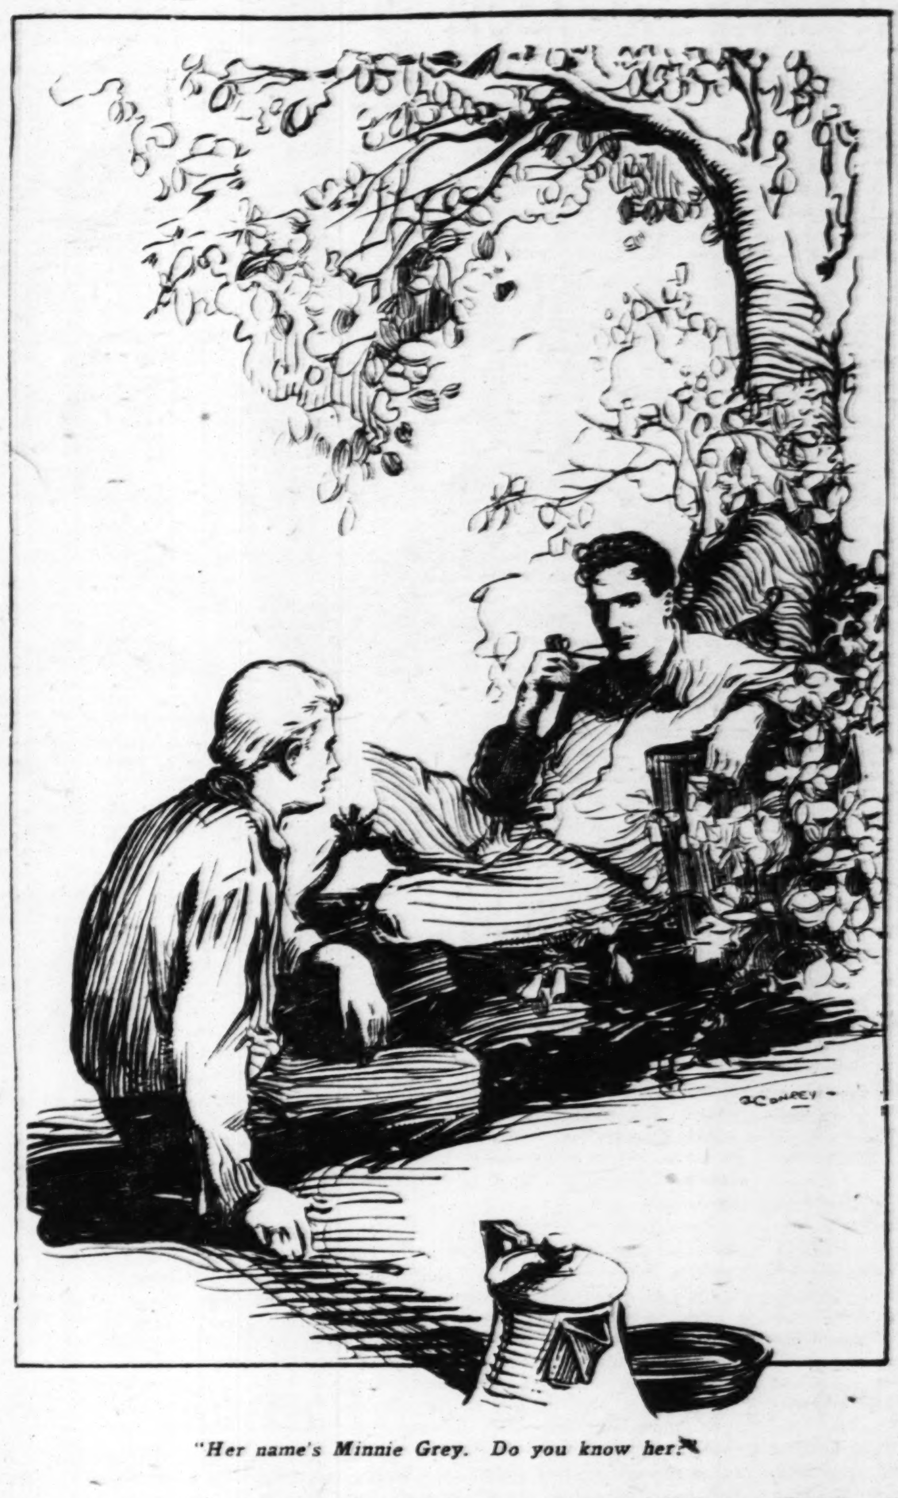
"But how could he have escaped?" cried Tryon.

Pelham shrugged. "What difference does that make? I couldn't answer that offhand. But he might have caught a rope hanging over the yacht's side, pulled himself aboard and stowed himself way. Or, what is more probable, he might have kept himself afloat. You know, it's not easy for a boat's crew to find so small an object as a man's head in the waves. Suppose that he was picked up by some trading vessel?"

"He'd have been turned over to the authorities at the first port," said Tryon, scornfully. "The whole world knew of him and of his leap from your yacht."

"But you know, Jerry, the Gray Ghost might have had in his pockets jewels worth thousands. All the loot that he stole was not recovered. It might not have been difficult for him to bribe a whole ship's crew to keep silent about his rescue."

Tryon suffered exquisite confusion. Jimmy Pelham, by placing his fortune at the disposal of a discredited police officer, by believing implicitly in the reasoning of that officer, had enabled Jerry Tryon to effect the capture of the Gray Ghost, a stroke that immediately made Tryon internationally famous.



"Her name's Minnie Grey. Do you know her?"

Ten years ago, in the great days of the rounding up of the Gray Ghost and his gang, Jimmy Pelham had been a gay youth in his late twenties, a favorite in society, a man of importance in the eyes of certain banks and trust companies. But shortly after Jerry Tryon had achieved reputation and fortune by the destruction of the Gray Ghost's gang, reverses had come to the young millionaire.

The great war broke out just as the young man was ruefully contemplating the impossibility of living on the bare ten thousand a year remaining to him. He forgot his troubles for the next four years, during which he served with distinction in the French army. On this morning in Jerry Tryon's office he was down to his last thousand dollars.

Time and again Tryon had offered Pelham a half-interest in the prosperous detective agency which the ex-police officer conducted. But Jimmy Pelham was not in the lists for charity. Now, once again, Tryon made an effort to return past favors.

"Of course, Mr. Pelham, you may be right at that. Suppose you come into my office and let me detail half a dozen men to you, and you can start an investigation. It would be worth at least five hundred a week to me to have you"——

Pelham's roar of laughter interrupted the other. "Bless your good old heart, Jerry," he cried. "You've tried in so many ways to put your hand in my pocket and leave some money there. . . . Thank you just the same, but if you think I'm crazy, I don't want you to oppose your own judgment. Not another word about it."

He rose and rubbed gingerly the plaster on the crown of his head.

"I must run along now, Jerry," he said. "They want to question me at headquarters."

Tryon smiled deprecatingly. "I wouldn't mention the Gray Ghost to them guys down there, Mr. Pelham," he advised. "They'll just give you the razz, and, honest, the papers will think you're a nut."

Pelham returned his smile. "Much obliged, Jerry. I'll try to be discreet."

Common sense said the Gray Ghost was dead, that he had perished 10 years ago. But imagination told him that one might as well expect to find two Napoleons in the same generation as two Gray Ghosts.

Such greatness could not repeat itself so soon. The Gray Ghost lived! Pelham clung to the thought. But at headquarters he did not mention his belief.

So he gave his little information in matter-of-fact fashion, embellished by no speculations. Intending to leave the previous afternoon on a fishing trip to Maine, he had stopped at the bank to cash a check. So he had been present at the robbery; somehow or other, he had suspected the alleged Sergeant of police, had taken a step toward him, and that was all that he remembered until he awoke with his head resting on the knee of an ambulance surgeon. He had gone home as soon as his injury had been attended to.

The captain of detectives who questioned him grinned: "Must have reminded you, Mr. Pelham, of the days when you and Jerry Tryon rounded up the Gray Ghost. Those were the good old days." He made the statement regretfully, as though he lamented the passing of the police's great antagonist.

"Maybe he's come to life," laughed Pelham.

The officer returned his laugh. "Nothing but part of the crime wave that's been following the war. Much obliged to you, Mr. Pelham," he said, briskly, terminating the conversation.

Outside, in the hallway, Pelham encountered Keeler, the paying teller of the Ore and Metals Bank, just released from an examination by a deputy commissioner. The teller carried one arm in a sling; there was a plaster upon his head. His face was drawn and bloodless.

They shook hands and Pelham noted that the other was weak. "Those idiots shouldn't have let you come down here. You ought to be in bed. Let me take you home."

Keeler thanked him. "I do feel a bit woozy," he admitted. "But what's that at a time like this?"

Pelham could but commend the young man's attitude.

"Do the police seem to have any idea, any theory, about the robbery?" he asked as they stepped into a taxicab.

Keeler's blue eyes were contemptuous. "I've heard a lot of loose talk about inside jobs and outside jobs. But common sense ought to tell them it was an outside job. Furthermore, holdups aren't inside jobs."

"True enough," agreed Pelham. "Too bad that grating didn't come down the second time. The newspapers said the machinery was out of order."

Keeler groaned. "One of those accountable carelessnesses that up everywhere. The thing could been repaired, but who could foreseen that two attempts would made, one right after the other?"

A sudden thought flashed into Pelham's mind. He asked, calmly: "What was the idea, do you suppose, of fake robbery?"

"Pretty obvious, wasn't it?" returned Keeler. "As soon as the first were disarmed we dropped all precautions. Whoever planned the crime counted on that very thing. Who on earth would think of questioning the bona fides of a platoon of uniformed police? Certainly no one in the bank. And the people outside, seeing a bunch of policemen dragging half a dozen bandits into taxicabs, would never suspect that the uniformed men were confederates of the prisoners. The first group were decoys to draw our fire."

"Perhaps," suggested Pelham, trying to keep his voice steady, "their leaders knew that the mechanism that raised and lowered your grating was out of order. That would explain the two groups of robbers."

"You're making an inside job of it," said Keeler. "Only three people knew that that mechanism was out of order. President Dana knew it, Cashier Henry knew it, and I knew it. And I never told a soul." He touched his wounded shoulder. "This isn't proof of my honesty, but it's evidence," he laughed.

Pelham, helping the teller to the sidewalk, grinned. "I guess it's pretty good proof," he said.

Upstairs, in Keeler's apartment, he made the teller lie down and prepared some medicine which the doctor had left with the wounded man. The other man urged him to stay a while, for a drink, a smoke and a talk.

Pelham liked Keeler. Despite his commercial success, he was boyishly frank and ingenuous. Perhaps the suffering induced by his injuries rendered him a shade more confidingly loquacious than was his wont. Anyway, he told Pelham of his boyhood struggles, his self-education, his ambitions, and, finally, of his girl. He even pointed out her picture where it hung upon the wall.

She—this Minnie Grey, who was Keeler's fiancee—was a shade too sophisticated in appearance. But, then, he told himself, nearly all girls wear a look of sophistication nowadays.

"Black hair?" asked Pelham.

"Yes, and black eyes," said Keeler.

"She's beautiful," admired Pelham.

"And lovely," supplemented the teller. "We're going to be married soon. Funny thing, I've always sworn that I'd marry a small-town girl. The minute I met Minnie I fell in love with her. And I could hardly believe it when I discovered that she came from a little town in Maine."

"What part of Maine does she come from?" asked Pelham, idly.

"Town called Juno," smiled Keeler. "Funny name, isn't it?"

"I suppose you'd prefer that her home town should change its name to Venus, after Miss Grey," suggested Pelham.

Keeler blushed. "She is beautiful. Too beautiful for me; too good for me. And such a patient girl. She's been the sole support of her mother and sister, down there in Maine, ever since she came to New York, two years ago."

"That's fine of her," said Pelham, slightly bored. "She works, then?"

"At Mason & Marsh's brokerage house. She's a stenographer. But not after next month; she's to be Mrs. Keeler then."

"My heartiest congratulations," said Pelham. Shortly thereafter he made his excuses and his departure.

Pelham walked to his apartment. All the [illegible]ment that had been in his mind had left it. Certainly the president was beyond suspicion; Pelham happened to know that the cashier was one of the chief stockholders of the bank, and could hardly be suspected of complicity in robbing his own institution. And as for Keeler, his honesty was too patent to be questioned.

The failure of the mechanism of the grating was a coincidence, then, that had been fortunate for the robbers. And the moment that Pelham admitted that he ceased to believe in the existence of the Gray Ghost.

For coincidence never aided nor hindered that master of crime. Chance never entered into his schemes; he worked with mathematic exactitude.

Jerry Tryon called him up that night to inform him that he had been retained by the bank authorities to run down the criminals.

"And I didn't tell them that I thought it was the

"The Minnie Grey I mean has black hair and black eyes," said Pelham.

"Don't know about her hair now," Slim said; "she may have got crazy ideas like the rest of the girls that go to New York. But her eyes was as blue as blue. And they ain't found any way of changing the color of eyes, have they?"

"Maybe I'm thinking of another Minnie Grey," suggested Pelham. He was shaking with nervousness.

"Not from Juno," declared Slim, with decision.

"Perhaps you're thinking of her sister," argued Pelham.

"Minnie never had no sister," stated the guide. "She was an only child, an orphan, who lived with her aunt."

Pelham cross-examined the guide; but the man stuck stoutly to his story. He vowed that he could not be mistaken.

Twenty-four hours later Jimmy Pelham landed in New York. He might be a madman; what connection there could be between the statement of Keeler and the emphatic contradiction of Slim Dickenson, he did not profess to understand. But he was convinced that the guide was not mistaken; nor could Keeler be mistaken about the color of his sweetheart's eyes.

If the gang knew of the accident to the grating machinery, they could have learned it only, Pelham was convinced, through the fiancee of the paying teller.

On the assumption that Keeler had told the girl and that the girl had told the gang, Pelham theorized.

If he could reconcile the discrepancy between the two Minnie Greys—— He took Slim Dickenson with him to the offices of Mason & Marsh. He gave the guide a hundred dollars.

"Go in," he told him, "and buy a Liberty Bond. I know the offices. The stenographers are all in an outside room. See if Minnie Grey is there."

A quarter of an hour later Dickenson reported that he hadn't seen Minnie Grey inside.

"We'll wait right here," said Pelham.

In a doorway across from the brokerage house they waited until the offices closed for the evening. Pelham recognized the original of the photograph that he had seen in Keeler's room. He indicated the girl to Dickenson and ordered him to follow her.

Pelham went directly to Keeler's apartment. The young teller was still in a weakened condition and was wrapped in a dressing gown when he received Pelham.

"Keeler," said Pelham, "you told Miss Grey about the trouble with the grating that protects your cage."

Keeler's face went dead white. "How dare you say such a thing?" he cried.

"Suppose I told you that your Minnie Grey doesn't come from Juno? What would you say to that?"

The fire died out of Keeler's eyes; Pelham was so patently in earnest. "I'd not indulge in heroics," said Keeler. "But I'd ask you to explain, and if you couldn't I'd throw you out of here, wounded shoulder or not."

"Spoken like a man, Keeler," said Pelham. "But I have a man in New York who comes from Juno, who knows Minnie Grey extremely well. He says that she left Juno about two years ago, and has never been heard from since. He says that your Minnie Grey is an impostor. Now, did you tell your fiancee about the mishap to the mechanism of your grating?"

Keeler nad mentioned it to her! He admitted it, white-faced, dazed at Pelham's statement, yet believing, because there was no reason for Pelham to lie.

"Pelham, do you think they'll arrest her?" he asked.

"Nothing has been proved yet," said Pelham. "But if proof follows—I'm sorry, old man," he said.

Keeler, lying upon a couch, buried his face in the wide sleeve of his dressing gown. Pelham got Jerry Tryon on the phone. "I'm at the apartment of Keeler, the teller of the Ore and Metals Bank, Jerry. Race up here with at least 20 men. Hustle."

No sooner had he hung up than the phone rang. Slim Dickenson was on the wire. "I followed the girl to her home; I waited outside a while, until she came out. Then she took a taxi to Washington Square. At least that's where my chauffeur says I am. She went into a house and she's there now. What'll I do?"

"Wait for me," cried Pelham.

He turned to Keeler. "Tryon will be here in a few minutes. Send him right down to Washington Square. It's tough, Keeler," he said, gently.

"You haven't proved anything yet," said Keeler, defiantly.

"For your sake I could wish that we wouldn't," replied Pelham.

He left the apartment. Presently he had alighted from his taxicab and was standing on the south side of Washington Square with Dickenson, watching the house into which Dickenson said the girl had disappeared. As they stood there a man alighted from a limousine and walked rapidly across the sidewalk and up the stoop of the house. He let himself in with a latchkey and the door closed behind him. Pelham turned to Dickenson.

"That," he said, "is one of the men who staged the first attempt at robbery of the Ore and Metals Bank."

"Let's go in and clean them," suggested Dickenson.

Ten minutes later Tryon and a score of his private detectives emerged from taxis. A sentence informed him of the situation. While one of his men ran to summon the police, Tryon sent some of his men around to the back of the house. With the others, and with Jimmy Pelham by his side, he crashed in the front door.

Three hours later, in Pelham's apartment, Tryon congratulated his former patron. "As neat a piece of detection as I ever heard of," he commented. "Of course, you had luck. Running into your guide and him happening to know what the real Minnie Grey looked like didn't hurt none. We split the reward, Mr. Pelham. And if you'll only come in with me"——

Pelham shook his head. "You don't believe in the Gray Ghost, Jerry."

Tryon laughed heartily. "Just because none of those prisoners that we took tonight will talk, you think they're afraid of the Gray Ghost. I don't; I just think that they're wise guys, waiting for their lawyers."

"How do you account for their having all the loot of the bank gathered in one box, at their house, undivided? Doesn't that look as though they were awaiting instructions from their chief?" demanded Pelham.

"If they'd had a chief, he'd have got his a couple of days ago," declared Tryon.

"If that chief happened to be the Gray Ghost, he'd have so many irons in the fire that he'd be necessarily delayed in removing some of them," objected Pelham.

Jerry Tryon rose, stretched his arms, and yawned. "Well, Mr. Pelham, we won't quarrel about it. But before you are too certain that the Gray Ghost is alive, get hold of some real proof."

"I will," said Pelham, grimly.

That proof came sooner than he had expected. In the morning's mail there came to him a simple note, which read:

"Dear Sir: Ten years ago you interfered with me. You have done so again. Yours respectfully,

"PETER BALLANTYNE."

There was no threat in the letter. None was needed. For Peter Ballantyne had been the nom de guerre, 10 years ago, of the Gray Ghost.

New Light on Methods of P. T. Barnum

Barnum's celebrated circus, by which he is best remembered by the generality of mankind, was organized in 1870. The great showman then was 60 years old. Years earlier he had invested his fortune in a clock works at Bridegport, had been swindled out of his money and had lost his American Museum and virtually everything else he possessed. But he had struggled along, and with the assistance of Tom Thumb, whom he took on a second tour of Europe, he recouped and was on his feet again.

The Cardiff Giant was one of the most noted of Barnum's circus-period humbugs. This was a huge figure supposed to have been dug up in the small town of Cardiff, N. Y. It was exhibited as a rare prehistoric relic. Presently it began to crack. Then Barnum planned and executed a Cardiff giant of alleged prehistoric origin, without blemishes. This humbug had a long run and got the money.

Barnum's circus was always advertised as "Barnum's Great Moral Show." "My exhibitions contain nothing," he advertised, "that professed Christians do not approve." He sent free tickets of admission to all clergymen, including their families, wherever his show held forth. To persons not entitled to passes he handed a card which he had had printed, reading:

"Thou shalt not pass.—Numbers xx, 18. Suffer not a man to pass.—Judges iii, 28. The wicked shall no more pass.—Nahun i, 25. None shall pass.—Isaiah xxxiv, 10. This generation shall not pass.—Mark xiii, 30. Beware that thou pass not.—II Kings vi, 9. There shall no strangers pass.—Amos iii, 17. Neither any son of man pass.—Jeremiah li, 43. No man may pass through because of the beasts.—Ezekiel xiv, 15. Though they roar, yet they cannot pass.—Jeremiah v, 22. So he paid the fare thereof and went.—Jonah i, 3."

When Barnum was on his deathbed, in April, 1891, the New York Evening Sun learned that on a previous occasion when he had recovered from a serious illness he had written to a friend: "The only thing lacking to make me happy on my return to good health is the chance to see what sort of lines would have been written about me." The Evening Sun sent a reporter to the circus to inquire whether it would hurt Barnum's feelings if the newspaper should print an obituary notice of him before he died. "Not at all," replied Tody Hamilton, Barnum's press agent. So, next day, the paper devoted four columns to Barnum's career, "and there was a noticeable improvement in Barnum's health."

But the obituary didn't save him. Four days later he died, his last words being a request to know what the circus receipts at Madison Square Garden had been during the day.

A postmortem conundrum that had wide circulation was:

"Will Barnum get to heaven?"

"He certainly has a good show," was the answer.

But with proper economy she will be able to cover every need, including the light wear for Palm Beach, and still be that ideal of good taste—the woman whose costumes show her forth, instead of the woman who shows forth her costumes."

Investigating, I learned that a very interesting study of the expenditures of women on dress was made not long ago by the woman statistician in charge of the Home Service Department of the Bridgeport Savings Bank in Connecticut —Bridgeport being a great industrial center where many small but not distressingly small incomes abound. It was among families living on such minor incomes that this statistician made many of her investigations; and certain results were rather astonishing.

She stated in conclusion that as long as a husband's income remained only $2000 or $3000 a year, the wife was a more economical dresser than he was. But by the time his income reached the $4000 mark, or passed beyond it, the wife was prone to blossom forth in costly attire—often far more costly than she could afford. In brief, below $4000 the woman is the plainer dresser of the two; above $4000, the more extravagant.

There is something curious in the fact that there should be such a dividing line and that it should be so definitely drawn. The statistician gave as her explanation the fact that, while the family income is very small, the wife can afford almost no social activities; she is largely bound at home by work, too, and very simple clothes "will do." During this period, however, her husband is obliged to go forth every day and meet business acquaintances, and it is deemed necessary that he should be "presentable." So he has a new overcoat while she patches her last year's cape.

But as the income advances she takes on more social obligations; perhaps, too, she acquires a maid. There's time for shopping and fittings, there's money for them; the taste of a little leads to the appetite for a great deal. The impulse to hoard weakens with the necessity; the woman who has pinched and scrimped to make both ends meet draws a long breath and relaxes. "Oh, why not order a new afternoon gown this fall? The old one could be made over—but, then, everybody would recognize it. John's doing well now—he must understand that he's got to have a decently dressed wife if he's to live up to the people we know."

The Real Story of "Home! Sweet Home!"

hunger, have been cited as the grisly specters which looked over Payne's shoulder as he penned the simple lines which have found an echo in countless hearts.

If Payne's fame on the stage, along with the facts of his career, were not so nearly forgotten now, it would be amusing to read of the efforts which his horrified family made to prevent him from becoming an actor. The father, an eminent educator, was particularly alarmed by the boy's talent in amateur theatricals and his passion for everything that pertained to the theater.

The death of Payne's mother and financial reverses which overtook his father opened the way to the youth's ambition. He left Union College, at Schenectady, where he had been sent through the interest of several prominent New Yorkers, including Charles Brockden Brown, the novelist, and after several months of preparation made his debut at the Old Park Theater, New York, on Feb. 24, 1809. He played the part of "Young Norval," in Holmes' "Douglas."

The most excessive praise was showered upon the young actor, following this and later American appearances. He was called "the American Roscius," and "Master Payne" was compared with "Master Betty," the famous English child prodigy of the stage, to the latter's disadvantage.

Just why young Payne, on Jan. 17, 1813, sailed away from America to try his fortunes in England, is not certainly known. He had appeared in almost a dozen different plays and been on tour, winning eulogies from the critics which now sound wildly extravagant. Perhaps the vanity, impulsiveness and quickness to take offense which have been regretfully assigned to him by Gabriel Harrison, his principal biographer, were the cause. At any rate, there was friction with some of the theater managers.

"Payne had the faculty of ingratiating himself with all managers," says Harrison, in dealing with the years in Europe, "but by a singular fatality he always ended with a misunderstanding."

Then he turned to playwriting. He was the author of "Brutus," which Edmund Kean produced in London with great success, and which was a favorite piece with Edwin Forrest and with John MacCullough. All told, Payne wrote or adapted about 50 pieces for the stage, and he was the author of other poems besides "Home! Sweet Home!" Yet now, practically everything he wrote is forgotten except the unpretentious little song which possesses a greater fame than any other in the world, save perhaps a few hymns and national airs.

Many of his pieces were adaptations from the French, and for several years Payne lived in Paris so that he might secure promptly the latest successes and adapt them for English managers. "Clari" has been called an adaptation, but really was more than that, since in its original form it was merely a ballet. In turning it into a play with songs and choruses—it was announced at Covent Garden as an "opera"—he wrote his own dialogue and verses.

The statement sometimes seen that Payne wrote "Home! Sweet Home!" while in a debtors' prison in London is probably due to the fact that he actually did find himself in that institution as a result of leasing the Sadler's Wells Theater and attempting the role of manager. It was a hazardous speculation. He did not have money enough, and failed to the extent of $7000.

But while a prisoner he received through the mail a French play which he translated and adapted in three days. It was accepted immediately by Drury Lane Theater and presented after only seven days' "scampering rehearsals." Payne by some influence managing to leave the prison to help with the rehearsals and to attend the first night. "Therese, the Orphan of Geneva," was pronounced one of the best melodramas ever seen at Drury Lane. The profits of "Therese" soon brought Payne enough to relieve his wants and to satisfy his creditors.

Why Payne stayed abroad for almost 20 years is a mystery, unless it was his reluctance to admit defeat. As Harrison points out, it was owned that, in Payne's 50 or more plays, he had given to England and to America the most popular tragedy ("Brutus"), comedy ("Charles the Second"), melodrama ("Therese"), opera ("Clari") and song ("Home! Sweet Home!") of the day in which they respectively appeared.

The Real Story of "Home! Sweet Home!"

It was not until July 25, 1832, that, responding to repeated invitations, he landed at New York. There followed testimonial dinners, benefit performances at theaters and adulatory speeches which have been preserved in the files of old newspapers.

But Payne was through with the stage. One after the other he took up various schemes which came to nothing, such as the plan to establish a weekly periodical, which was to be published in London and conducted on an international basis, with both English and American contributors. But, perhaps because he had set the subscription price at $10 each, he failed to raise the $50,000 which he deemed necessary.

As was natural, considering the losses which had been his from the lack of sufficient copyright laws, Payne was one of the earliest and strongest advocates of international copyright law. About this time, too, he became interested in the affairs of the Cherokee Indians, was a close friend and adviser of Ross, the Cherokee chief, and helped the Indians materially in securing a treaty with the Federal Government that would protect them from the rascality of the border agents and secure a proper remuneration for their lands. He even wrote an address to the American people, on behalf of the Cherokees, which was extensively published in the newspapers. Once Payne and Ross were arrested by the military and held prisoners for several days, then both were released.

In 1842 Payne was appointed by President Tyler to be Consul at Tunis, principally through the efforts of Daniel Webster, and arrived at his post in May of the next year. There was little official business to be transacted, but Payne showed his mettle in compelling the ruling Bey, who owned the U. S. consulate building, to make extensive repairs. But the repairs only came after there had been repeated promises which were not kept.

According to Amos Perry, one of Payne's successors at Tunis, the Bey one day became enraged at Payne's persistence in the matter and his bold utterances to the effect that the building was beneath the dignity of America, and, with offensive derision replied:

"America! America! Where is it? I do not know of any such country."

Thereupon Payne determined that the Bey should polish up his geography and to that end besieged the potenate and his Ministers with demands for a new consulate till they were wearied out, and to be rid of the troublesome fellow, opened the coffers wide. America thus secured the finest consulate and the tallest flagpole in Tunis.

Payne received notice of his recall in November, 1845, and returned home by way of a leisurely trip through Europe. His successor did not give satisfaction and in 1851, again largely at the instance of Webster, Payne was reappointed to Tunis. When the Bey heard of Payne's arrival, he exclaimed: "Let him be welcome." So he was received with all the ceremony of marked respect.

In the winter of 1852 his health began to fail. Rheumatism and great prostration followed. He died on April 9, 1852, with but his Moorish domestics and two Sisters of Charity at his bedside. A priest of the Greek Church said prayers at the grave.

Fittingly enough for "the homeless bard of home," Payne's remains were not allowed to lie in peace in the old burial place which overlooks the Bay of Tunis. Agitation for their return to the United States waxed and waned. There were strong protests from many admirers, who believed that the grave should not be disturbed. Others held that New York City would be a more fitting place for reburial than Washington, D. C., as proposed.

Finally, W. W. Corcoran, a wealthy resident of Washington, offered to pay all the expenses and to erect a suitable monument, and he received the necessary permission from Secretary of State Frelinghuysen to have the body exhumed and brought home. In 1883 the poet's remains were buried in the Oak Hill Cemetery at Washington. The wanderer had returned to his native land.

The Spanish Beggar's Priceless Gift

by Winnifred Ralston

FROM the day we started to school, Charity Winthrop and I were called the touseled-hair twins. Tom Harvey nicknamed us that—horrid, red-headed Tom Harvey who used to put burrs in our pigtails and angle worms in our inkwells.

Our mothers despaired of us. Our hair simply wouldn't behave. There were Martha Brown, Helen Stahl, Betty Davis and Leah Cohen—all with wonderful curly hair. But Charity and I could never coax ours out of a straight line.

As we grew older the hated name still clung to us. It followed us through the grades and into boarding school. Then Charity's family moved to Spain, where her father was in diplomatic service, and I didn't see her again for five years—not until last New Year's eve.

A party of us had gone to the Drake Hotel for dinner that night. As usual I was terribly embarrassed and ashamed of my hair. When the bobbing vogue first came in I had my hair cut, hoping against hope that would improve its looks. Realizing my mistake, I permitted it to grow again and by New Year's eve it was just long enough to be unmanageable.

Horribly self-conscious I was sitting at the table, scarcely touching my food, wishing I were home. It seemed that everyone had wonderful, lustrous, curly hair but me and I felt they were all laughing or worse, pitying me behind my back.

My eyes strayed to the dance floor and there I saw a beautiful girl dancing with Tom Harvey. Her eye caught mine and to my surprise she smiled and started toward me.

While there was something strangely familiar about her face I didn't recognize her—then. No—it—it couldn't be.

About this girl's face was a halo of golden curls. I think she had the most beautiful hair I ever saw. My face must have turned scarlet as I compared it mentally with my own straggly, ugly mop. I had never been so thoroughly ashamed of my hair before.

Of course you have guessed her identity—for it was really she—Charity Winthrop who once had dull straight hair like mine.

It had been five long years since I had seen her. There was everything to talk about, but I simply couldn't wait. I blurted out—"Charity Winthrop—tell me—what miracle has happened to your hair?"

She smiled and said mysteriously, "Come to my room and I will tell you the whole story." She was stopping at the hotel. We excused ourselves and rushed to Charity's room. I listened breathless while she told me this strange story:

Charity tells of the beggar's gift

"Our house in Madrid faced a little, old plaza where I often strolled after my siesta.

Miguel, the beggar, always occupied the end bench of the south end of the plaza. There he sat all day long, asking alms from the passersby. I always dropped a few centavos in his hat when I passed and he soon grew to know me.

The day before I was leaving Madrid I stopped to bid him goodby and pressed a gold coin in his palm. That was the best investment I ever made."

"Hija mia," he said, "You have been very kind to an old man. Digamelo (tell me) senorita, what it is your heart most desires."

"I laughed at the idea, then said jokingly, Miguel, my hair is straight and dull. I would have it lustrous and curly."

"Oigame, senorita," he said—"what you wish is even simpler than I thought. Many years ago—a Castilian prince was wedded to a Moorish beauty. Her hair was black as a raven's wing and straight as an arrow. Like you, this lady wanted los pelos rizos (curly hair). Her husband offered thousands of pesos to the man who would fulfil her wish. The prize fell to Pedro, the droguero. Out of roots and herbs he brewed a potion that converted the princess' straight unruly hair into a glorious mass of ringlet curls.

"Pedro, son of the son of Pedro, has that secret today. Years ago I did him a great service. Here you will find him, go to him and tell your wish. Adios, senorita, vaya con Dios."

"You can't imagine, Winnifred, how funny it made me feel. I did not take it seriously, of course. I never expected to look up this mysterious Pedro, but some whim changed my mind and I called a coche and gave the driver the address Miguel had given me.

"At the door of the apothecary shop, Pedro, a funny old hawk-nosed Spaniard, met me. Nervously I stammered out my explanation. When I had finished, he bowed and vanished into the rear of his store. Presently he returned with a bottle which he handed to me.

"By this time I was terribly excited—could hardly wait until I reached home. When I was finally in my room alone, I took down my hair and applied the liquid as directed. In twenty minutes, not one second more, the transformation, which you have noted, had taken place.

"Come, Winnifred—apply it to your own hair and see what it can do for you."

Breathlessly I watched Charity take a bottle from her wardrobe trunk. Tremblingly my fingers undid my hair and applied the liquid.

Twenty minutes later as I looked into Charity's mirror I could hardly believe my eyes. The impossible had happened. My dull, straight hair had wound itself into curling tendrils. My head was a mass of ringlets and waves. It shone with a lustre it never had before.

You can imagine the amazement of the others in the party when I returned to the ballroom. Everybody noticed the change. Never did I have such a glorious night. I was popular. Men clustered about me. I had never been so happy.

The next morning when I awoke, I hardly dared look in my mirror fearing it had all been a dream. But it was true—gloriously true. My hair was curly and beautiful.

Then the thought came to me I had no right to keep this great secret to myself. There were thousands of women just like me who would give anything to know my precious secret.

So I asked Charity's permission to take a sample of the Spanish liquid to my cousin who is a chemist at the Century Laboratories. For days he worked, analyzing the liquid. Finally he solved the problem, isolated the two Spanish herbs, the important ingredients.

They experimented on fifty women and the results were simply astounding. Now he told me, the Century Chemists were prepared to supply the wonderful Spanish Curling Liquid to women everywhere.

Take advantage of their generous trial offer—

I told my cousin I did not want one penny for the information I had given him. I was only too glad to know the formula was to be so easily available. I did make one stipulation, however. I insisted that he introduce the discovery by selling it for a limited time at actual laboratory plus postage so that as many women as could take advantage of it. This he agreed

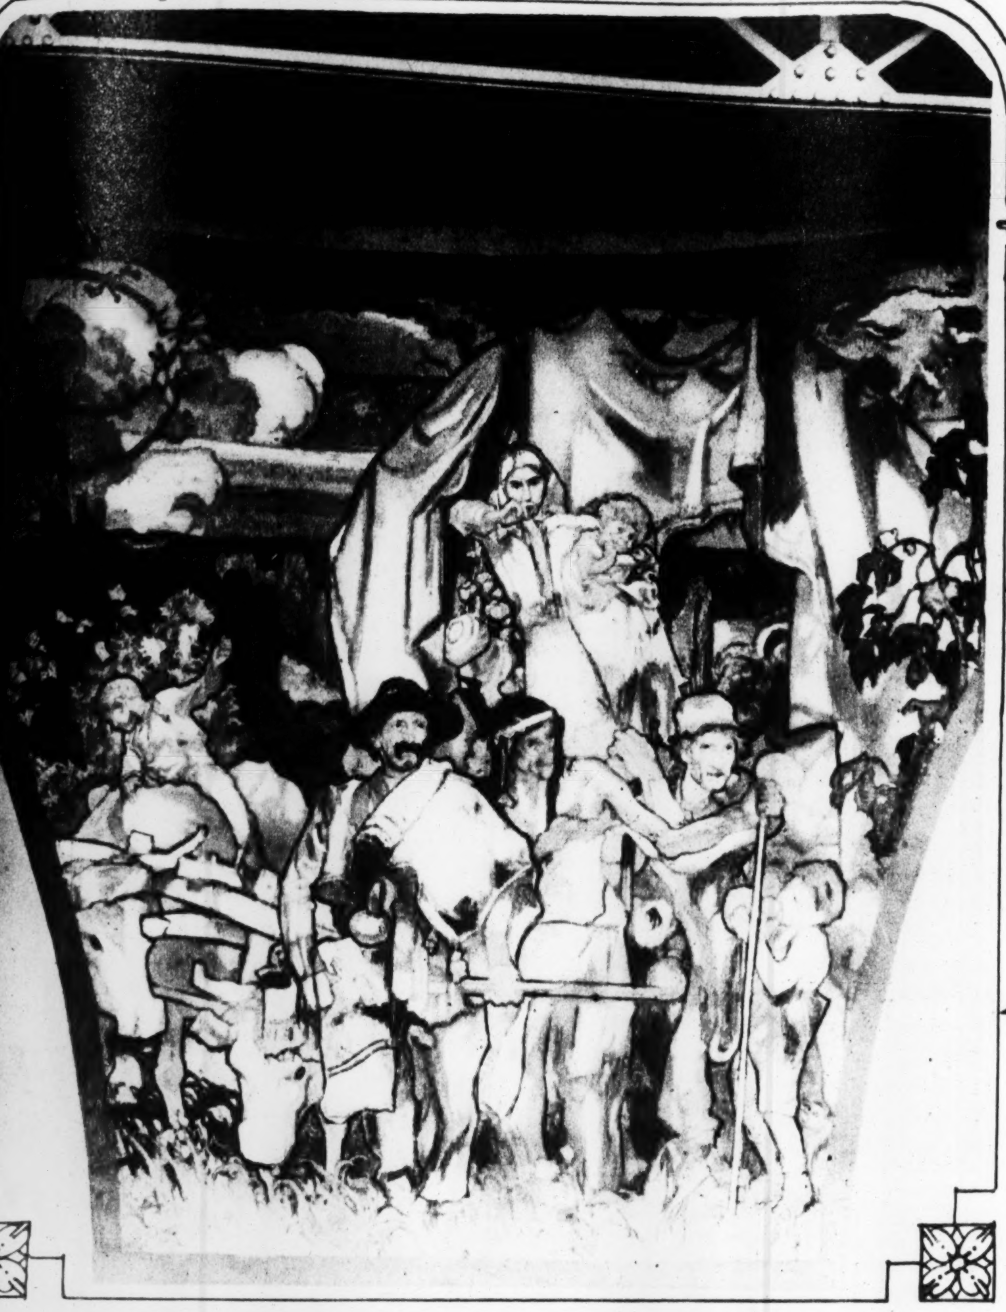
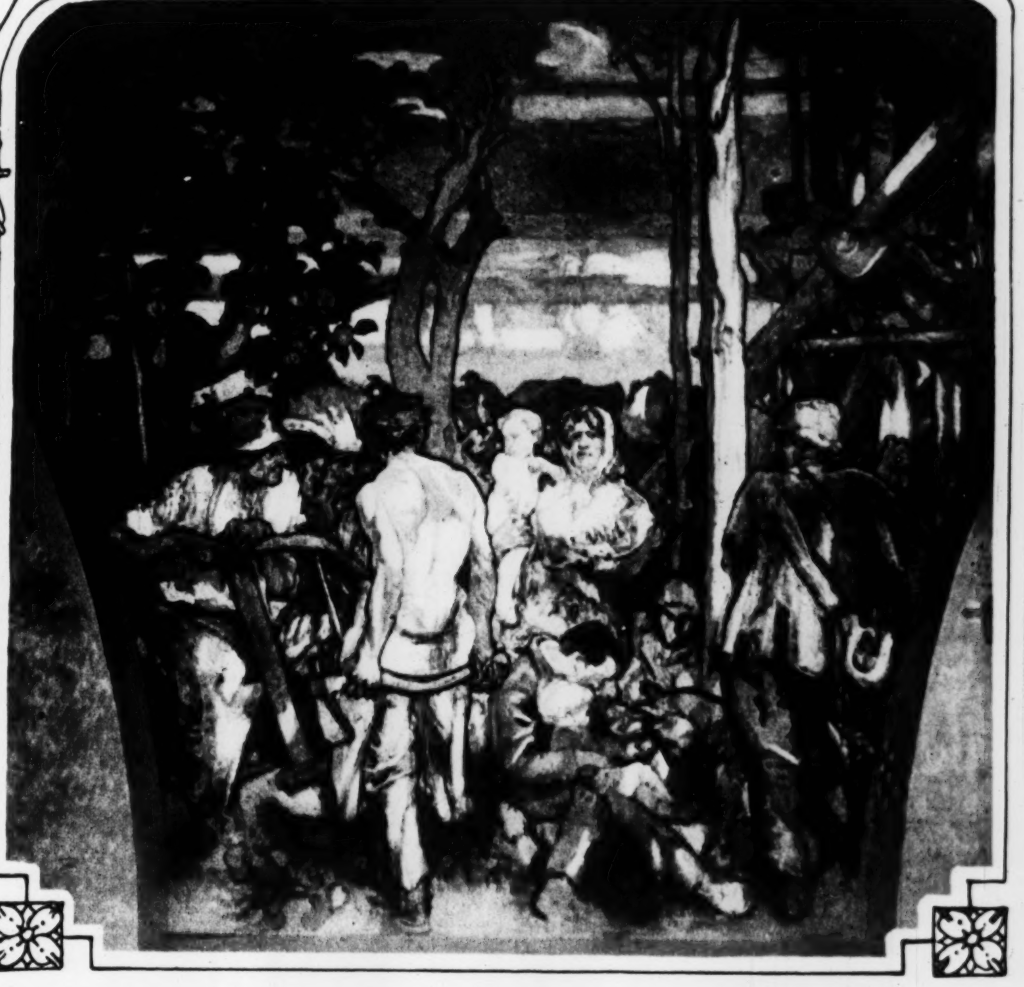
FRANK BRANGWYN'S STATE CAPITOL PAINTINGS IN THE MAKING

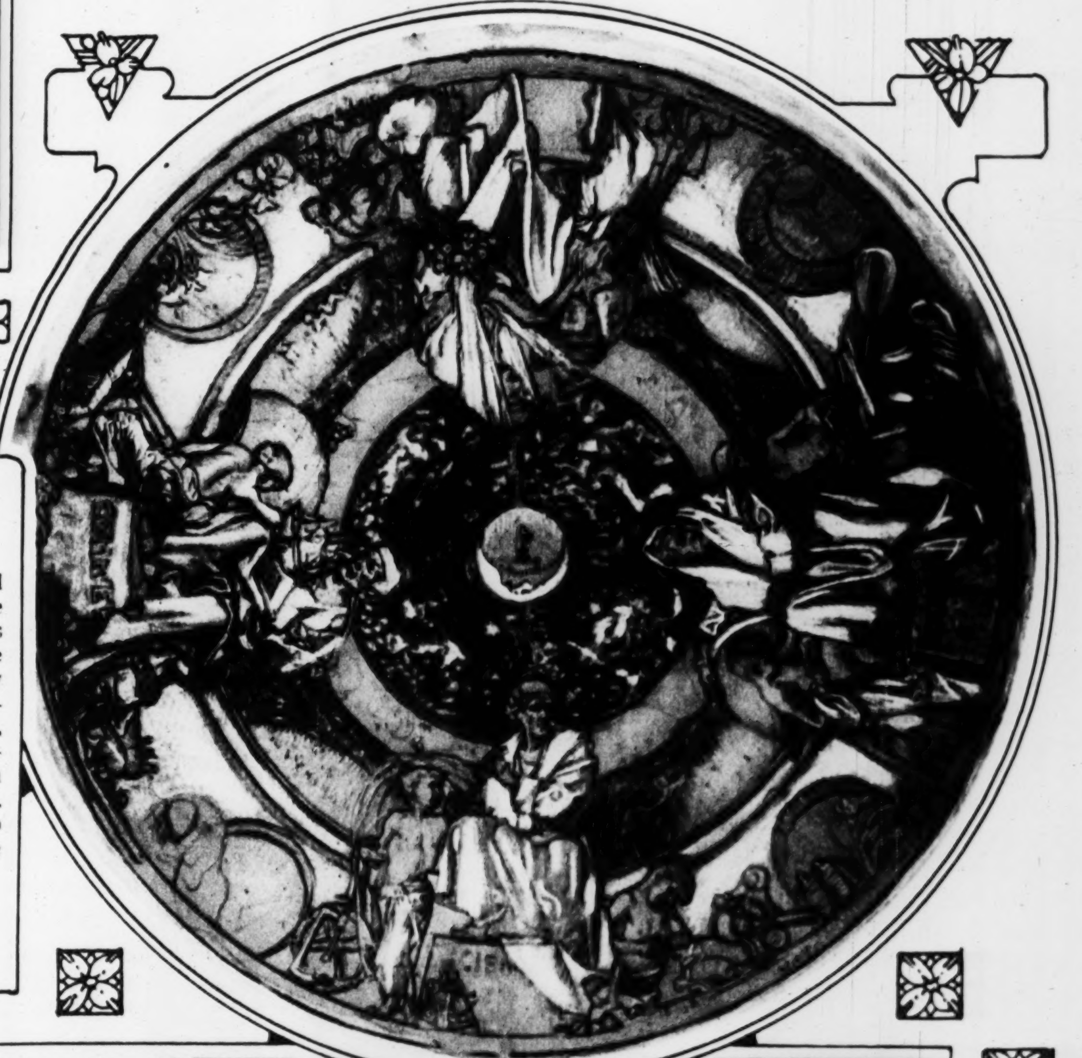
These are the first published photographs of the great panels and the ceiling piece for the interior of the Missouri Capitol dome at Jefferson City. Brangwyn is now working on them at his studio in a suburb of London. Each panel is 24 feet high and more than 40 feet wide. The prevailing colors are light blue and gold with splashes of rich, deep orange. In executing the work it has been Brangwyn's effort to condense into these panels the eventful story of Missouri's history in a way that will bring out the full value of important episodes and show the greatness of the State



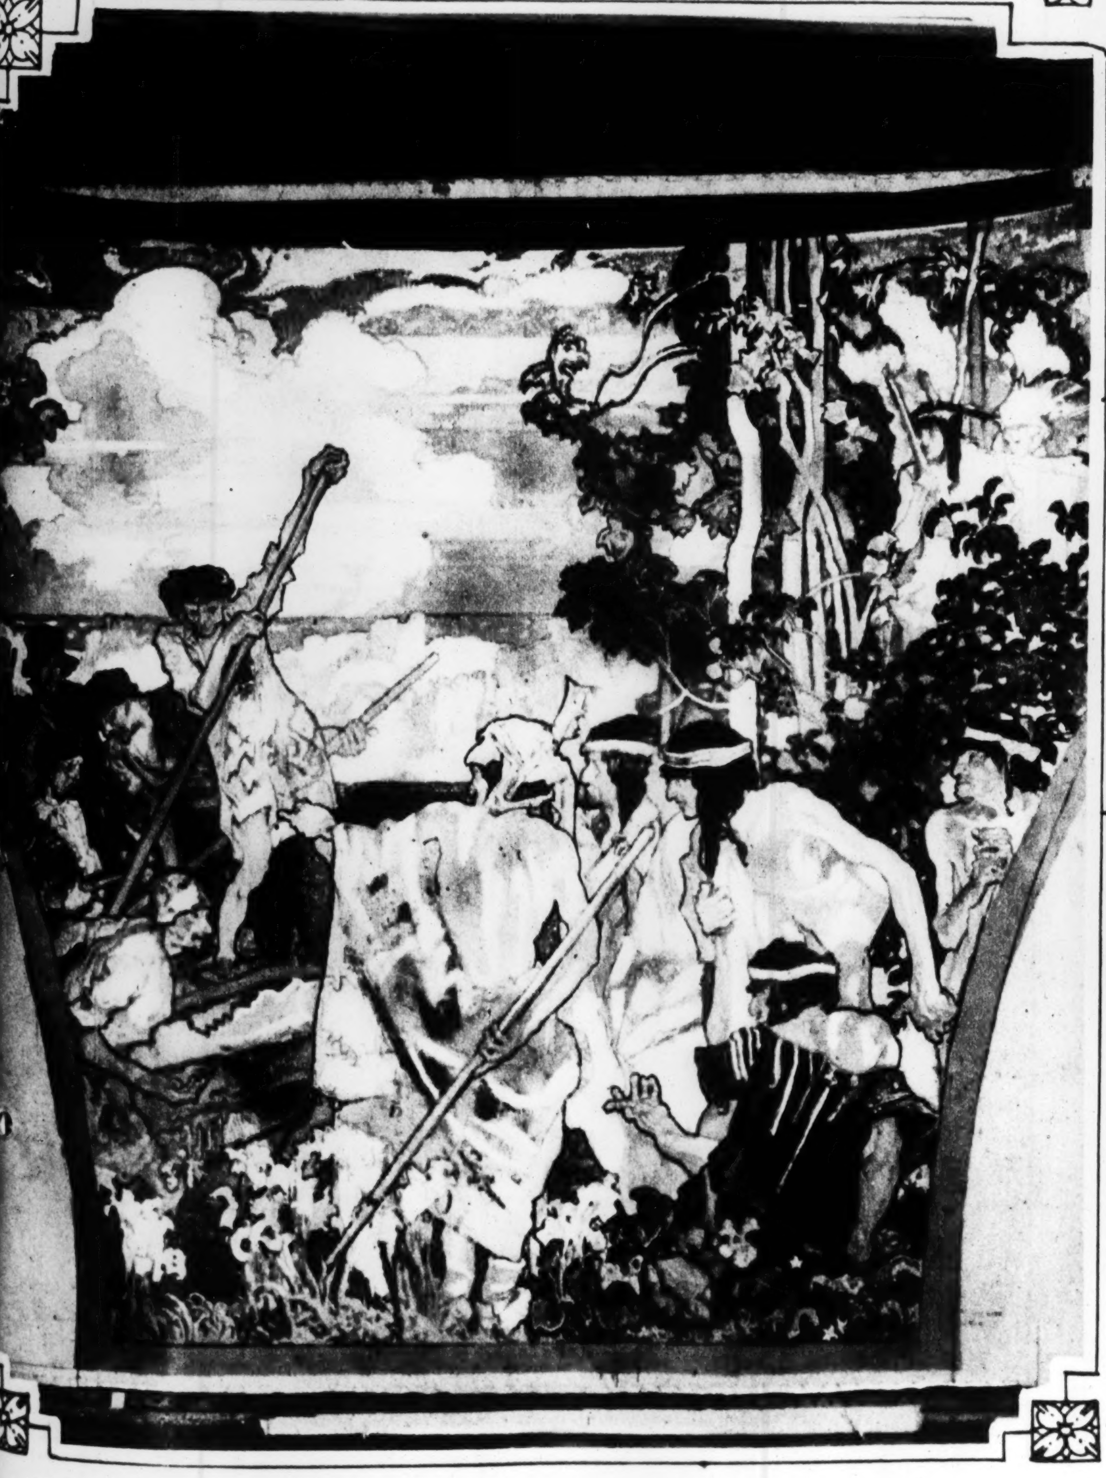
The panel representing the pioneer adventuring into the plains under guidance of a friendly Indian. The pioneer, accoutered and armed, walks in front of a prairie schooner drawn by oxen. His wife and child are on the seat of the wagon. At right: Brangwyn working on the Pioneer panel. This shows the comparative sizes of the artist and the painted figures.



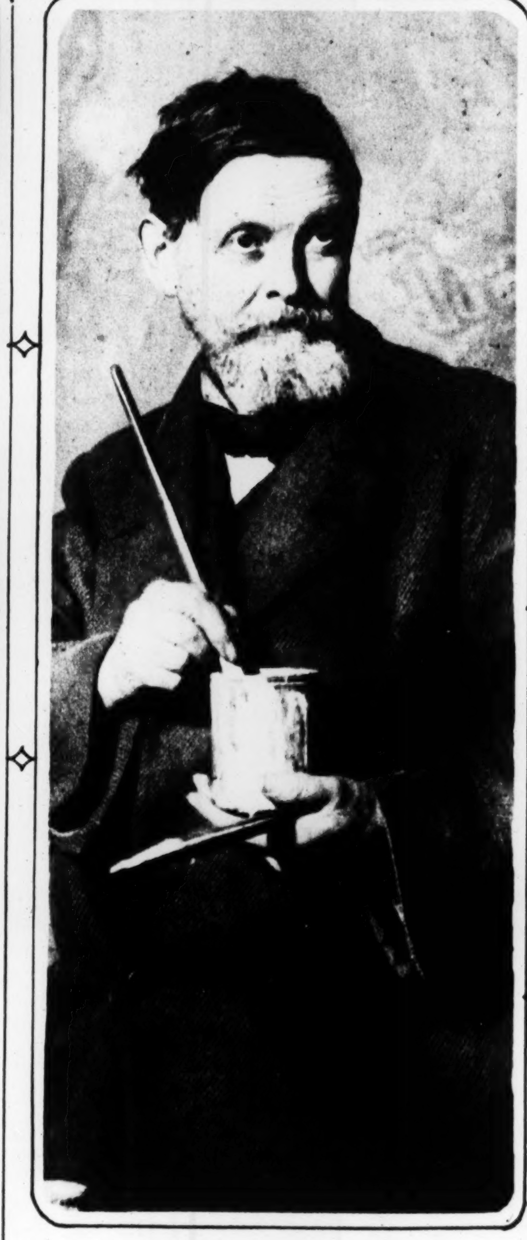
The buildings of the State is the theme of this panel. The settlers are busy setting up their first homes. They follow in the wake of the pioneer, tilling the wilderness. The men are cutting down timber and fashioning it into logs to build the first houses in Missouri.



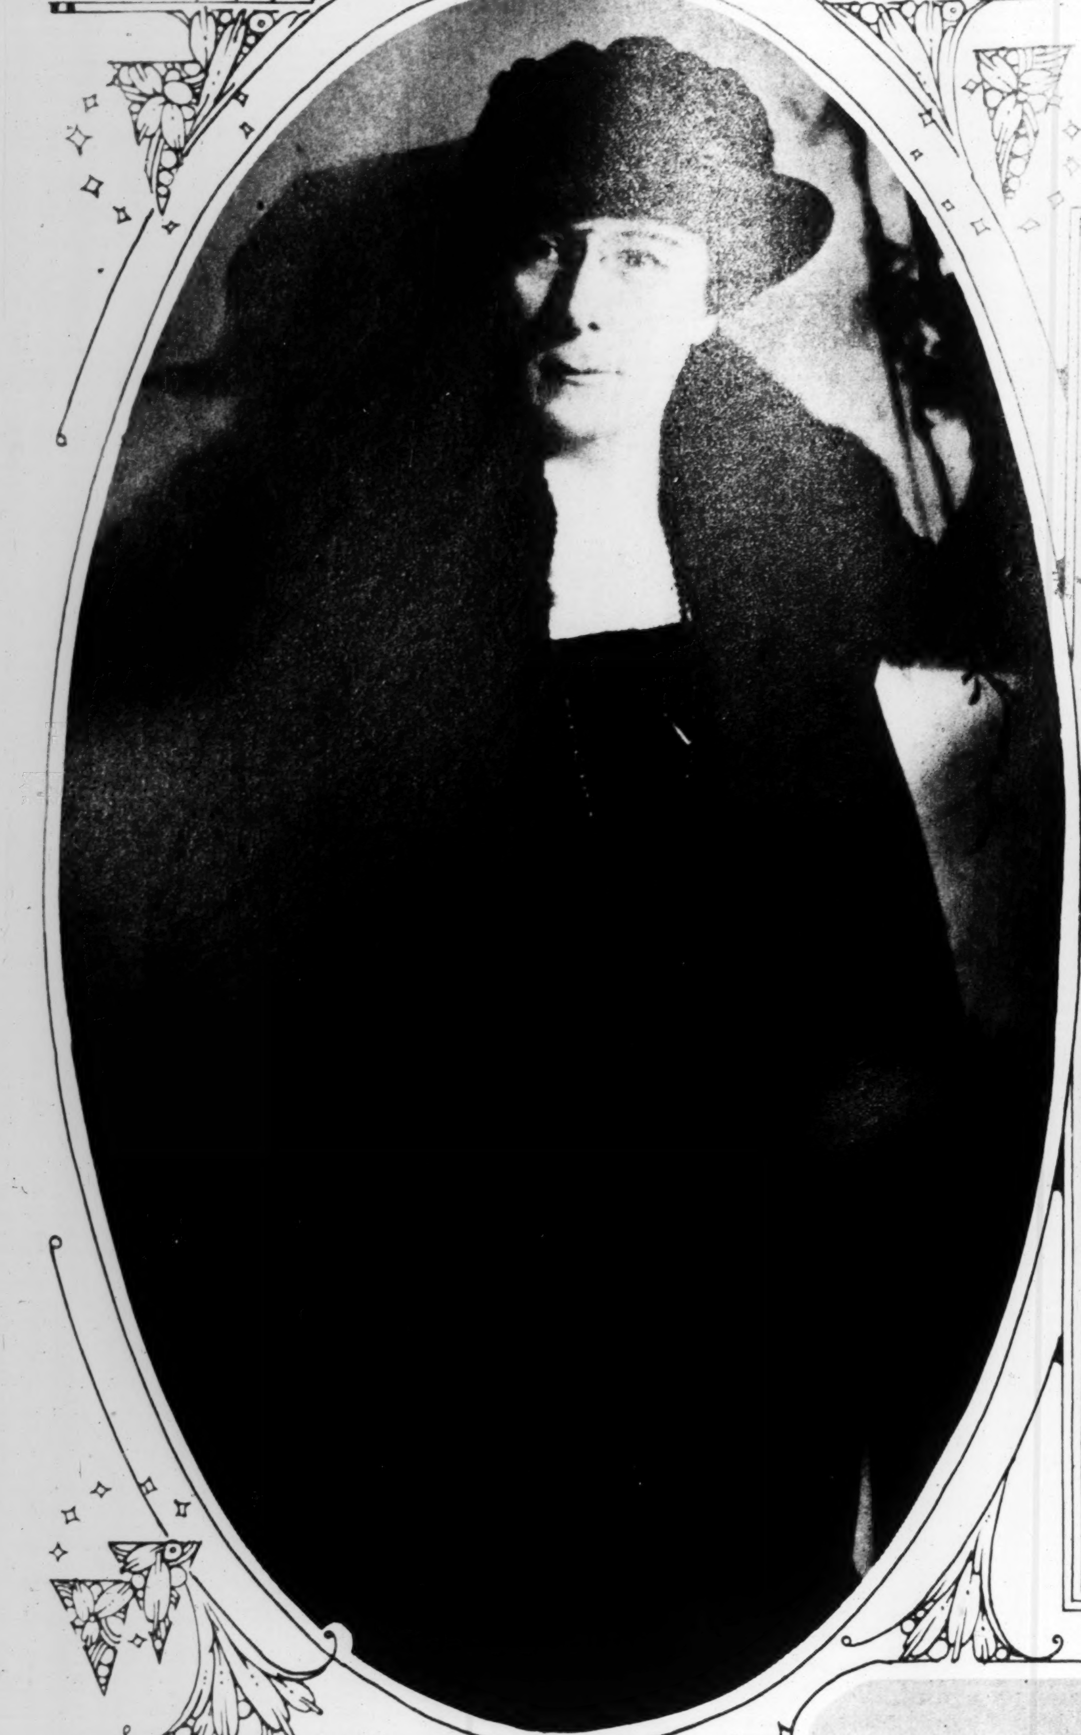
The colossal panel for the eye of the dome. The figures on this canvas are 18 feet high. They represent Education, Agriculture, Science and Commerce. Painted on canvas in flat oils, they are confined to a light color scheme of blue and gold.



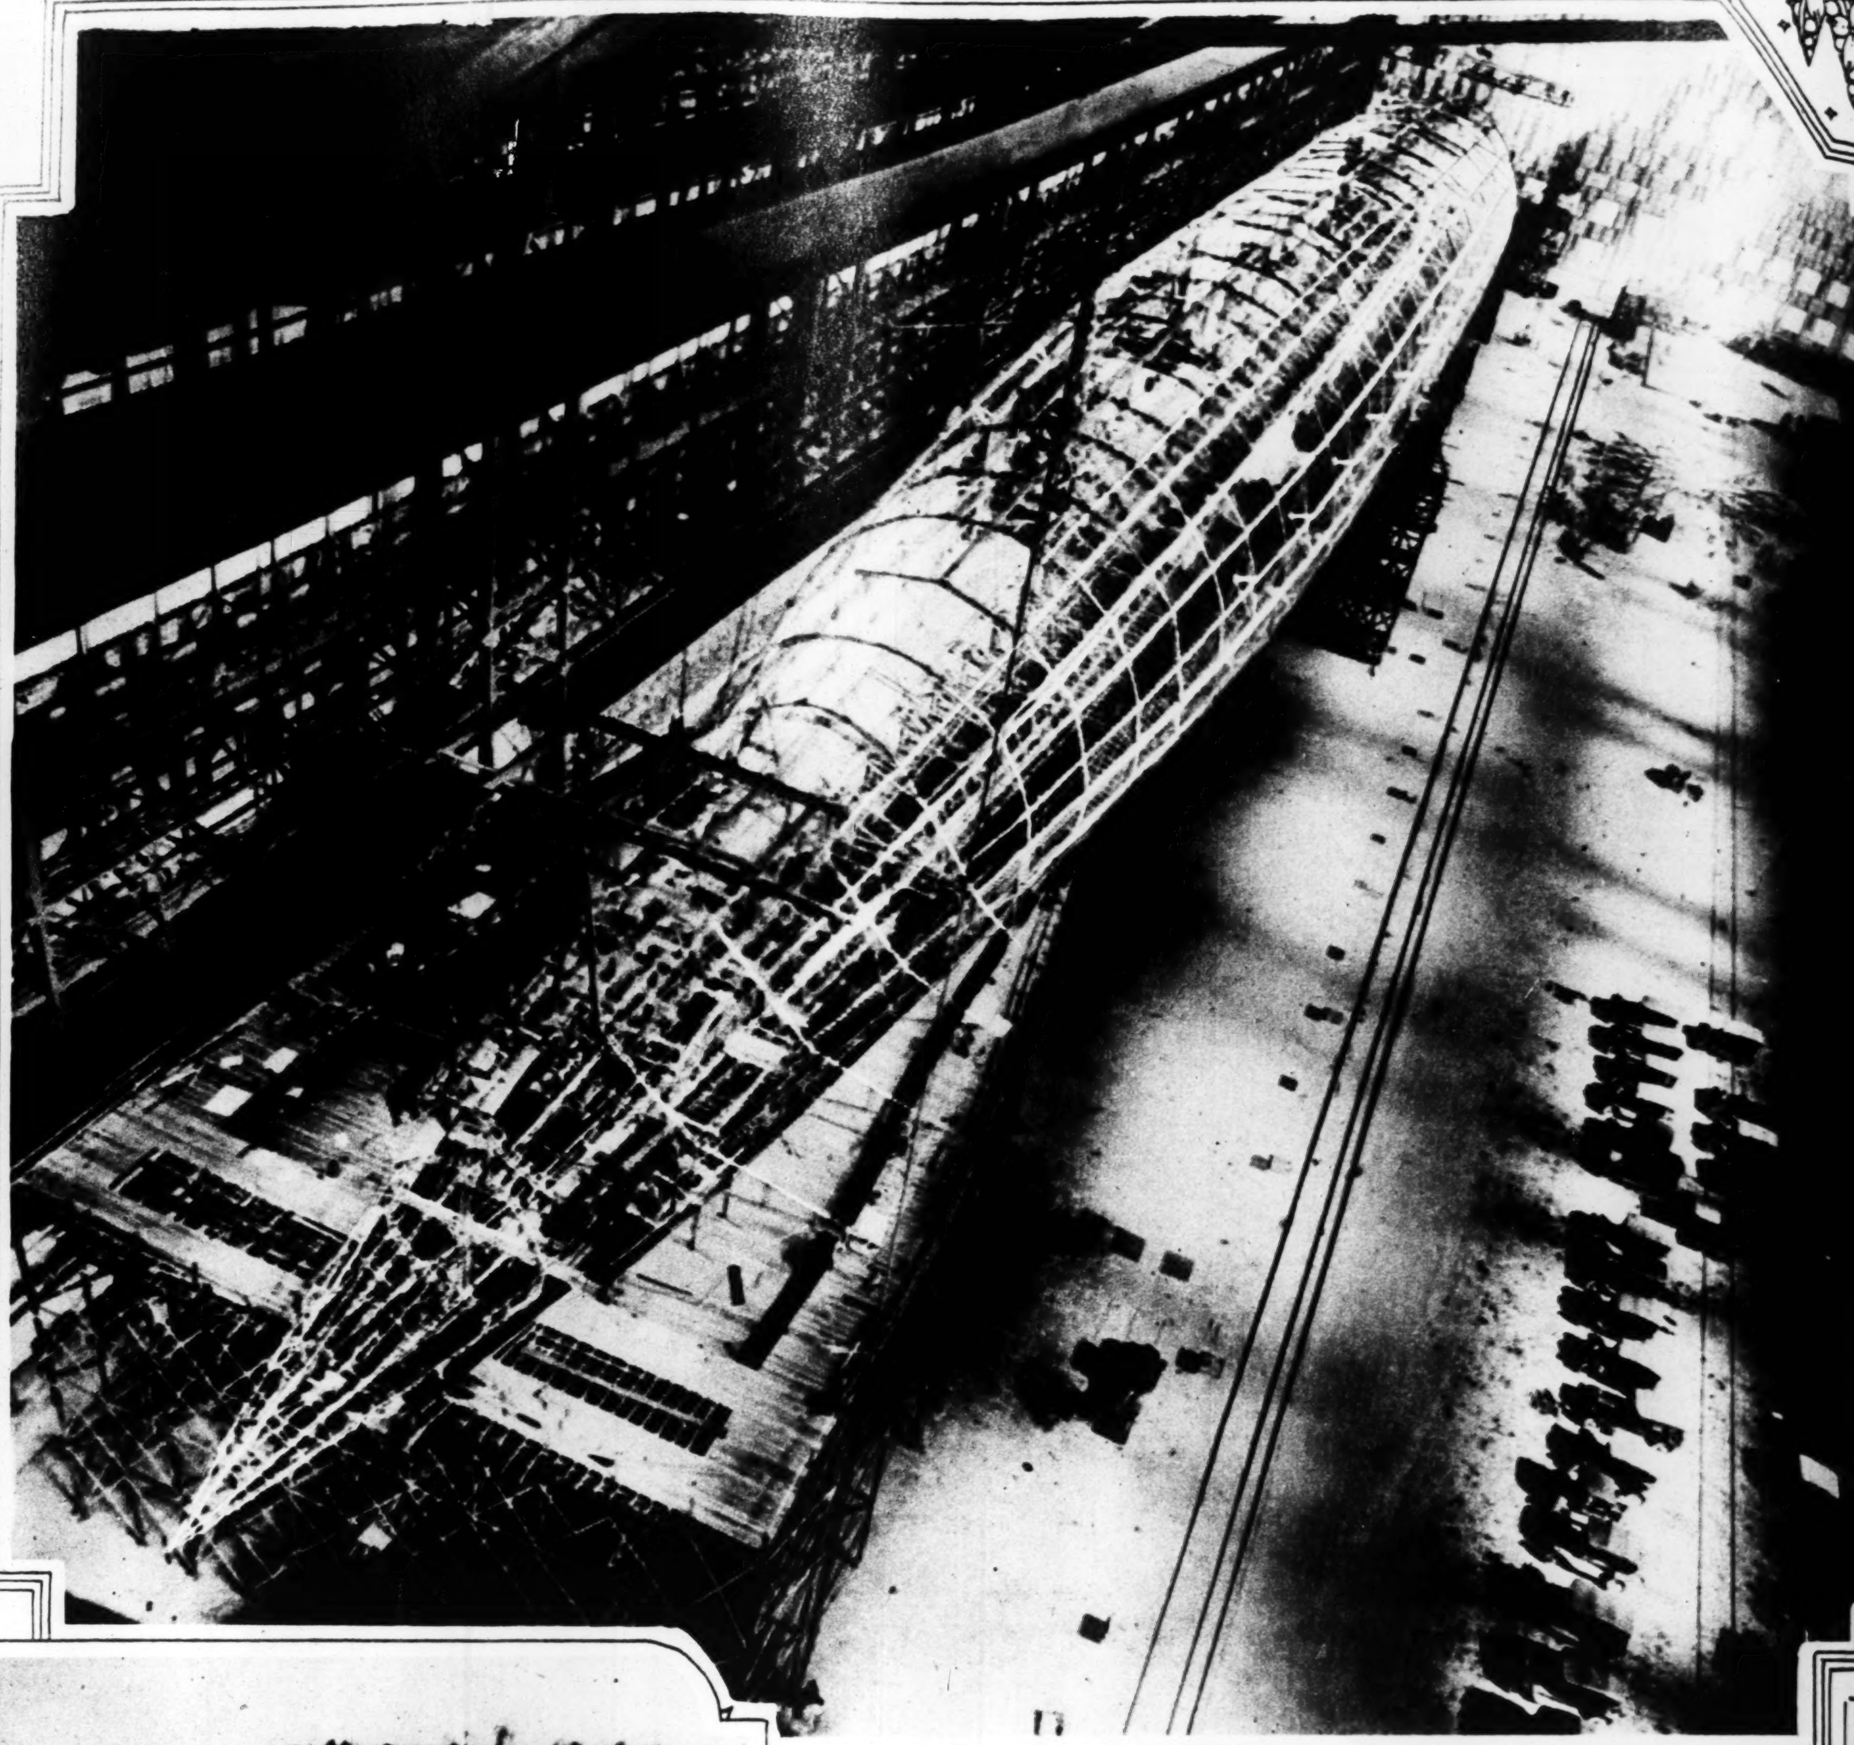
The landing of Laclede at the present site of St. Louis. The artist has chosen the moment when the intrepid Frenchman is nearing his goal while Indians on shore await his approach. Caution and curiosity are shown by both Indians and whites. Laclede, seated in the boat, is giving a friendly sign to the Indians.



Above: Mr. Brangwyn at work. At right: Another study in comparative sizes. The artist, seated on his working platform in front of a section of a panel showing the building of St. Louis. Only a section of the panel is shown here. When completed, it will show the Eads Bridge in course of construction in the upper left background.



"This is Station K S D, the St Louis Post-Dispatch, Miss Jones announcing, signing off at—." An unnumbered multitude in the United States and in neighboring countries have heard these words over the radio, but have never seen the speaker. Thousands have asked that her picture be printed. The Post-Dispatch here publishes, for the first time, a portrait of Miss V. A. L. Jones, announcer of Station K S D.



There will be something big in the air when this new navy dirigible, the ZR-1, gets under way. This photograph of its immense framework was made in the hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. Note the comparative size of the workmen's automobiles on the floor. The craft is completed, all but putting the bag around the framework.

When your skin is so dry that it flakes off . . . forms roughnesses you hate

DOES your skin dry and crack in the wind? Does it "flake off" so that the powder catches on many tiny roughnesses? Or embarrass you by its dry tight shine?

Such an unduly dry skin ages early. Because of its lack of suppleness it develops the little lines that grow into premature wrinkles. And these you especially want to avoid, as well as the unattractiveness of a dry, scaly skin.

NIGHT AND DAY KEEP IT SOFT with this famous method

To keep your skin — no matter how dry it may seem now — in a beautiful supple condition, use the method that many famous and lovely women depend on:

Every night cleanse it thoroughly with Pond's Cold Cream. Apply this cream softly with a piece of moistened cotton. Wipe it off. Do this twice—already your skin feels less tight. Now apply more cream and let it stay on.

Your face will soften and relax as it gladly absorbs the fine light oil of this cream. Notice the great difference in its smoothness in the morning. There is no shine because your skin is no longer stretched tight.

Then in the morning apply Pond's Vanishing Cream lightly over your whole face. This wonderful daytime softening cream will prevent your skin from drying out again. Now the wind cannot whip out its new suppleness. You will love its new soft smoothness and the way the powder "powders" evenly. And you will no longer need to worry about early wrinkles. They will not form in your soft, supple skin.

Ruth Roland who does so much outdoor work says, "Pond's Cold Cream leaves my face very soft and supple. Then I use Pond's Vanishing Cream by day to prevent any roughness through the day."

Begin to use this method today. Buy a jar or tube of both creams at any drug or department store. Neither can clog the pores or grow hair. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson St., New York.

When you face the day with a system clogged by poisons

YOU know the feeling. Aching forehead, a torpid brain, your whole body heavy and lifeless.

It is because your system is clogged with the poisons of constipation. As one noted authority says:

"Constipated individuals often feel tired all day, and disinclined for either mental or physical exertion. They may suffer from insomnia, and are apt to wake unrefreshed."

Today—an almost universal tendency

The human body, like any other engine, throws off every day a great quantity of waste. It can no more run efficiently with this waste piling up inside than a gasoline motor can run if you stop up the exhaust.

That is why so many human ailments can be traced back to constipation. Unless these waste products are kept moving, they stagnate and turn into deadly poisons that flood the whole system. And so the first thing that doctors want to know—no matter what you consult them for—is whether you are regularly getting rid of these poisons.

The real reason why thousands suffer

Our whole mode of life is unnatural today. We take less and less physical exercise. We work under constant nervous strain. And instead of the coarse, raw foods of the forest for which our bodies were built, our modern civilization demands a delicate, concentrated diet which gives the muscles of our intestines no real work to do.

It is these muscles which, by a series of powerful contractions, keep the waste products moving. Nature intended us to stimulate and exercise them regularly—instead, our modern diet lets them get soft and flabby. They fail to act. Day by day poisons flood our system.

At last people are realizing that cathartics and purgatives are worse than useless. Not only do they upset digestion by tearing away the food in the body while the system is still at work on it—but they require larger and larger doses in order to blast their way through. And at last the intestinal muscles, weakened still further by this artificial purging, refuse to respond at all!

The only way to relieve constipation permanently is by exercising the intestinal muscles as Nature intended.

That is why physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today—not as a medicine, but as a fresh corrective food which gives the intestinal muscles regular, natural exercise.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants, which mix with the waste products in the colon, softening them and increasing the bulk of the waste. This greater bulk gently encourages the muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of regularly exercising the intestinal muscles as the only way to relieve constipation and all its evils. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. Recent experiments have shown that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active—and that it loses its laxative effect when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Fleischmann's Yeast is in no sense a purgative and does not produce immediate violent action. It is a nourishing food—not a digestion-disturbing medicine—and like any other food, it must be eaten regularly to secure results.

Eat at least 2 or 3 cakes a day—plain or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. If you eat it plain, follow with a glass of water. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool, dry place for several days. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

It seems as though a fairy whispered the magic secrets to Lingette's weaver: how to mix the softness of the rose, the tints of the rainbow, and the shimmer of dewdrops to give this all-cotton fabric its exquisite, silky, flower-like surface.

"Conspicuous nose pores grow larger if neglected"

You cannot conceal Conspicuous nose pores— but you can reduce them

YOU can reduce conspicuous nose pores by the right treatment.

On your face the pores are larger than on other parts of the body. On the nose, especially, there are more fat glands than elsewhere.

Unless your skin is in an active condition, the fat sometimes accumulates in these glands, with the result that the pores become enlarged.

You can overcome this trouble by the following treatment:

WRING a cloth from very hot water, lather it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face.

When the heat has expanded the pores, rub in very gently a fresh lather of Woodbury's.

Repeat this hot water and lather application several times, stopping at once if your nose feels sensitive.

Then finish by rubbing your nose for a few seconds with a piece of ice.

Supplement this treatment with the regular use of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet. This stimulating method of cleansing will bring about a marked improvement in your skin.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake lasts a month or six weeks. Woodbury's also comes in convenient 3-cake boxes.

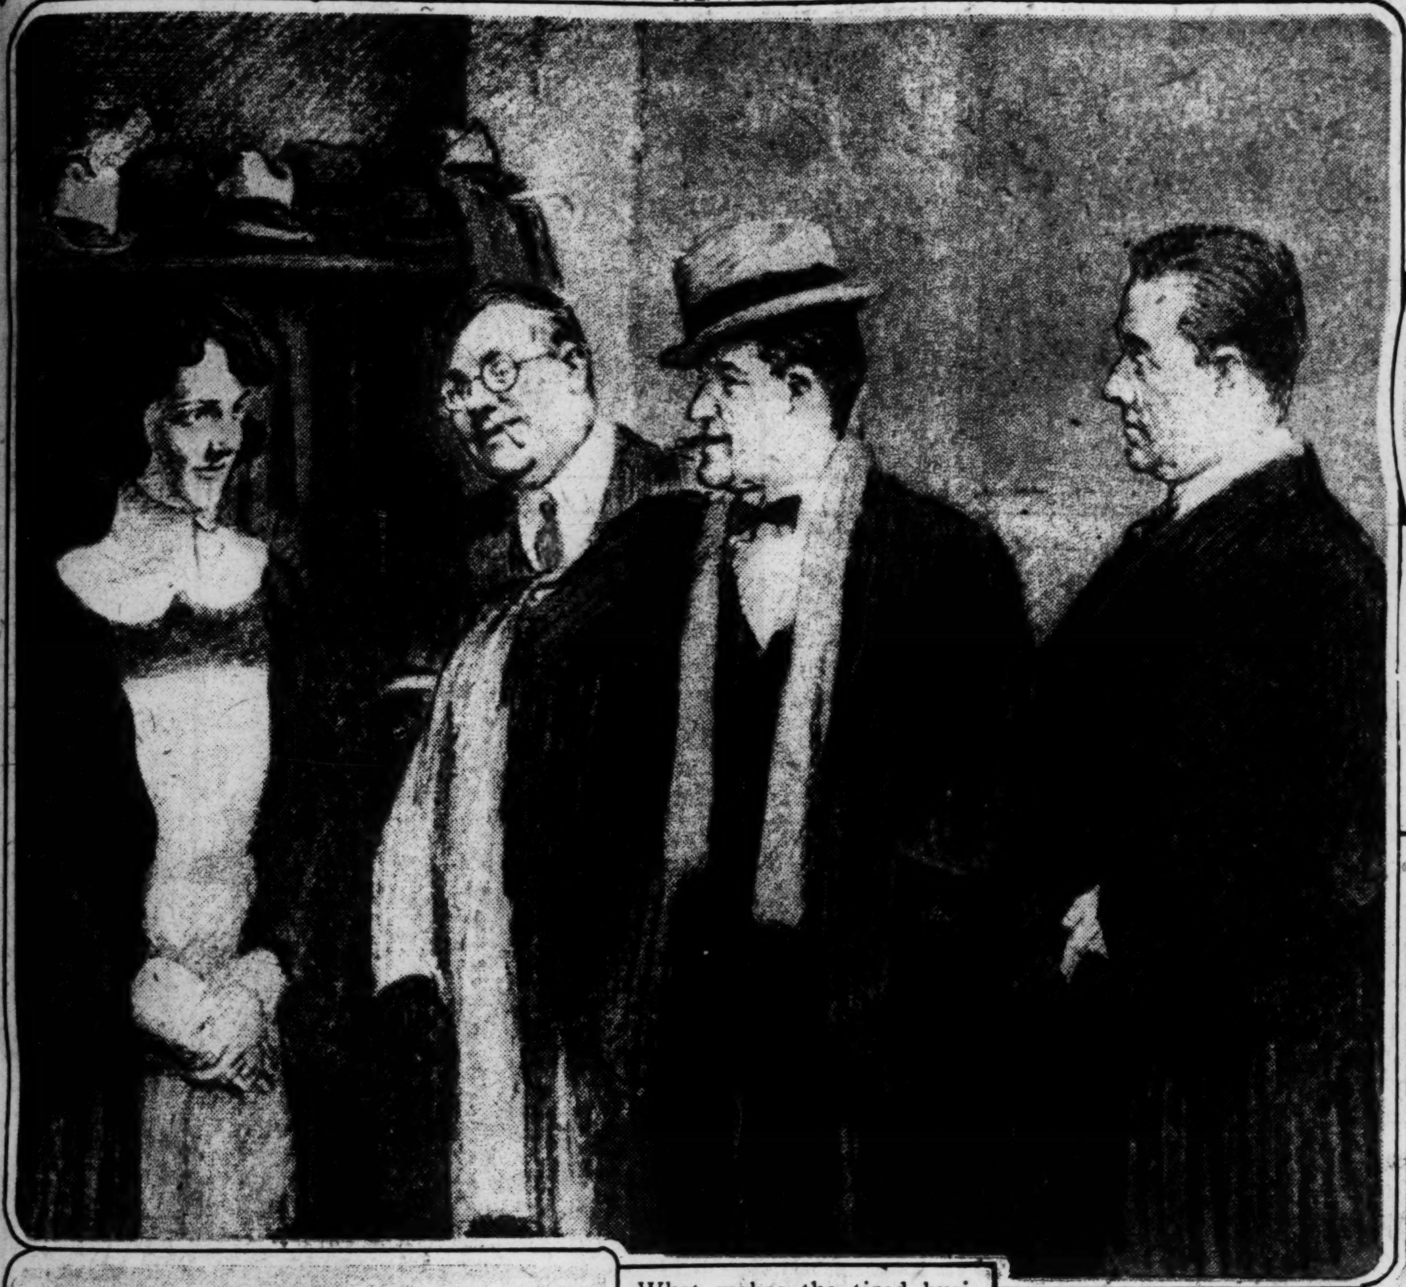
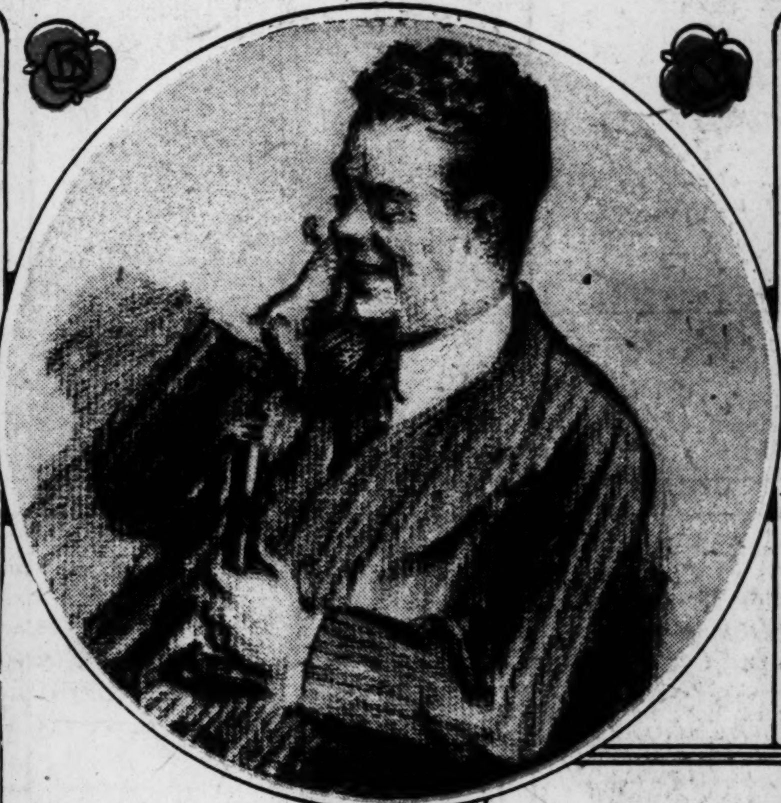
THE TIRED BUSINESS MAN

(COPYRIGHT)

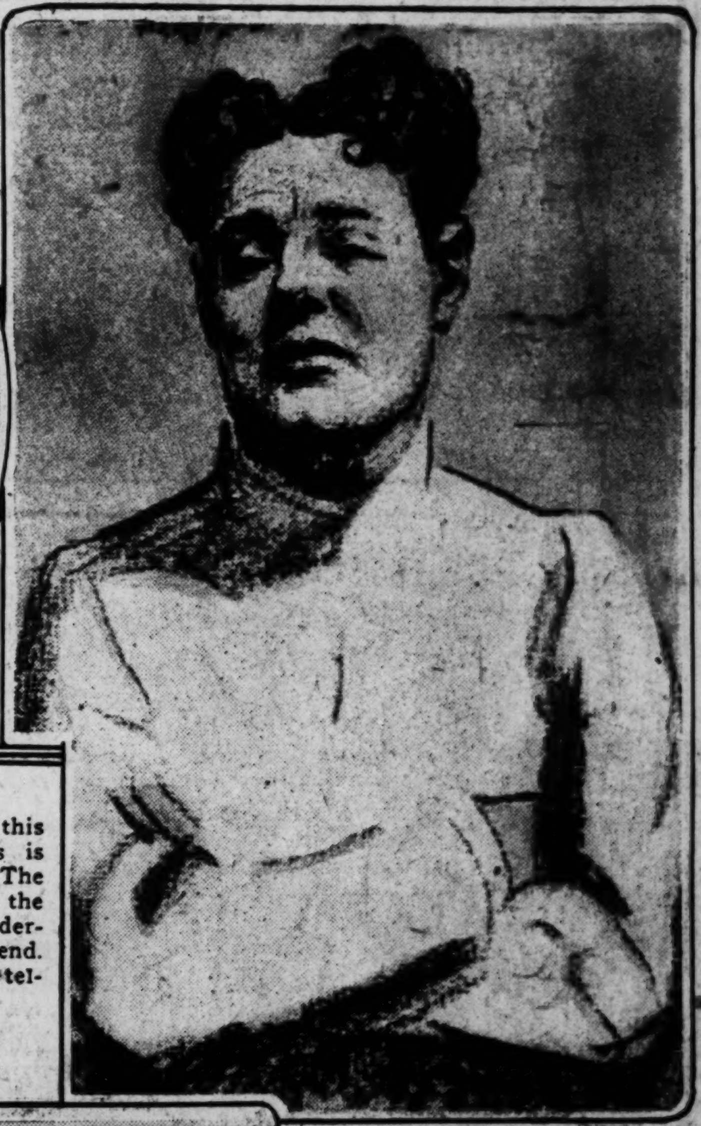
By W. E. HILL



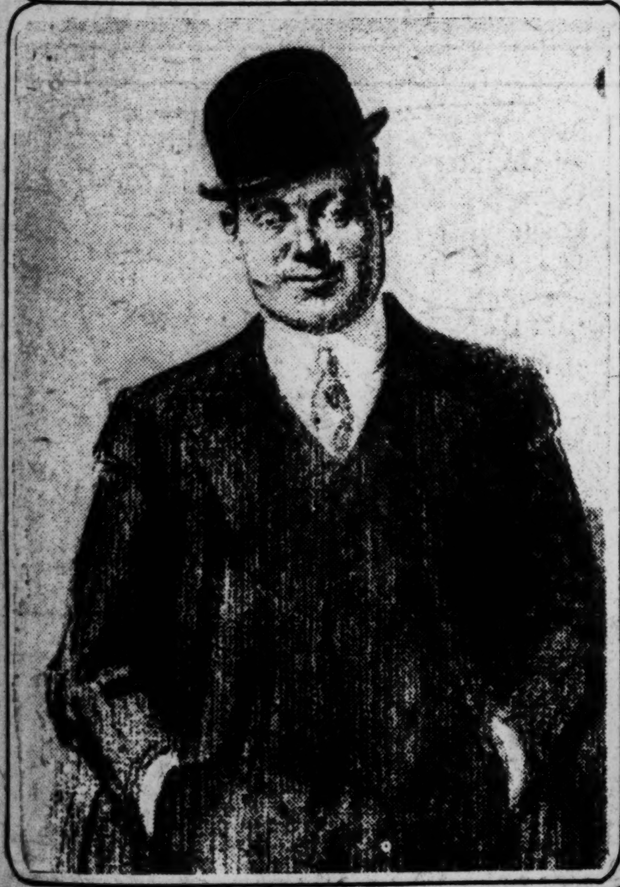
What makes the tired business man so tired? That's what his wife would like to know once and for all. Well, for one thing, entertaining the out-of-town clients at the Club Petite cabaret, or the Oneonta Room of the Hotel Ruggles, has a lot to do with that tired feeling. Clients on a party never want to go home sober. Or go home at all for that matter. (This is the third time these past two weeks Mr. Graus has had to do the honors with out-of-town clients. It is near closing time at the dance palace, and yet neither Mr. Maginnis nor Mr. Schwartz wants to go home. They are trying to annex the coatroom girl to their party and go over to Stauch's.)



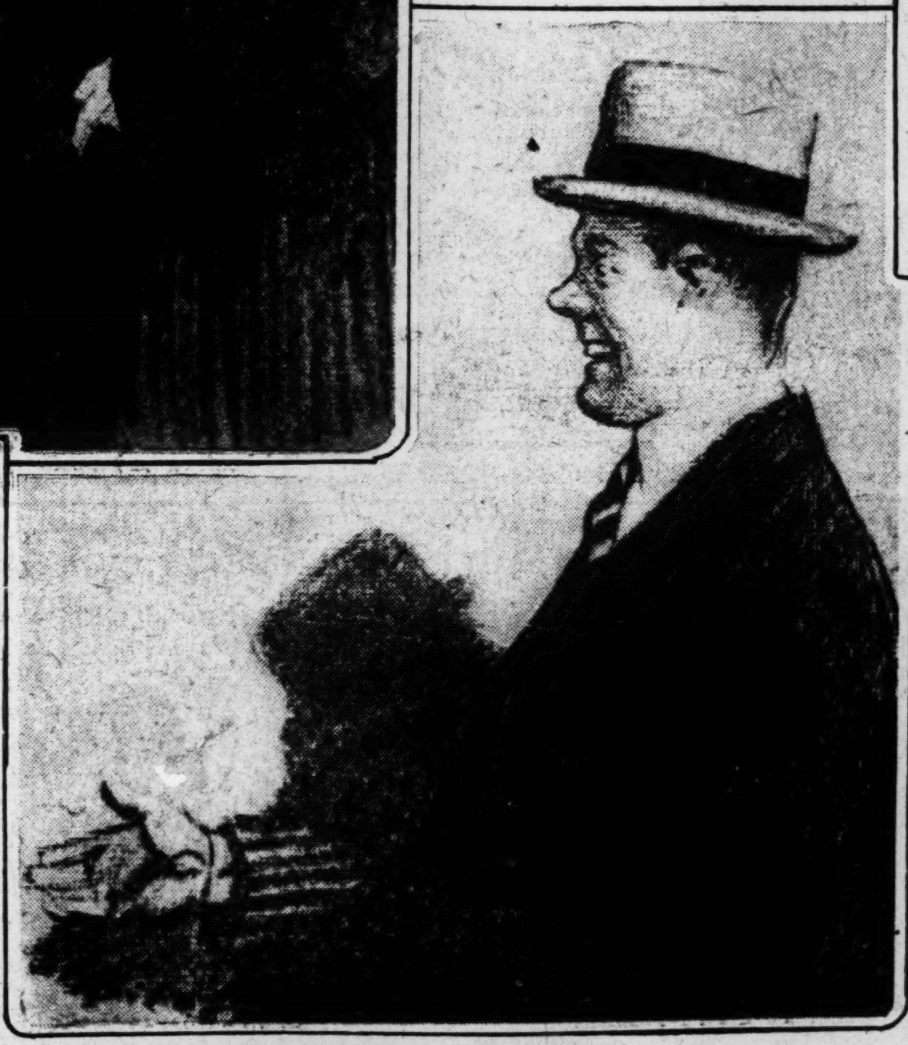
"Good morning! Is this Mr. Gallagher? This is Mr. Shean speaking." The junior member of the house of Kittywake underwear is calling up a friend. It's one of those comic telephone conversations.



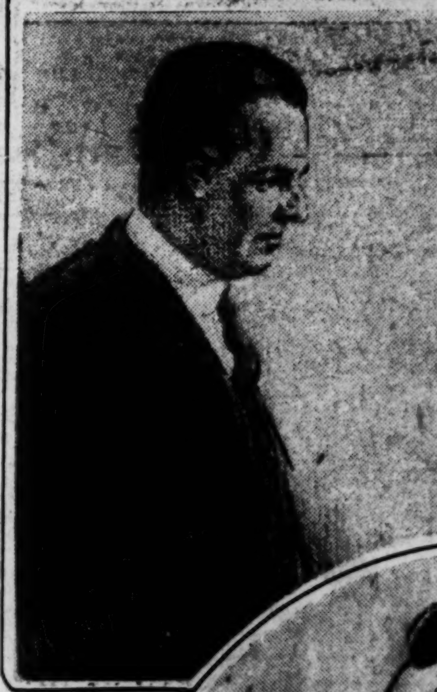
The tiredest of T. B. M.s is the young man at the soda fountain. Oh, the languid way he tosses his curls before starting in on the egg chocolate!



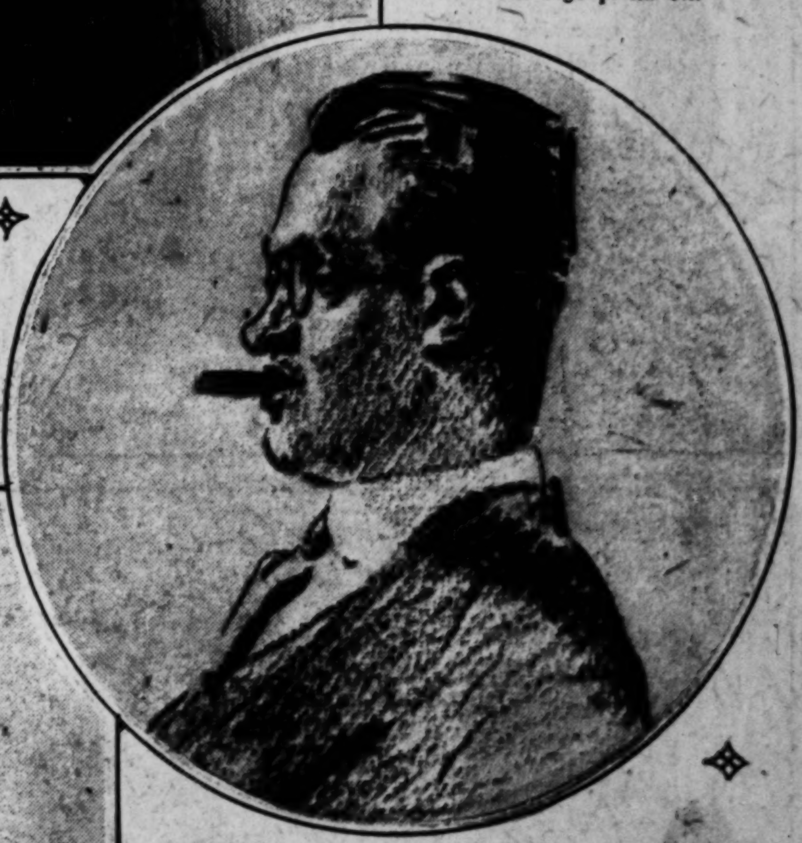
The reg'lar feller—a big, strong, silent man and a little cut-up all rolled into one, is the automobile salesman.



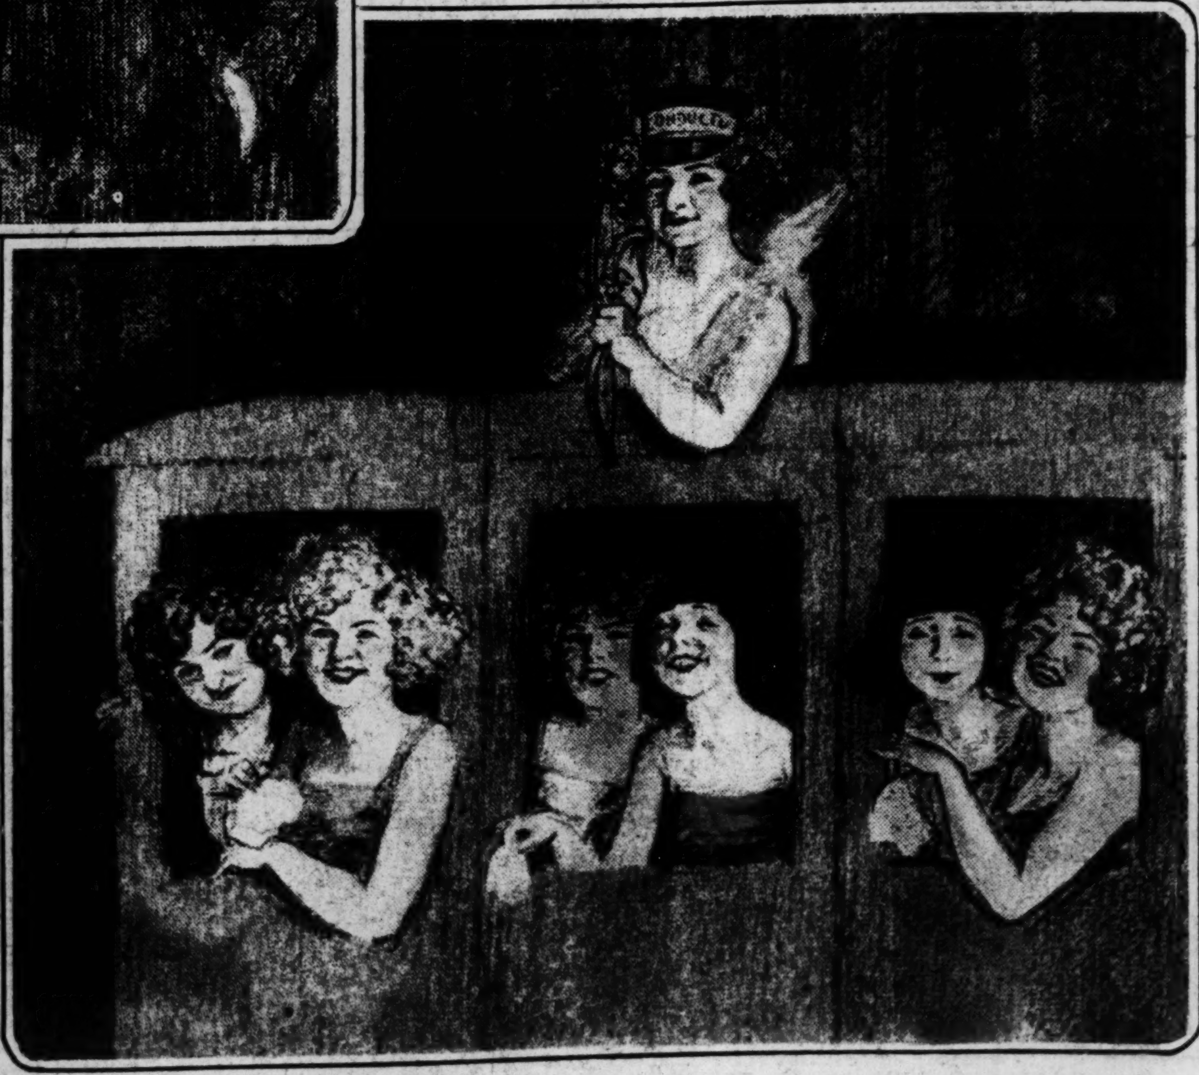
The successful handshaker is a very buoyant personality. Always handing around business cards in case someone forgets his telephone number. After a busy day of back-slapping and "Well, Hel-lo, Eddie—Well, well, well, how's the old kid!" etc., the buoyant personality is all used up. Home for the night with the wife and kiddies, the handshaker becomes just a tired business man.



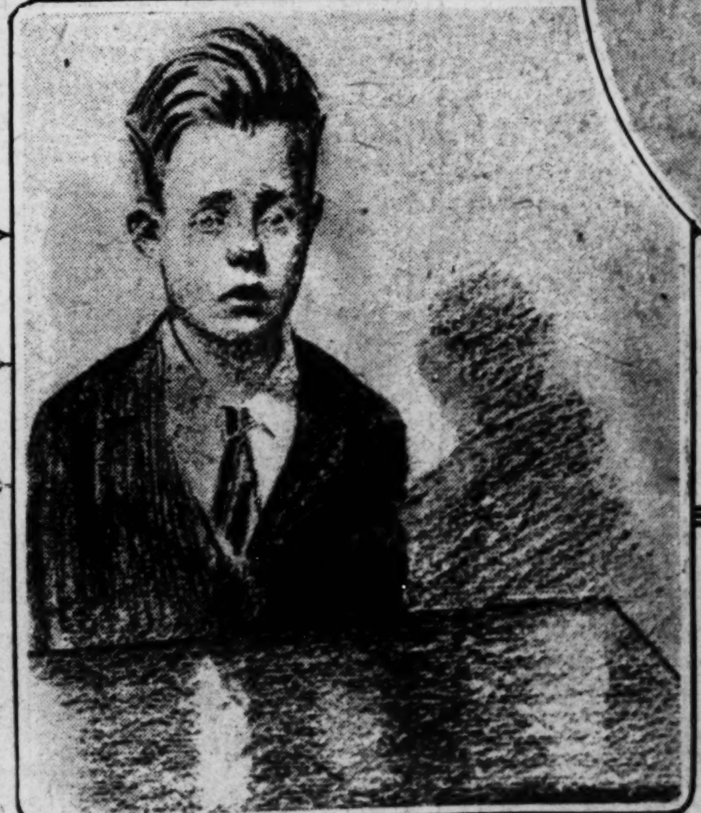
The broker with the weak stomach and numerous clients who have to be taken to lunch is a tragic figure in the business world. The stenogs in the office are afraid of their lives from 2:30 p. m. on.



No wonder the advertising expert gets tired. This morning he's working on the "Princess Crosspatch Hair Net" campaign and it's uphill work, what with one person wanting this and another that.



The theatrical managers know just what to do about the tired business man and do it by bringing on the chorus. In this number—the second encore of "I'll Build You a Railroad of Love, Dear," in that snappy revue, "Let's Be Frank"—the girls have gone and put a railroad car together out of scenery and are having the grandest time! What WILL they do next?



Day in and day out Robert sits behind the mahogany desk looking busy only at those times when the boss comes through. At other times he is a typical T. B. M. Robert's duty is to come back and tell the applicant that so and so is at a conference and can see no one. Occasionally when the boss needs to make an extra impression on a visiting client, he will open a door leading into Robert's anteroom and say, "this is our reimbursement department Robert has adenoids."

HALLS IN INVALIDES IN HONOR OF ALLIED ARMIES DEDICATED

Exchange of Messages Between Presidents Millerand and Harding Is Feature of Paris Ceremony.

SILENT TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF DEAD

American Room, Near Napoleon's Tomb, Contains Exhibits Depicting United States' Part in the War.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 16.—An exchange of telegrams between President Harding and President Millerand was a feature today of one of the most moving ceremonies here since the great war, when, at the Invalides, the new "halls in honor of the allied armies" were formally thrown open.

No discourse marked the ceremony of dedication. It was only a silent tribute to the memory of the dead. President Millerand reviewed the guard of honor and then greeted Ambassador Herrick, Col. T. Bentley Mott, military attache at the American embassy, and other members of the diplomatic corps. Then, followed by a number of diplomats and military attaches and many American civilians, the President passed through the commemorative halls, including those devoted to the United States, England, Portugal, Belgium, Japan, Italy, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and Poland.

Marshal Foch Present.

Many French officers were present, but Marshal Foch, in simple civilian attire, seemed most to embody the dominating note of the ceremony—France at peace solemnly commemorating the memories of unity in the common cause.

President Harding's message was communicated to President Millerand by Ambassador Herrick during the ceremony. The Ambassador declared the President of the United States was impressed by the thought that this dedication of memories of the World War would not only be the most interesting of its kind in the world's history, but would also constitute a powerful appeal to the sentiments which, among all the nations, inspired the splendid co-operation witnessed during the war.

Ambassador Herrick added, in the name of President Harding, that the Government and the people of the United States held the sincerest hope of seeing forever preserved the complete and constant friendship which marked the relations of the allied and associated Powers during the war, as an everlasting testimony of the true fraternity of nations and peoples.

Message of Thanks.

The French Government has asked Ambassador Jusserand in Washington to thank President Harding on behalf of President Millerand for the American President's message, "the particularly cordial terms of which will have a profound effect upon the French nation."

The Ambassador will also voice France's appreciation of President Harding's allusion to the circumstances which determined the close and effective co-operation of the allies during the war, and will give to President Harding France's assurance that, like the Government and people of America, the French Government and people have the most ardent desire to see perpetuated in peace "that complete understanding and perfect friendship" that so happily marked the relations of the allied and associated Powers during the period of the armed conflict.

The American Room.

The American room is in one of the main wings of the Invalides, not far from the tomb of Napoleon. It is decorated over the main doors by eight regimental and four national American flags. Donations from the United States Government include a Liberty motor, a miniature observation balloon, models in miniature of seven standard airplanes used by the United States Army during the war, a model of the original Wright airplane, machine guns and other arms actually employed in the fighting, and a model of the type B motor truck, made by student officers at the motor transport school in Maryland. There are also several models representing American soldiers in uniform and a case containing the various divisional insignia of rank and medals conferred by the American Government.

The miniature of an army escort wagon is enclosed in a case made by disabled soldiers of the American army who are pursuing vocational training at home. An interesting exhibit shows Y. M. C. A. huts in operation in France, with an inscription on a bronze tablet which reads: "Offered to the French Republic by the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States in souvenir of a friendship which found its expression in the favor of the soldiers recalling the life of the grave
